LAND REFORM IN ENGLAND.

In the bill to provide for small holdings of land in England, now before the House of Commons, the Government gives evidence of an honest desire to remedy the evils of the present system, chief among which is the steady depopulation of parts of rural England, with the land under cultivation declining in area.

As a matter of fact, not more than one-third of the agricultural land in England is devoted to field crops. In marked contrast is the showing in Denmark, where the proportion is nearly two-thirds, the difference being in large measure ascribed to the small holdings of the Danes. In addition, the small farmer in England is at a disadvantage as regards fixity of tenure, besides having to put up with bad housing and unfair taxation. While land held merely to gratify the sporting shillings of its owner is assessed a few times as much as land immediately adjoining pay six or eight times as much in taxes.

The anomaly has led the Premier to assent to the principle that, for assessment purposes, land should be valued apart from the buildings or other improvements upon it. The bill, of course, largely experimental, making but a modest beginning. It empowers the local authorities and the county councils to acquire, by amicable purchase or expropriation, land suitable for small holdings. Two new commissioners of agriculture are to be appointed, who, in the event of the failure of the local authorities to act, will have power to proceed in any county in England or Wales, to take over land at an agreed price or under compulsion, and to charge the price to the county councils. Provision is also made for the leasing of property for small allotments for a period of not less than fourteen years, with the privilege of renewal. Lands are to be let in parcels of from five to fifty acres, the rental value not to exceed £50 a year, and the rent charge will be so fixed as to pay off the whole of the interest and sinking fund of the moneys expended in purchase or lease of land by the county councils. A credit of half a million dollars is to be given the board of agriculture by the treasury for the past year for buying lands to be broken up into small holdings.

The measure finds its opponents, as might be expected. For instance, Jesse Collings, once the preacher of the gospel of "three acres and a cow," now an ardent Tory, opposes it, because it does not go far enough; while others on the same side of the House object that it goes too far. Rider Haggard, who claims to have closely studied the subject, denies there is "land hunger," and does not believe the provision for small holdings in the country will check the drift to the cities. The London Times is almost savage in its attacks upon the measure. It says:

"To suppose that in any and every country successful small holdings can be set up on any land that a council may find attainable is to show sad ignorance of realities. By grouping small holdings, by giving to a considerable group a central creamery and packing-house, by connecting it by a light railway with some trunk line, and by applying the co-operative principle to its utmost extent in every way, the general run of small holders might be enabled to market their goods in such a way as to compete with the highly organized peasant proprietors of Denmark.
But without these aids the small holder in this country, apart from exceptionally favorable cases, has very little chance. Our fiscal conditions are all against him. Sixty years ago we had yeomen occupying their own land, and having all the incentives of ownership. We created fiscal conditions which drove them into bankruptcy. Is it reasonable to suppose that, with these conditions persisting, we can replace them with men lacking the initial advantage of ownership and equipment. A Government really in earnest would essay the feat in the best conditions.
It would buy well-chosen land in a ring fence, divide it into convenient holdings with adequate equipment, give them all the advantages of co-operation and uniformity of output, and see what could be made of the experiment. But, as proposed by this bill, the experiment can only lead to waste of public money, to deterioration of the soil, and to embitter-ment of the unsuccessful occupiers." However, there can be no doubt the situation is such as to call for remedial legislation, and the Government given credit for a sincere desire to set the case. The measure is rejected in the country with popular favor, and for that reason the House of Lords will scarce dare to throw it out. The fact that the Opposition, the Commons agree with the principle of the bill, but object to its details is taken as the preliminary to a grudging acceptance of it, though as yet Mr.

Balfour has not spoken.

AS TO MR. FOSTER.

It is amusing to listen to the talk of Mr. George E. Foster contesting North York in the next election against Mr. Aylesworth, and of what a battle royal such a contest would be. Mr.
Foster's achievements in this line have not been such as to warrant these vauntings. After the general election in 1900 and until he found a haven in North Toronto three years later, Mr.
Foster was a sort of wandering Willie.
He was pitted against the late Mr.
Blair in St. John, N. B., the avowed object being to keep out of the House one of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's ablest colleagues. The result showed the former finance minister to be discredited in his own province, the majority against him in a constituency of his own choosing being in the neighborhood of a thousand. His subsequent meanderings in search of a seat are still fresh in memory. After his defeat in North Ontario, a Conservative riding before Mr. Foster crossed its threshold, he apparently gave up the idea of re-entering Parliament, and took a job in high finance, where he was destined to make a reputation which hangs like a millstone around his political neck. A vacancy in North Toronto, then a Tory pocket borough, looked like a special providence for him. The Opposition was as weak in talent as in numbers, and Mr. Foster was welcomed as a needed recruit.
Sweet are the uses of adversity, but not in Mr. Foster's case. He soon showed that his troubles had not mellowed or softened his temper or his tongue. Acrimony is his stock-in-trade. As a master of vituperation he is valued by the rank and file of his party, but he inspires little respect and no affection. In the House he is wont to talk valourously against Mr.
Aylesworth, but that he thinks of entering the lists with that gentleman in a constituency historically Liberal, no one who knows Mr. Foster will for a moment suppose. From all accounts the Conservatives of North Toronto are anxious to set Mr. Foster adrift and take up Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, who is a power in that constituency, and who is said to be himself desirous of shining in federal politics. If that is the case this talk of Mr. Foster running in North York is easily explained. But it may be taken for granted that he will not readily consent to being offered up as a sacrifice with the Minister of Justice presiding over the rites.

THE PROOF LINE ROAD.

It looks as though years of negotiations over the question of purchasing the Proof Line road and abolishing the tolls thereon are about to culminate satisfactorily.

The road may be acquired for $11, 000, and of this sum $9,500 has been pledged by public bodies in these proportions:

Ontario Government .....$3,300 County Council .....2,200 London Township Council .....4,000 The township's original offer was 25 per cent of the whole, or $2,750, and the city of London was asked to make an equal contribution, but refused. The township council having agreed to pay $4,000, the city of London is now asked for only $1,500 to complete the arrangement.

The extinction of the Proof Line road tolls would be a substantial saving to farmers and villagers in London and Haldimand Townships, but the city would profit also by making free the most important highway which enters it, just as it profits by a reduction in railway fares in this district. As the chief market and distributing center in these parts, London is interested in facilitating means of ingress.

The county authorities, especially the township of London, having shown such enterprise, the city should exhibit the same spirit. The contribution asked for is a modest one, and although not provided for in this year's estimates, it may be granted without embarrassing the civic finances.

The opposition of the Conservative press to the all-red line is another evidence that its patriotism is sometimes of color.

A clergyman has been appointed governor of the Toronto jail, but his congregation would be the first to resent the suggestion that he had had any training for the work.

It is a misfortune that Prince Fu-shimi has landed just as the function at the Armories has ended. A visit to the Japanese booth would have cured him of home-sickness.

Orchard confesses that he began his career of crime by selling cheese short-weight. It is a far cry from such an offense to wholesale homicide, but after all the difference is less in kind than in degree.

One of the objects of Mr. Perks, M.
P., in visiting Canada is to look into the Georgian Bay canal project, in which he is interested as a contractor.
This stupendous project appeals to the imagination of the country, but its commercial feasibility is by no means established. It would effect a saving of hundreds of miles compared with the St. Lawrence route, but the real test would be the saving of time. A vessel must go through a canal at a snail's pace, and there would be a much greater mileage of canals, and a more tortuous course, by the Georgian Bay than by the St. Lawrence route. These are factors to be reckoned with.

PROFESSOR LEACOCK'S STYLE.

[Toronto Star.]
The Morning Post sniffs at Professor Stephen Leacock's literary style, not knowing perhaps that the professor taught it last summer at Jarrett's Corners, and is now trying it on the dog.

NO, INDEED!

[Washington Star.]
I try to love my neighbor,
To be gentle, kind and true,
And be cheerful at my labor,
And I nearly always do.
But there ain't nobody livin', Whose disposition is Contented and forgivin', When he's got the rheumatism.

NOT AFTER THAT PLACE.

[Pick-Me-Up.]
Ella—Marry you? Why, you couldn't dress me.
Edgar—I wasn't looking for a position as lady's maid.

"HOCH DER KAISER!"

Bear-Admiral Coughlan, of the United States navy, who has just retired, will be chiefly remembered because he recalled "Hoch der Kaiser" at a dinner of the Union League Club a couple of years ago, and almost created international complications by doing so. The verses are as follows:

Der Kaiser von das Fatherland Und Gott und I all things command; Ye two—Acht! Don't you understand?
Meinself—und Gott!

Vile some men sing der bower divine, Mein soldiers sing "Die Wacht am Rhein," Und drink der health in Rhenish wine, Of me—und Gott!

Der's France, she swaggers all around, She's augspeitend—she's no aground;
To much we think she don't amount,
Meinself—und Gott!

She will not dare to fight again;
But if she should! I'll show her blain Der's Kaiser (in French) she's a lorraine Are mein—by Gott!

Der's Grandma dinks she's nicht schmal beer,
Mid Boers und such she interfere; She'll learn none ones die hemphere But me—und Gott!

She dinks, good Frau, from ships she's got, Under soldiers mid der scarlet coat, Acht! We could knock dem, pouf! Like dot, Meinself—und Gott!

In dimes of peace breathe for wars, I bear der helm und spear of Mars, Und once not for den thousand Oars, Meinself—und Gott!

In fact, I humor evey whim, Mit aspect dark und visage grim;
Gott pulls mit Me and I mit Him, Meinself—und Gott!

SOMEWHAT DISCOURAGING.

[Washington Star.]
"Do you intend to go to Europe this summer?"
"Yes," answered Mrs. Gurnor, "although going to Europe isn't what it used to be.
So many people are making the trip that there isn't nearly so much chance to get superior."

TO THE WINDS.

[New York Mail.]
Tell me, ye winged winds, That, through my window blow, Do you not know that ye should Have stopped some time ago?
For south, it is not March.
Sing a more fervid tune Before the May is past, Or over it is June.
The chill wind ceased its wintry blight,
And gently answered: "Oh, all right."

EFFECTS OF ITALY.

Mrs. Money Bags—I hear you have spent a great deal of your time in Italy.
Mrs. Parvenue—Oh, yes, my dear! we're quite Italianized.

NO PAYMENT IN ADVANCE.

[Philadelphia Press.]
"Yes," said old Boxley, "my daughter is to be married next month to Lord Broke-leigh."
"Ah," remarked the friend, "everything's settled, eh?"
"Well, I guess not! You don't catch me paying in advance."

ONLY ON SUNDAY.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]
"Did I tell you the story of the old church-bell?"
"No, I haven't heard it."
"Sorry, but it can be told only on Sunday."

THE PULLMAN HOG.

[Toronto World.]
We do not refer to the Pullman Company. Unfortunately some of its patrons imagine its porcine proclivities. It may be that every man on a sleeper should have a separate stateroom, including facilities for his toilet. But he hasn't, as yet. As a rule, of a morning, twenty men must use two washstands and two mirrors between them, in not much over forty minutes.
This allows in fairness to each traveler some five minutes for his ablutions.
What is often seen?
Two young men will take a stand and mirror apiece, and, after a leisurely scrub, proceed with an exhaustive toilet, including a shave. The performance usually ends up with brushing the teeth—a graceful act of courtesy which exhilarates the man who is next to wash his face in the basin, and gives him a hearty appetite for his breakfast.

A GOOD ARCHBISHOP.

[Ottawa Journal.]
Archbishop Bruchesi, of Montreal, has accepted the post of third arbitrator in the commission which will look into the claims of the "longshoremen" of Montreal for an increase of wages. Proceedings having been instituted under the Lemieux act, this young prince of the church-for he is still a young man—might lay claim to a position among the foremost of Canadian publicists and philanthropists. He visited the Young Women's Christian Association the other day and delivered an

Kidney and Bladder Troubles

DYSPEPSIA BANISHED FOREVER

There are today in London hundreds of persons at work earning a living for themselves and families who a few weeks ago were suffering from some form of disease and unable to do any work or earn money for their families dependent upon them.
For these the sun shines brighter, the clouds have been driven from their future, and the benefits derived from Munyon's remedies, and they are thankful.

We are glad that we have been instrumental in adding Prof. Munyon to the ranks of the benefactors of humanity. A man may have a big bank account, but if he is afflicted with any ailment life is anything but pleasant. Therefore we should encourage a man like Prof. Munyon who devotes his life to alleviating the suffering of humanity.

For more than fifteen years Prof. Munyon has been advocating a law to prevent the use of cocaine, morphine and other dangerous drugs. His improved homeopathic remedies are absolutely harmless, and are prepared so that any mother can become the family doctor. That they cure and cure quickly, is attested by the thousands of testimonials that have been given by our best citizens. There is not a particle of deception in any of Munyon's statements. He has made a practice of giving away millions of his remedies every year in order that people might test them.
He has been more than this, he says to everybody, "Go to your druggist and buy a 25-cent remedy. Take it according to direction and I will refund your money." Certainly nothing could be fairer.

His remedies are guaranteed under the pure food and drug law so that the people take absolutely no risk. We join our fellow-citizens in wishing Prof. Munyon all success.

a fair measure of success. It will lose nothing in prestige through the wise tolerance of the man who steps without his own fold to invite co-operation in a work of the highest importance to society. His crusades against vice in all forms have borne fruit in practical results. His warm

Genuine English Body Brussels Carpet, full pitch, four frame, with heavy, our grade is instantly detected by looking closely at the pile. The inferior pile appears streaky; there is not sufficient wool on the surface of the carpet to cover it. It is wisest every time to get "QUALITY." We will be pleased to show our quality grade of Brussels. Patterns and colors are beautiful. Made and laid did break just a few lengths farther on. In fact, it was so soon after the mare had passed the wire that she broke, that Mr. Ferguson, the starter, made a motion as if to call the horses back, but did not do so. Before La Points could get her feet again the field had an overwhelming lead, and it looked as though she would surely be distanced. However, she finished within the flag, and was accorded the opportunity of another chance in the next heat. Elmwood, who had been reported as "not being in shape," won out in fairly easy fashion.

In the third heat La Points looked all to the good until near the turn leading into the stretch, when she broke.
Collingwood then became a contender for first honors, but he, too, went up in the air, finishing second to Elmwood, who also took the deciding heat in handy fashion.

The Running Event.
While Londoners are more familiar with the doings of the trotters and pacers, great interest was taken in the running event, and it proved the most exciting, and most evenly contested, so far as the first two horses were concerned, of the day's card.

Mizzen Mast was tipped strongly to win this event, and there are those yet who believe that the Cleveland horse can defeat Rensselaire.

Four runners lined up at the ½-mile mark when the race was called.
Victoria, ridden by Billy McLeod, took the lead on the back-stretch, and looked like a winner for a brief space. On the stretch both Rensselaire and Mizzen Mast pulled ahead of her, however, and she was hopelessly pocketed when Flying Brook, an unknown, drew up alongside of her, and the struggling leaders swung close together toward the pole. Rensselaire won out by a head.

Victoria Goes Lame.
When the thoroughbreds came up for the second heat it was learned that Victoria had gone lame, and was consequently allowed to withdraw. This heat was productive of as pretty a bit of horse-racing as man could desire, for there wasn't a space of six inches dividing the pair as they dashed under the wire.

The third and last heat was fought out by Mizzen Mast and Rensselaire, and it was nip-and-tuck to the wire, with Rensselaire having a slight advantage at the finish. Rensselaire has been the property of Mr. Morlin but eight months, and had never done anything worthy of mention previous to yesterday's race. Mr. Morlin bought her from a Petrolina man.

BASEBALL.
SAYS WALSH IS BEST PITCHER.
Cleveland, O., June 10.—Adrian Josa, leading twirler pro tem of the American League, believes Ed Walsh, of the White Sox flinger, is the greatest pitcher in the business, says a staff reporter from New York. It is not often that one twirler eulogizes the work of another in the same league, but Addie is frank in his praise of the Chicago spit-ball artist.
