Jerseymen in Newfoundland.

By H. F. SHORTIS.

In my historical researches I have devoted myself particularly to Conception Bay, and I don't think there are many things about Harbor Grace, where I was born, that has escaped my attention.

The District of Harbor Grace is full of traditions about deeds of heroism and valor and seamanship, loyalty to the Crown, and contests with all nationalities. Pirate treasures are numerous. According to the most authentic record it is the earliest settled place in the whole country.

I have listened to these stories and traditions all my life, ever since I could remember, and having retentive memory and a hobby for taking copious notes of remarkable occurrences, I have since been able to verify many of these traditions from very old manuscripts, but I pin my faith to the old family stories or "Tales of a Grandfather" as Sir Walter Scott calls them. I feel like him, as expressed in his words, "Sweet nurse for a poetic child." My environment where I spent so many happy hours at home, steeped in the congenial atmosphere of so many traditions will enable me to give some facts that I believe are worth recording. My whole intention is to get to the actual truth of our earliest history.

There is no tradition or manuscript that I have ever seen or heard of that mentions Frenchmen frequenting Harbor Grace except for a fight as in the case of the French Expedition under D'Iberville and his Indian allies in 1696 and again a few years later, but we all know that Harbor Grace was one of the principal settlements for the Jerseymen.

In most of the harbors where they settled we find the old name, "Jersey Side or Jersey Room" in use designating that these Channel Islanders or Normans as they were often called, preferred to keep by themselves, and did not amalgamate readily with the English, although they were all under the same government.

Any person visiting Placentia or Harbor Breton will readily see even to-day how distinct these Jerseymen must have kept themselves, not alone here, but many other places as well, even in New York, Jersey City has the same meaning.

The Jerseymen must have had a very strong and numerous following at Harbor Grace, as they owned both sides of the harbor. On the North Side or principal site of the harbor, in "The Dock" as the expression still goes (where the new Public Building has been erected) there was a large rock with iron flagpoles, where tradition says the Jerseymen fastened their boats. I have never seen that rock as it was covered in, and "made land" for street widening long before my time, but the tradition is clear that it was a Jersey land-mark, and that names were carved on it.

The title deeds of the property here shows that Gushues and other Jersey families were the owners, although there is none of that name residing in Harbor Grace to-day.

The Methodist records tell particularly about Peter LeSueur, a convert of the Rev. Lawrence Coughlan, who introduced this form of religion from Newfoundland to Jersey and thence to France.

Peter LeSueur was an educated Jersey merchant, who came annually to Harbor Grace about 150 years ago, and employed many fishermen. The Thistle family held a very important position there at one time. They owned all the land facing the harbor where the marine railway is now built, up to the new Post Office. There is a little private or family graveyard just back of the Anglo-Telegraph Office that belonged to this family. One tombstone dates 1783, and is the oldest record of its kind in Harbor Grace. They were prominent people, and the records on several of the tombstones show the intermarriage with the most influential families in Conception Bay.

The Martins are another family I would mention. They are a well-known Jersey family. The name was originally Saint Martin an historic old family of the Channel Islands. This family has dropped the saintly characteristic since settling at Harbor Grace.

The Normans, of Brigus, who were pioneers in our seamanship and took a prominent and worthy part in building up our Labrador industry, were from Jersey. It is said that when they settled at the Battery Head in Brigus, it was because of its great resemblance to their old home in the Channel Islands.

Now on the South Side of Harbor Grace about 100 yards west of the Public Wharf, the foundation is still pointed out of the "Stone House" which tradition says belonged to the De Quettevilles, another very old Jersey family, that had important fishing establishments in the Straits of Belle Isle. The Noels and other descendants of Jersey families are still living in this vicinity.

I have no doubt whatever that it was the Jerseymen who christened Harbor Grace from its resemblance to Havre-de-Grace. The three islands Bell Island, Little Bell Island and Kelley's Island of Conception Bay in the near distance would correspond to Jersey, Guernsey and Alderney.

Port-de-Grace is one of the very oldest fishery settlements in the bay christened by Jerseymen as there was never any Frenchmen here. The Batten family came from Jersey, and still own property in the central part of the harbor. There is a tradition in the family, that when their forefathers first built their fishing stages that there was an encampment of Red Indians just where their kitchen garden is now. This is one of the most interesting traditions that I know of, as the mention of Red Indians must take that original settlement back four hundred years or more. John Guy arrived at Port-de-Grace in 1610, before erecting his Castle at Cupids.

We know from his records that there were no Red Indians in Conception Bay at that time, and he had to go right up to the bottom of Trinity Bay before he met them. It shows how long these Jersey families have been continuous residents in that one spot, and they may well lay claim to be the oldest inhabitants of our island, and the Plymouth Rock aristocracy of the United States are not in it with the Jersey Batten family in Newfoundland.

There are many other families of Jersey descent in Port-de-Grace, Bay Roberts, Brigus and Harbor Main, some of which I will take up later on in this article.

Now let us take another view of this, and I have no doubt that it will throw further light on this matter.

We all admit that the Basque fishermen were here at the very earliest date, and there is no doubt that Spanish Bay was one of the harbors that they frequented, and it would not surprise me at all to find that both Carbonar and Brigus as well as many other places that I can mention in our country derived their names from these Spanish sailors. I have never yet felt that the proper derivation of Carbonar and Brigus had been deciphered.

When we compare these harbors with those occupied by the Jerseymen, it even makes one think that the Normans or Channel Islanders were here first as they certainly selected the very best harbors in the bay.

But now let us consider the Head Lands, where the best fishing grounds are found, and which the fishermen frequent during the summer. I think it will prove at once that the Basques were the earliest pioneers in the rough places, probably for a month or two during summer, but the Jerseymen were settlers in the safe harbors for a longer time during the year, and this, I believe, is the fact that the British Ambassadors had reference to when writing to Wm. Pitt in 1761, and being owners of the best harbors they undoubtedly considered themselves as masters of the country. Near Cape St. Francis we have the Biscayan Islands and Cove of the same name, which was undoubtedly christened by the Basques.

Baccalieu Island is another place, which has probably the most interesting nomenclature in the whole country, and I must give a few special remarks about it, as it certainly looks as if the Jerseymen superceded or managed to drive away the Basques from this locality at a very early date. Baccalieu is one of the most remarkable land-marks for vessels arriving and is a wonderfully productive fishing ground. It is not at all surprising

Good-Bye, Old Backache
Nerviline Will Fix You

Stiffness Is Rubbed Right Out—Every Sign of Pain Disappears.

Go, whiz—think of it! No more stomach dosing necessary to cure your lame back. Every trace of lameness, every bit of stiffness, every sign of weakness in the back's muscles can be rubbed away for all time to come by good old "Nerviline."

No other liniment can do the work so quickly, can penetrate so deeply, can bring ease and comfort to the back-weary sufferer as Nerviline invariably does.

Backache isn't the only malady Nerviline is quick to cure. For lumbago or sciatica you would go far to find relief so speedy as Nerviline gives. For chronic rheumatism there are pain-destroying properties in Nerviline that give it first rank. The way it limbers up a stiff joint and takes soreness out of strained or rheumatic muscles is simply a wonder.

If you have any ache or pain anywhere, if you have a sore back, a stiff neck, a stiff joint, a strained muscle—if you have lumbago, congested chest or sore throat, just try Nerviline. Rub it on plentifully—it won't blister, it can't do anything but cure you quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, but you can, from any dealer, also get the 25c. small size of Nerviline, the king of all pain-relieving remedies.

that the Basques called it Baccalieu or Codfish Island. In fact the earliest maps that we have give this name for the whole of Newfoundland. Now Baccalieu is a Frenchified corruption of the Spanish word Baccalao, and must have received this pronunciation from the Jerseymen who had given the name to Bay-de-Verde, which is the best landing place near this important headland.

Baccalieu Island is a great precipitous mass of rock rising from the ocean and it is so difficult to land there that even now during winter the Lighthouse keeper and family are the only inhabitants.

Falling Hair Means
Dandruff Is Active

Save your hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderuff right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scrub. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—the hair falls out fast. A little Danderuff to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderuff from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application, your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Second Half Million.

London Recruits One-Sixth of New Army.

About 800 men were enlisted in London yesterday for the new army. A considerable number came in by reason of the new standard of 5ft. 4in. announced in the morning, but this is still one inch above that fixed when recruiting began.

Since the outbreak of the war 600,000 have been enrolled in the United Kingdom. The War Office desire to raise an army of 1,000,000 men. London in particular has so far responded splendidly to this call, providing one-sixth of the total enlistments for the whole country. Manchester and Glasgow have also done well.

1,000 Motor-Drivers in a Day. Within twelve hours of the War Office appeal for 1,050 motor-drivers and fitters yesterday about 3,000 men applied, and by night 1,000 were ready to leave for the transport depot. The drivers get £2.2s. a week, all found, and separation allowance.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Fords Johnson, would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?
