Sentiment may temporarily prevent a decline to an export basis; but we repeat that dollar wheat checked exports, and with our large surplus the intrinsic value of wheat must be fixed at about what foreign consumers will pay.

Kennett, Hopkins & Co.: Receipts in the Northwest are still liberal, but our advices indicate reduction before long. Shipments from Duluth are large, but this is probably owing to the desire to move the wheat before the closing of navigation advances freights. Sensational and inflammatory literature will doubtless delay the decline, but it seems pretty sure to come.

but it seems pretty sure to come.

R. Cochran's correspondents: Longs in corn took advantage of the light receipts and good foreign demand to market their holdings quite freely resulting in a sharp decline of the old options, while the long futures were decidedly easy. We look for a downward tendency in the latter for some time. The old options are a fancy deal. Cash oats were heavy; stocks are increasing and the new receipts do not find a ready market, except at slight concessions in price; May oats were firmer. Provisions started off strong, but yielded to the general weakness and were raided near the close by the big bears. Prices on this slump are expected to go lower than on the last one. it it seems pretty sure to come.

Henry Allen to J. J. Dixon & Co.: Mr. Gould has kept his promise. He has passed Mo. Pac. dividend, and along with the general vote he issues a financial statement's showing a deficit of about $100,000 for the current quarter. Mr. Gould's bookkeeping shows of course just what it ought to show. Incidental to the Mo. Pac. dividend passing came the failure of the New York-Boston banking house of Venner & Co. This firm has not been active as a trader in stocks, but its failure is none the less significant, for the cause of it is that they are overloaded with stocks and bonds for which there is no market. The banks are still discriminating rigidly against every sort of collateral which is not giltedged, and this is not exactly a cheering factor in the stock market. People who buy stocks likeliest to fare well in an active market have to to fare well in an active market have to

Following the recent lead taken by the grain section of the Toronto Board of Trade, the Manitoba grain inspectors have now finally dropped the "frosted" wheat grade from their classification and have adopted "Nos. 1, 2 and 3 regular" instead.

J. M. Williams & Co., the insolvent stove manufacturers of Hamilton, have settled with their creditors and resumed business.
Edwards & Co., wholesale dealers in buttons of Wellington-street, have placed their affairs in the hands of E. R. C. Clarkson. The estate will probably be wound up. The firm has been in business about eight years.
