The Thames on Fire.

There is a saying in use about "setting the Thames on fire," when anywine, or any kind of sudden one does anything exceptional. This actually happened on June 30, 1861, death with which the most disastrous fires in the world's history broke out in your breath, And Tooley St., near London Bridge, on that (Saturday) evening. A whole street of wharves and warehouses stocked with valuable merchantdise vored brands of purple ink, and was entirely burnt out. The fire raged for a month and the damage was estimated at many millions of pounds, for little drinks of liquid And when they've toured thousands of chests of tea, barrels of through sundry bars they climb into Russian tallow, oil and saltpetre being destroyed. The flames as they crept along were carried by the wind to the river, and soon many barges were blazing. The excitement was great as the falling warehouses tumbled over into the river with repeated crashes. he said, "About 30, mayand bids them stop, and leads them

THE GENTLEMAN. Within an elevator he Is gentlemanly as can be, He'll doff his hat, if women fair By chance with him are riding there; He'll prove by almost every test His breeding is the very best— Yet when he drives his motor car Most horrible his magners are.

He will not crowd you in a train, Nor jostle you a place to gain, In church he'll step aside 'till you Are comfortably in your pew: He'd count it a disgrace complete.
If he should step unto your feet—
Yet in his motor car he plays The hog in several different ways.

He'll cut in where he has no right And chuckle at your show of fright, The strangest conduct he'll reveal When he is at the steering wheel: Though otherwise he will admit Your right to walk or stand or sit, Out on the road he thinks that he Alone has any right to be.

He'll almost take a fender off, And then look back at you and scoff, Your peace of mind he'll oft disturb By crowding you into the curb, Even the women will not find This driver courteous and kind— Oh, gentleman, whoe'er you are Why don't you be one in your car?

A Worthy Follower of Nelson.

Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Crad-

dock, who lost his life in the Coronel

seafight, was born on July 2nd, 1862. He entered the Navy in 1875 at the age of 13, took part in the Egyptian war of 1882, and was present at the battle of Tokar in 1891. In 1892 he was first Lieutenant of H.M.S. "Dolphin," and helped to rescue the officers and crew of the Brazilian corvette "Almirante Barroza." In 1894 he jumped overboard and rescued a midshipman from drowning off the coast of Sardinia. In 1900 he commanded the British Naval Brigade at the capture of the Taku forts, and afterwards directed the allied forces in the operations for the relief of Tientsin. In 1911, when the P. & O. liner "Delhi," stranded on the coast of Morocco, he rendered valuable assistance. Three months after the outbreak of the great war he was in command of a small squadron which was cruising off the coast of Chile, his flagship being the "Good Hope." The others were the cruiser "Monmouth," the light cruiser "Otranto." On Nov. 1, 1914, Admiral Craddock met a German squadron under Admiral Count Von Spee, near Coronel, Chile. The German ships were the "Scarnhorst," "Gneisenau," "Leipzig," "Dresden," and "Nurnberg." They were superior in size and armament to the British ships, but Admiral Craddock warned off the "Canopus," which was coming up from the straits of Magellan, as her speed was insufficient to cope with the Germanss, and he ordered the 'Otranto" to keep out of danger. He then, with his three ships engaged the German five for all he was worth. Unfortunately, the British ships were in a position where the setting sun interfered with their aim, while the Germans had heavier guns and of greater range. The result was that the "Good Hope" and the "Monmouth" were sunk, and the "Glasgok" escaped. Admiral Craddock went down with the "Good Hope." A born leader, and thoroughly trusted by his officers and men, he faced overwhelming odds in his last action, joining battle in accordance with the best traditions of the British Navy, and fighting till the last. Five weeks later this same German squadron was caught by Admiral Sturdee at the Falkland Islands, and all but one of the ships were sunk. Thus our gallant Admiral Craddock was amply avenged. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Dear Sirs,-This fall I got thrown on a fence and hurt my chest very bad, so I could not work and it hurt me to breathe. I tried all kinds of Liniments and they did me no good. One bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT varmed on fiannel and applied on my breast, relieved me completely.
