Taking Stock.

RUTH CAMERON

Springtime is with us—in other words, the time of house-cleaning. The time when one finds out what is in one's drawers and what has gotten tucked away in one's closet and cupboards and gloryholes during the year.

Women who so arrange their work that they never have to do any special cleaning (they really do exist for I know one or two. Yes, as you suspected they live in small houses and have no families to speak of or avoid the difficulties of the house-cleaning season but they also miss that pleasant excitement of re-discovering one's possessions. We have already retrieved a missing part of the ice-cream freezer and a collar that has been hiding on me for some months.

Housecleaning Is A Domestic Stock Taking.

Housecleaning has its faults but it is a kind of domestic stock-taking, and as such has its place in the scheme of things. Which brings me to the analogy I want to draw. Why wouldn't the spring also be a good time for a stock taking in character?

In a most interesting book for "the ambitious woman in business" the author includes a self-analysis chart which employers present to their employees. The latter are supposed to mark themselves in the various subjects and then to mark themselves again a year later.

Everything From Cheerfulness To Neatness in Dress.

It would be impossible to give the list of subjects here because there are so many. But here are a few just to give you an idea: strength, endurance, thoroughness, order, enthusiasm, cheerfulness, sympathy, patience, honesty, executive ability, neatness in work, dress and person, etc., etc.

A personal stock taking would include self-questioning as to whether one had formed any new good habits? Any bad ones? One's worst faults—have they been overcome at all? Has one added any valuable new interests to take the place of those one inevitably loses? To what faults does one need to give special attention in the coming year? (I have decided that with what I most need is patience—the quiet strength to wait when waiting is necessary and not become irritable or nervous and I hope a year from to-day will find me with more of it).

Steering Not Drifting.

Stock taking and acting upon what one finds is trying to steer the ship of life instead of just letting it drift. Once more let me refer to David Starr Jordan's powerful reminder "The world stands aside for the man who knows where he is going."

At the Yarmouth M. C. A. Boy's Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Kindly tell me what should be done when one receives a card announcing the birth of a child?" asked Grace.

"You should call to inquire after the health of mother and child and leave your cards. If the mother lives at a distance, you should post your cards to the mother and above your name write 'Heartly congratulations,'" said her mother.

HAPPINESS.

Happiness is a state of bliss which is sometimes influenced by the mind and sometimes by the stomach. The savage tribes of darkest Africa depend entirely upon the stomach for their happiness, and are never so pleased as when a toothsome missionary strays into their midst and supplies them with tracts and soup bones. Civilized man, however, secures happiness by leading his mind away from people he owes and fastening upon book accounts that will stand the shrink test.

Riches do not always bring happiness.

Happiness is not sold at the department stores or quoted on the stock market, which prevents so many people from keeping a supply on hand. How many times has it happened that a man who only lacked a big, navy blue automobile to make him happy secured one by trading in his home, and shortly after was thrown through a rain-vision windshield into the clammy embrace of a barbed-wire fence. This country is full of married men who were formerly happy and gay, but who are now a mere gnat under the iron heel of an Amazonian tyrant. The bulging divorce court dockets of the United States go to show that happiness is not secured by investing in a marriage license, a Prince Albert coat and a second-hand cook stove.

Riches do not always bring happiness, either. There was probably more happiness to the square inch in this country when people were compelled to live several miles apart and ride in plain, unvarnished buckboards than there is now, when our population is divided into two classes—those who have money to loan and those who desire to borrow it. People live too close together nowadays to be real happy. If they would spread out more and lose interest in what is going on in the next house to the right, we would all be happier and live better, purer lives.

Happiness is often banished by some thoughtless, unfeeling act on the part of a relative or trusted friend. For instance, a business man may come home at night glowing with happiness and hoar frost, and find that during the day his wife has departed for South America with a hook-nosed chauffeur, leaving nothing behind but sad memories and unpaid lingerie bills. There would be more happiness in this world if people would get up close enough to the Golden Rule to see how its acts.

NO QUITTER.

UNCLE SAM

Uncle Sam is not a quitter; he is slow to shed, his coat, slow to draw his lethal weapons and demand another's goat. But when once the fuss is started, though the scrap fierce and rough, Uncle Sam will go the limit and will never say "Enough!" When the warlike captains thunder, and the brazen bugles blare, Uncle Sam will join the scrimmage, with his coat-tails in the air, he will swing his shining sabre, he will whirl his deadly brand, till the Hohens cease their zollern, and the kaiser has been canned. You will see his banners flying, as to-day you see them flung, till he fetches home the bacon, and the last dog has been hung. Though he's slow to indignation—as our neighbours long have felt—he can whip an anaconda when he tightens up his belt; oh, he'll scrap and keep on scrapping, never think to end the scrap, till the foe is shot to pieces and goes tumbling off the map; he'll conduct his red-hot riot on the sea and on the land, till the Hohens coast from zollern, and the kaiser has been canned.

The Gas Range

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife, shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Your Boys and Girls.

For the baby about to be weaned the perfectly round cylindrical bottle is best. It comes in two styles, with a neck as large as the bottle, requiring a very large nipple, and a small tapering neck which will accommodate a smaller nipple. The latter is more comfortable for the baby to nurse.

The best nipples are of plain dark rubber. Bacteria lodge in glass tubes. They rank among baby-killers. As the size of the hole is important some physicians recommend buying nipples without holes, and piercing them with hot needles. German mother past and present.

If there is some spinach left from dinner, serve it as a salad on lettuce. Garnish it with hard-boiled egg and serve with French dressing.

Always use cold water for stains of syrup, sugar and meat juice. Hot water for vegetables and various fruit stains. Wash mud stains in cold water.

Why Do You

put pictures you value away unframed in some cupboard or press where you never see them from one month to another?

¶ Why don't you have them—these pictures you love, perhaps some prized photo or engraving—nicely framed in suitable Mouldings and hang them where they can be an every day source of pleasure to the eye?

¶ We frame pictures of all kinds, are experts at selecting Mouldings that blend perfectly with any given subject, and we have a very wide range of Picture Mouldings from which you may select the frame for your pictures. Why not let us frame your pictures for you?
