Wild Scenes at Great Meeting in St. Petersburg.

GEN. TREPOFF OPENLY DEFIED

University Scholars Decide to Go On Strike and Close College Until the Autumn.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20. - 3:40 p.m. -The spirit of revolution had complete ossession of the great meeting of professors, students and directors of the St. Petersburg University, which asion of joining in the general strike, naugurated by similar institutions in Russia, and decided to close the university till fall. In anticipation of possible trouble when the meeting broke up, squadrons of Cossacks again pa-

It was the first joint meeting of students and professors ever authorized, view of the situation it was hoped the presence of the professors most of whom are in complete sympaty with the Liberal movement, would exercise a restraining influence. meeting was held in the auditorium of the university. Neva Hall being comparatively small and incapable of holding one-fifth of the four thousand students assembled. The auditorium was packed to suffocation with earnest-looking young men and women. and the doorways and window embras ares were banked with students, who held others on their shoulders. It was a strange gathering. Most of the students were poorly clad, and all were in a state of interest excitement. A small rostrum in a corner was occupied by the speakers. A bell, with which the student who presided tried to stop the thunders of applause with which the orators were greeted, was completely unavailing. From the outset student orators set the imaginathe city, but each time the fire was tion of their auditors aflame with the spirit of liberty, unsparingly denouncing the course of the Government, de reds of panes of glass across Meridan claring that promises could no longer avail, and that the only satisfaction would be freedom of speech, conscience, and the press, and the convowind.
