altie Stories of Turkish Atrocities in Ar-17 menia Grow From Bad The to Worse. The > Experiences of the Father of the Armenians and Other Refugees.

LONDON, March 5 .- A correspondent sent to Armenia by the Associated Press with instructions to thoroughly investigate the his stories told of the Turkish atrocities in that country, under date of Tiflis, Russia, January 25, forwards the following interview with the father of all the Armenians, Mgr. Khirmiram. Mgr. Khirmiran's home is at Etzchmiadzin, in the Ararat region of Russia, within a short distance of the Turkish frontier. In an outer room of the house the correspondent met a monk in a black habit, and at the further end of the room was a man dressed entirely in red, holding a the long mace. The sanguinary appearance of this man contrasted strongly with the peace and quiet of the house. Sometimes four men were in attendance. Mgr. Khirmiran n. talked fluently and eloquently of the wrongs to of the people. Among other things he said : "The massacre in the Sassoun mountains hay we the result of a long period of Turkish mis government. In the Armenian province the witness of all kinds of Turkish oppression. In fact, about fifty years of my life have been passed in connection with the perse-cutions in Armenia. Twenty or thirty years ago the Armenians were still very low and narrow, and did not understand the cause of all the calamities which befell them. They thought their troubles were sent by heaven as a punishment of their sins. Such is always the belief of the people deprived of education and the printing press. But later, when they began to think and to understand the wicked acts of their oppressors, there came a shange and they saw clearly the real cause of their troubles.

"Among the horrible crueities perpe-trated on the Armenians during the mas-sacre I will relate the following fact, proving the ferocity of the Turkish troops and their commander Zeki Pasha : When the Armenians had surrendered, 150 of them including priests, were thrown into a large ditch alive, despite the fact that they were not wounded. Earth was then heaped on them and some soldiers were sent to watch them until they had perished. After this the massacre continued. Many people old and young, were killed, and many women and young girls were sent by the soldiers to Moosh. The bodies of the Armenians who were killed in large numbers together were buried in common graves, but the bodies of those who were killed in isolated places were left unburied. The Armenians who were not killed fled. Most of them came to Russia. Some of them are now in Tiflis. Some came to Etzohmiadin and related to me the suffer-

PARIS, March 5 .- The army estimates were discussed in the chamber of deputies to day. M. Jules Boohe, reporter of the committee, drew a comparison between the German and French armies, the latter of which, he said, was 100,000 smaller than which, he said, was 100,000 smaller than that of Germany. Moreover, Germany's forces were ready to fight at any moment. M. Roche insisted strongly upon the superi-ority of an offensive system. At this point M. Koche insisted strongly upon the superi-ority of an offensive system. At this point in his remarks he was noisily interrupted by M. Cluseret, who shouted "Panama," and this ory was repeated again and again by the socialist members until M. Henri Brisson president of the chamber was compelled to suspend the sitting temporarily. When the house was again called to order the debate was resumed and shortly after the chamber adjourned.
