THE FORUM

The Forum, which the New York Times says "continues to hold its place as the foremost of our magazines for the value, the variety, and the weight of its articles," is a monthly review of living subjects that concern thoughtful people; including politics, education, religion, literary criticism, social science, and commerce. It presents the conclusions and investigations of the foremost men in every department of thought; and it admits discussions of each side of all debatable subjects, striving always to be constructive, and never sensational or merely popular. Its contributors include more than 200 of the foremost writers of both hemispheres. It is offered to thoughtful readers with the hope of being helpful to them.

Teachers or students who will solicit their friends to subscribe will receive large each commissions — the largest ever given by any periodical. Several hundred teachers and students are adding to their incomes in this way. It is not the work of the ordinary book-agent that is desired, but the service of men of literary judgment whose commendation carries weight with it. Correspondance is solicited.

A sample copy (price 50 cents) will be mailed to anyone free of cost who will send names of six persons who read serious literature and are able to pay for it. Address the Forum Publishing Co., 253 Fifth Ave., New-York.

CLUBBING RATES

We have made arrangements whereby we will receive new subscriptions to the Forum with a subscription to the Étudiant for $5.00. The price of the Forum alone is $5.00 a year. It is "the foremost American review" of living subjects, and among its contributors are 200 of the leading writers in the world. It gives authoritative discussions of each side alike of every leading question of the time. The New York Herald says of it: "It has done more to bring the thinking men of the country into connection with current literature than any other publication." This is an exceptional opportunity for every reader of the Étudiant to secure the Forum.

On reçoit les souscriptions au bureau de l'Étudiant, Joliette, P. Q.
