TRI-WEEKLY EDITION.

The election of the conservative candidate, Mr Ferguson, for South Renfrew by the small majority of about one hundred will, under the circumstances, give but little cause for congratulation in conservative ranks. South Renfrew, it is true, has for years been represented in parliament by a liberal, but the two great parties have been so evenly divided that the constituency has not been acknowledged positively liberal. In 1874, for instance, the liberal majority was but distinction. The time, we feel, is not far instance, the liberal majority was but in the conservative can be a conservative can be a conservative of the concessions and which puts a stop to the concessions and which puts a show to Jgrant them.

Trevelyan will greatly strengthen the Gladstonian cause. Though somewhat fickle, he would lend weight to any party. In the sphere of literature he is as well known as in that of politics and line covery. Will a specify effect the concessions and which puts a show to Jgrant them.

Salisbury's supporters feel that the Bridgeton victory is the severest blow which the so-called unionists have received. Little wonder that they fear that the result is significant. Just as they were to have their demands satisfied by the Salisbury government comes The election of the conservative candified by the Salisbury government comes to escape.

In all of these contests there have been local influences introduced sufficiently strong to carry the independents with the liberals. In the contest of Tuesday last the government addition to the power-ful influences it has invariably excreted in the constituency in past elections agreed in the constituency in past elections agreed in the constituency in past elections agreed to give a handsome subsidy to a local line of railway much needed in Renfrey and thus won the solid independent veve. And in addition to this the liberals have been as a strength of the constituency, nor acquainted with its neede, and whose candidature was distasteful to a large number of the party because of his connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, a concern which the majority of liberals view with disfavor and suspicion, and for any member of which it is beyond human possibility to secure their support. So obnoxious was Mr McIntyre's candidature to a large number of the liberals will disfavor and suspicion, and for the price of the farm, ranch and possibility to secure their support. So obnoxious was Mr McIntyre's candidature to a large number of the liberals will disfavor and suspicion, and for the price will be support. Under these circumstances, it could not be expected that the liberals would win. The contest was no test of party strength. The conservatives, therefore, have little cause for congratulation.
