"THE THINKER," which is designed to supply in the realm of theological literature the place filled by the Review of Reviews in current general literature, established a high reputation last year, and promises to sustain its good name during the present year.

The January and February numbers are full of interest. In the "Programme for 1893" we note that contributed articles are announced from the pens of Robertson, Sayce, Bruce Thompson, Whitehouse, Milligan, Marshall, Davison, Clifford, Kilpatrick, Bernard, Crawford, Blaikie and Beet. These, with the cream of the Reviews of different countries, will provide a tempting bill of fare for the thinking reader.

We can supply single numbers (including any back number), at 25cts.
