Expects Anti-Evolution Law To Soon Be Declared Invalid

Associated Press Despatch. Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 24-Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 24—The Scopes evolution case either will be heard by the supreme court at Knoxville next week or the hearing will not take place for some time, Dr. John Neal, Scopes' senior defence counsel, said last night. He said he axsaid last night. He said he ex-pected the court would declare the Tennessee anti-evolution law unconstitutional.

Dr. Neal said he intended to ask the court to pass the case to the heel of the docket, but it was scheduled among the opening cases, and if his request met refusal, the defence was "ready for armageddon and in our opinion was the house of light."
