GLEANINGS FROM LATE PAPERS.

INSCRIPTION FOR THE FRANKLIN MONUMENT IN THE ARCTIC SEAS.—We have been favoured (says an English paper) with a copy of the inscription written by Lady Franklin for the tablet, now on its way out to the Arctic Regions in the United States' Expedition, which is to be placed on Beechy Island. It is a touching memorial, and will be read with interest;

"To the memory of Franklin, Crozier Fitzjames, and all their gallant brother officers and faithful companions, who have suffered and perished in the cause of science and the service of their country—this Tablet is erected near the spot where he passed the first Arctic winter, and whence they issued forth to conquer difficulties or to die. It commemorates the grief of their admiring countrymen and friends, and the anguish, subdued by faith, of her who has lost in the heroic leader of the Expedition the most devoted and affectionate of husbands. "And so he bringeth them unto the Haven where they would be." 1855. This stone has been intrusted to be affixed in its place, to the officers and crew of the American Expedition, commanded by Lieutenant H. J. Hartstein, in search of Dr. Kane and his companions.

SCOTLAND INVADED BY WHALES.—The Inverness Courier informs us, that a few days prior to the sailing of the steamer Baltic a large number of bottle-nosed whales entered the Moray Firth, on the northwestern coast, and proceeded to enjoy themselves. The fishermen of the vicinity were highly indignant at such familiarity, and immediately put forth in boats and by various alarming demonstrations succeeded in so frightening the cetaceous monsters of the deep, that they plunged pell-mell upon the sandy shore of the bay, and were stranded beyond the possibility of returning their native element. One hundred and sixty-four were captured in this manner at the town of Waterloo, and many others along the shore at various places. The fish were from twelve to twenty feet in length, and realized great profit to their captors. The Glasgow Mail says, that whales are also dashing ashore in various parts of the Isle of Skye on the west coast of Scotland, and that great numbers of them have been taken. At the town of Sconser, one shepherd dispatched more than twenty of them with a scythe.

THE FLY PLAGUE IN THE CRIMEA.—One of the greatest curses of the camp at the present moment is the multitude of flies. It is really an Egyptian plague. In every tent and hut they swarm in myriads. From mosquitoes and fleas we are tolerably free; there are no bugs—at least I have neither seen nor heard of any. Probably bedsteads are not sufficiently numerous here to encourage the presence of those flat and fetid insects. We are duly grateful for the absence of such irritating vermin; and we try to be resigned, but we certainly cannot be thankful, under the fly infliction. The Crimean fly is the most daring and aggressive animal of its size that it has ever been my lot to encounter. It defouls everything in our quarters, bites you, and will not be rebuffed. Its courage and activity constitute it the Zouave of the fly family. It dashes into the cup you raise to your lips, and defiles the morsel at the end of your fork. War with it is not to be thought of. Kill a thousand, and you shall have a million in their stead. Whatever food is exposed under the table—sugar, meat, bread—is in an instant black with flies.—Times' Correspondent.

A TRICK.—The New Orleans Delta says, that the revolutionists in Mexico have long been aware, that it was indispensable for their cause to secure some of the available artillery of Vera Cruz. Even a single eight-pounder would be welcome to them. Stratagem was summoned to their aid, and a Mexican (who will turn out to be a Yankee in due time) suggested a plan which has worked like a charm. A grand dramatic exhibition was announced in Vera Cruz, and the Governor accepted the invitation of the artists to be present on the interesting occasion. The most curious feat of all those announced, was intended to be the firing of an eight-pound gun from the shoulder of one of the performers and all Vera Cruz were agog to see it done. The gun was borrowed from the garrison, the officers of which are exceedingly obliging to gentlemen of the circus, the tight rope or the ring. Every citizen was on the tip-toe of expectation, as the substitution of cannon for muskets in the "manual of arms" was an idea worthy of this progressive age. Unfortunately, however, the artist who was to achieve the feat fell ill and died. The performances were necessarily postponed, and the poor fellow was buried with much pomp and ceremony. Some days elapsed before the truth came out, that the coffin contained not the corpse of the actor, but the Governor's big gun, which is now in the hands of the revolutionists.

A very intelligent Irishman tells us the following incident of his first experience in America. I came to this country several years ago, and as soon as I arrived, hired out to a gentleman who farmed a few acres. He showed me over the premises, the stable, cow, and where the corn, hay, oats, &c., were kept, and then sent me in to get my supper. After supper he said to me; "James, you may feed the cow, and give her the corn in the ear." I went out and walked about thinking, "what could he mean! Had I understood him?" I scratched my head, then resolved I would inquire again; so I went into the library, where master was writing busily, and he answered, without looking up, "I thought I told you to give the cow some corn in the ear." I went out more puzzled than ever. What sort of an animal must this Yankee cow be! I examined her mouth and ears. The teeth were good, and the ears like those of kine in the old country. Dripping with sweat, I entered my master's presence once more. "Please, sir, you bid me give the cow some corn in the ear, but didn't you mean the mouth?" He looked at me a moment, and then burst into such a convulsion of laughter, I made for the stables as fast as my feet could take me, thinking I was in the service of a crazy man.

Jolly Bones says, that his wife is the best travelling trunk ever possessed by poor mortal man. She is not only always packed and ready for a go, but she frequently goes on her own hook—visiting the neighbors, gossiping, and doing various other feminine amusements, thus saving much time, which otherwise would be required to return compliments, &c., and never gets jammed by baggage smashers. She never costs anything for portage, never needs repairing, and lastly, not only has a shirt button in her possession, but fingers and thread to sew it on.

A THIEF SOLD.—STEALING A BOX OF SAWDUST FOR TEA.—The police of the Seventeenth ward last night arrested a woman named Jane Hughes, in the street, with what appeared to be a five dollar box of tea under her arm, on suspicion of having stolen it. Upon taking her to the station house, they discovered the name of the store from which it had been stolen. The owner was notified of the robbery, and the box opened, when it was found to contain sawdust. The owner appeared at the station house, and stated that the box was kept outside of the store, merely as a sign. The prisoner was discharged by the police justice.—New York Evening Post.
