

Commodities, we command the most valuable things in the Universe.

ENGLAND in particular, holds from 50 to 54 degrees of North Latitude ; the Air Pleasant and Temperate, by vicissitude of Heat and Cold, as also the varying of Night and Day ; but more for the wholesome Laws, good Constitution of the Established Government and Nature of the People, whose Generosity and Valour has famed them in all parts of the known World, and the whole divided into 39 Shires or Divisions, viz. Middlesex, Essex, Kent, Sussex, Hampshire, or the County of Southampton, Surry, Buckinghamshire, Bedfordshire, Cambridgshire, Cheshire, Cornwall, Cumberland, Derbyshire, Dorsetshire, Durham, Gloucestershire, Huntingdonshire, Lancashire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, Northamptonshire, Nottinghamshire, Rutlandshire, Shropshire, Somersetshire, Wiltshire, Warwickshire, Westmorland, Yorkshire, Norfolk, Northumberland, Oxfordshire, Staffordshire, Berkshire, Devonshire, Hartfordshire, Suffolk, and Worcestershire, Herefordshire; all of them extreemly replenished with Woods, Parks, Rivers, Cities, and Towns of Note, inso-much ; that of considerable Rivers there are found 352, and on them 847 Bridges of Note, Cities 25, Market Towns 588, Parishes 8760, Arch-Bishopricks 2, Bishopricks 23, Forrests 61, Parks 752, Chaces 12, and had before the grand unnatural Rebellion, 134 Castles, but during that tedious VVar, many of them were demolished ; the whole Countrey consisting of pleasant Valleys, moderately rising Hills, flourishing Fields and Meadows, that it may suffice to live upon its own plenty, without the help or assistance of any other Nation, and for stately Buildings and many other Curiosities too many to be contained in a much larger Volume, if no other Countreys were spoken of : We must wave them, seeing we are at home, and suffer the