Sometimes I feel like a real live missionary and I am doing a little missionary work all the time. You know I like to make mistakes so as to give the clever man a chance to correct them. It pleases me to know that some body has been clever enough to see the mistake and it pleases the man who points it out. Of course, I always thank the man most profusely and he goes away feeling real cordial. You know P. T. Barnum used to say that there is a sucker born every minute but the man who points out my mistakes to me never realizes that he is it. When you meet him though, smile. It will be your turn.

SACHEL OF THE SATELLITE

The 13th of the month is bound to be unlucky for somebody. I hope it's the other fellows.

Frank Babcock's lucky star that has been shining all season may be too much for the 13th after all.

The green apple season will soon double up the small boy population, no matter what the census man may say.—Montreal Star.

It's an Erieau man who uses his cat for an alarm clock. This morning he caught the train without his breakfast. The cat got lost.

It is the Chicago bootblack winning honors at Columbia, the newsboy at Brown, the farmer boy at Yale, the negro at Harvard who furnish the colleges with credentials of democracy which no tales of luxurious dormitories or spendthrift student life can discredit. While likewise they furnish very superior credentials to the nation whose newsboys, and bootblacks and negroes can make this fine showing of results.—New York World.

Sometimes I feel like a real live missionary and I am doing a little missionary work all the time. You know I like to make mistakes so as to give the clever man a chance to correct them.
