ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP SARAH SANDS.

(From the N. Y. Captain and other sources.)

By the Lucy Wright, Captain Bailey, and Sarah Sands, Captain Thompson, we are in possession of London papers to the 21st ultimo.

As Parliament had not re-assembled the news is comparatively unimportant, but we nevertheless see preparations making for an active session.

The House of Commons has passed a bill for the relief of the British subjects who are in possession of London papers to the 21st ultimo.

It is a question asked every where, but is as yet unanswered. Austria is arming herself, and evidently draws a general insurance from the States.

MEXICO. THE MEXICAN WAR. From the Patriot.

The interest in the progress of this unjustifiable proceeding, has altered very much in character. Formerly, all eyes were turned on it, with the expectation that the once indomitable Spanish blood would have been excited to the utmost to repel an unprovoked invasion, even under the unfavorable circumstances of a general and disorganized army; and that the natural resources of the country would have been made available for the repulsion and perhaps destruction of the United States army.

At a late period, when the organized, in capacity and dastardly folly of the boasting Santa Anna met with their deserts, and the American army marched, almost without opposition, to the "halls of Montezuma," (for we call that no opposition, which consisted in firing from behind breastworks and ramparts and the enemy had marched nearly up to them), and it was obvious that nothing but a moderate degree of determination, and an apparently natural exertion of that physical courage which is possessed by man in common with most animals, were required, it was supposed that the inhabitants would have been excited to the uttermost, and that by a guerrilla warfare make the aggressors rue the day they advanced beyond the seaboard; but even this epoch seems almost passing away; and though we hear now and then of some rancorous or guerrilla enterprise, the interest of the matter as far as the war is concerned, is gone.

Now, the probable results of this war force themselves upon our consideration, and, by a reflex action, compel us to look again at the original causes, or rather pretences for it. We have no intention of going into it ourselves; it is quite enough for us to see that the progress of the war, as far as the interests of the people of the U. S. are concerned, is not such as to indicate the probability of the U. S. being again to be the victims of their military glory.

In the Senate a most talented and unanswerable exposé has been made by Messrs. Butler (of S. C.) and Bagler. The latter of the two named gentlemen has taken up the views which we formerly enunciated, of the possibility of this military man and large standing army ending in a military Dictatorship—but he looks to a President, instead of the victorious and influential General being the Dictator. In our mind the step is about being completed in the progress of General Taylor. The victorious and favorite General will become President—and the President may become the Dictator.

One of these results will take place—First, which is by far the most probable, the United States will be again to be the victims of their military glory, and the gradual diminution of their army, which must inevitably take place unless it be supported by an enormous expense, will leave Mexico once more free, nominally, but desolated and depopulated by the ravages of the war. Secondly, some ambitious and unprincipled chief may spring up in the U. S. army in Mexico, who will think that a good opportunity presents itself for personal aggrandizement by making overtures to the Mexican leaders—or, thirdly, the determination of the U. S. to annex the whole of Mexico, and to support the expenses of the war, so far as they might be incurred, will bring about a disruption of the union with or without the intervention of a military despotism.

Another circumstance worthy of observation is, that feelings hostile to the Mexican war are gaining ground, notwithstanding Mr. Polk's present influence in the matter. The influence proved by the following resolutions being negatived, inasmuch as they were voted to "lie on the table":—

Washington, Tuesday, Jan. 18, 1848. In SENATE.—After the presentation of petitions, which were fewer in number than usual, and the reports of special committees.

Mr. Mangum called up his resolution calling upon the President to submit to the Senate, "confidentially or otherwise," the determination of the U. S. to annex the whole of Mexico, and to support the expenses of the war, so far as they might be incurred, will bring about a disruption of the union with or without the intervention of a military despotism.

Mr. Sevier, of Arkansas, said the resolution had struck him at first as liable to serious objection, and upon inquiry he learned that it was intended to be referred to the Committee on the Government. He moved, therefore, to lay the resolution on the table. The motion was put and passed. Yeas 22; Nays 20.
