Usefulness of the Alphabet.
 To the Editor of THE CANADIAN PRESS
 DEAR SIR - Summer visitors are not as a rule, noted for their quietness as we are all aware. Last summer at a fashionable house in Oakville was assembled a large party, made up of visitors from Chicago, Toronto and Washington. This party was no exception to the rule and much fun and laughter prevailed among them. On being requested to continue their amusement more quietly they determined to learn the single-hand alphabet.
 After having succeeded in learning the letters, they were able to continue their conversation quietly, and were no doubt the happiest people in the pretty town. Their pleasure in no degree lessened because of being carried on quietly. And so in this case as in many others the alphabet proved quite useful.
 February, 1898. OAKVILLE.

One of our old boys writes: "I will be a subscriber forever. I saw my name in a late issue and I laughed when I read about the marriage of young ladies at the Convention. If I can get a man to attend my shop, I will go to the Convention, true."

Snow-Flukes
 falling all the night
 falling all the day
 silent into silence
 from the far-away
 stillly best unnumbered
 all the night and day
 falling, falling, falling
 from the far-away
 Never came like this
 To the fields and trees
 Never summer blossoms Thick and white as this
 To the dear old place Winging night and day follow follow follow Fold them soft away
 feeding folding falling
 fold the world away
 souls of flowers drifting
 down the winter day
 John I.
