SENIOR AS A NATIONALIST: Sir Hector Langevin is far too loyal a man to be suspected of any wavering in his devotion to British connection.

What a goal he has! Yes; what an eye for beauty! Indeed one of the most wonderful things about John is his perception of the beautiful.

John, they are very beautiful things; are they not? At least you wrote the above article about them in Monday's Globe.

Well, as he was returning home from meeting it seems his soul was flattered out of sudden consideration of those boulevardiers.

There is nothing like them in London. It struck his soul like an inspiration. "There's enterprise for you," he murmured to the nurse girl as he gazed upon the heavens.

It is good for her and gives the baby a chance to rest. "Yes," she answered softly, "ain't they lovely?"

But look at the rest of John's Sunday night rhapsody which for the benefit of the Mail, who ardently loves John (this disposes of another idle rumor that Griffin was once heard to say to Gordon Brown that John was a fool) we have reproduced above.

It will rank some day with Edgar and Prebaker's masterpieces. Can any one have been so thoughtful of the loveliness of external nature as to notice the delightful condition of these ornaments of our fair city?

No, John. No one can be so blind. Take the boulevardiers opposite Upper Canada college for instance. There is external nature truly.

Even the wayfarer man, though a fool, can hardly have failed to do so. In fact, John, it is not possible that the bigger fool this wayfarer man is, the more he will admire?

If any of them have been somewhat regardless of their dressings hitherto, let them cast their eyes here and there and learn wisdom. "That is what a wayfarer generally does, John; he 'casts his eyes.' But where did you learn the trick? Is that what has made you so wise, John? Perhaps it was at meat's, deacon?"

Whether they dwell in the favored regions of Peter or John street, or on Spadina avenue, or occupy a sanctuary on Church or Sherbourne street, the same story is repeated to all who have eyes to behold. How truly beautiful they are!

How lovely the grass is in its greenness! John, this is poetry! Alas! poor Edgar! Edgar's occupation's gone! (But it never paid him, poor fellow. She got all the money during that operatic tour—$10 a night and a house on Easy street ever since.)

How delightfully clean! What evidence of care and loving attention! Yes; John. How shining in its liveliness! 8 figures, waving the tired Wayfarer to sweet slumber!

Did it woo you, John? And did you sweetly slumber there, John? Ah! John! we thought you had reformed. The glass that cheers, John. We lit up a warning finger.

The next we require to entire. It is too good to cast away. I should be framed and hung in a Sunday school next Burns' Auld Lang Syne.

How like a green Letha beckoning poor mortals to bathe in it and forget their woes. At sight of it the gloom of despondency instantly melts away. It speaks of renewed hope, of all bright and beautiful things. To the lover it recalls the daisy-strewn banks where he romanced with his dearie. To the old man tottering on the verge of the grave it gives back the long-faded light of his childhood near Yarrow's beach, or on the banks of the Shannon.

Green Letha is good! So it is said! That about the year 1800, when the old man happened with his wild, wild son-in-law. How did the old man lose his fields? Couldn't he pay the rent, John? He was evicted?

But now for a grand moral close to those touching reveries, read: Blessed are the people whose rulers manifest such wisdom, such evident desire to spare no legitimate expense which may add to the beauty and comeliness of their city.

do so. Of all the evidences of prosperity and progress which Toronto abounds there are none which have attracted a greater reason to be thankful. If any of them have been somewhat regardless of their dressings hitherto, let them cast their eyes here and there and learn wisdom.

How truly beautiful they are! How lovely the grass is in its greenness! How do the hills gleam in its liveliness! What evidence of care and love, so evident in its every loving attention!

That's it, John. That will tickle Boswell to death. We wonder what favor it's yours after John? We wonder if next Sunday night you will stumble on those boulevardiers again? Do John! And then write some more about them and about those lovely, lovely wayfarers. And are those beautiful boulevardiers really in Toronto, John? Happy, happy Toronto!

ARE CANADIANS SATISFIED? The Hamilton Times rises up in virtuous indignation because the Montreal Gazette charged the grip press with favoring the separation of Canada from the empire. Yet it simulates indignation badly, for, like most people who try to maintain a false position, its real opinion shines through its disguise in spite of itself. "We are Canadians," it says, "not British, but we cannot see any urgent necessity for cutting the political or commercial connection with Britain, so long as the British people behave themselves as well as they have done for the last forty years." Yet in the same article it asserts that "this feeling of attachment (among Canadians for Britain) is not so strong with the younger generation as with their fathers and grandfathers. The young people have no personal recollection about England. This is a broad and better country. Money is king. The younger Canadian does not hesitate to 'sux his brains' by removing to Buffalo or Chicago if he can get an extra dollar a day through it by his salary by the change. Before many years the question of political separation or union will be regarded as a purely commercial one unless something occurs in the meantime to excite international bitterness.

We are glad to find our Hamilton contemporary thus speaking a word in favor of the greater freedom of Canada, even though from behind the mask of a jingo's Britishism. The odium of party prejudice restrains it, but we are satisfied it would speak more plainly. That the good behavior of the British people should be a reason why Canadians should hesitate to assert their right to complete self-government—which we do not now enjoy—is too absurd to be seriously believed by so intelligent a journal as the Times.

British connection is a matter of such direct interest to the younger generation of Canadians as it asserts, it is not the party hypocrisy of the Times to fall down and worship it. Does our contemporary see no humiliation to Canadians in being constantly told that they live by the favor of the people of England, a country as foreign to us as it is to the people of the United States? We boast of being a free people; and yet we permit another country to make the conditions that govern us and to appoint a foreigner over us as our chief magistrate and head.

Canadians have no potent voice with regard either to the one or the other; how, then, can they be said to be a self-governing people? No people are truly and completely free unless they possess the right to make or change their constitution and their rulers. Englishmen enjoy and exercise this right; Canadians have it not.

THOROUGH-GOING AFFAIR. Because the editors of the Mail and the Globe have proved themselves donkeys that is no reason why they should imagine their readers also to be of the long-eared fraternity. And of all a certain brayings that these two thistle-munchers have given forth of late the most foolish is the Dakota diabolically.

The Mail sought to injure Mr. Pardee and Mr. Hardy by having day after day that they had invested a portion of their money in Dakota and therefore were disloyal. The Globe still more foolishly set up a counter-charge. It turned the directory over and found out that John Riordan of the Mail, Senator Plumb, Sir Alexander Gait, conservatives all, have and do own land in the United States.

Though the Globe in thus taking up the Mail is the bigger fool, still as the Mail began the business it might be just as well to inform the mediocrities that there is in Toronto the headquarters of a great Dakota cattle company. The range owned by the company is one of the most extensive in the great American Northwest. The cattle on it are numbered by thousands. Now the president of this company is a well-known and eminent representative of Family Compact conservatism, Christopher Robinson, Q.C. The solicitor of the company is Mr. Henry O'Brien, conservative wire puller in East Toronto. And among the big shareholders they might mention: The tory senator, John Hamilton of Hawkebury; the tory Hamilton, David Lewis Macpherson, who is the honorable minister of the interior, and especially charged with the development of the Canadian Northwest; and his tory partner, Col. Gzowski, A.D.C. to the queen. Yes, these gentlemen are shareholders in a Dakota ranch. And what if they are?

THE CONDEMNED GIBBET. Brooklyn Eagle: Maria McCabe was condemned to death at Toronto yesterday for the murder of her illegitimate baby. The record in the court room during the passing of the sentence and the remarks of the judge afford ground for the belief that the wretched woman will escape the gallows by a commutation of the sentence to imprisonment for life. The public sentiment that regards the gallows always weakens when a woman is the proposed victim. There is something so shocking in the thought of a mother being hanged and helplessly with the feet all alone under her neck, that the most stubborn advocates of capital punishment acknowledge their reluctance to enforce it under such circumstances. Justice is rarely found who are willing to place a woman's life in jeopardy.

Passing over the error of the Eagle in trying the girl at Toronto instead of Hamilton, the reason it gives for not enforcing the sentence of death seems rather weak. A woman in such a position probably receives more sympathy than a man, but no one would be found bold enough to oppose the enforcement of the death penalty on the ground of sex alone. The public sympathy is aroused on behalf of Maria McCabe because of her youth, and her friendless position; because it is felt that she may not have been sane when she adopted so fearful a means of destroying the evidence of her shame; but above all, because the real author of her shame and crime escapes without punishment and without reproach.

There seems to have no foundation for the rumor of a plot to "dynamite" Lansdowne on his arrival. The Montreal Star thinks that the whole story arose out of a despatch sent by the Associated Press from New York to London, in connection with the Halifax case, which somehow has been misunderstood on the other side and believed to have referred to the "Circassian" and the governor general. Just after the foregoing is written comes the information, furnished by the Globe's Ottawa correspondent, that "it is asserted that the stories of feigning plots against the life of Lord Lansdowne are set afloat by friends of Sir John Macdonald, in order to justify the employment of Irish informers in the public service." It is a wonder we all didn't think of this very natural and probable solution of the question before.

THE NEW FIRE INSURANCE RATES. To the Editor of the World. Sir: I was quite amused on reading an extract from the Cardwell Sentinel printed in the World in reference to the new fire insurance tariff. The editor of the Sentinel had better study the matter before he writes about what he is in total ignorance of. In the fall the new tariff specially excepts dwelling houses, churches, schools and all buildings not specially adapted for mercantile purposes. The farmer is not asked to pay one cent more, that he did before the tariff came into force, so that the editor's appeal to the farmers falls to the ground. There are myriads of lecturers in the shape of presidents, directors and agents whom the additional rate is going to fatten up in that regard to the agents, none of whom through-out the country think much of him enough to drink, as they make presidents or directors of insurance companies in this country who have made a pile out of their positions, but I do know a good many of the men who had never invested enough money in insurance to take to qualify them for the position of directors. I do not know where the Sentinel has a good deal of cheek if he thinks that villages which have no fire insurance whatever should get their insurances effected at the same rate as in Toronto, Hamilton and London where they have efficient paid fire brigades.

STORAGE OF COAL OIL. To the Editor of the World. Sir: I wish to inform the insurance companies through your columns that in a great many places throughout the city coal oil is stored in far larger quantities than the law allows (10 lbs.). I can point out four or five places on Yonge at street where they keep from 40 to 50 barrels of stock, and yet the commissioner takes no action in the matter. If a fire happened to break out in one of these stores the fire brigade would be powerless to do anything before several buildings were destroyed. Let the insurance men raise the rates on all stores in the vicinity and I venture to say that they would soon inform the authorities when any person laid in a large stock than he ought to have. A stitch in time, etc.
