

his first notion of confinement—not knowing how to get into such a place nor how to get out of it. That he may take it as quiet as possible, see that the shed is entirely free from dogs, chickens, or anything that would annoy him; then give him a few ears of corn, and let him remain alone fifteen minutes, until he has examined his apartment, and has become reconciled to his confinement.

TIME TO REFLECT.

And now while your horse is eating those few ears of corn, is the proper time to see that your halter is ready and all right, and to reflect upon the best mode of operations; for, in the horse breaking, it is highly important that you should be governed by some system. And you should know before you attempt to do anything, just what you are going to do, and how you are going to do it. And if you are experienced in the art of taming wild horses, you ought to tell in a few
