After making a solemn promise that he would never again raise the issue of heresy against Prof. I. G. Chancellor McKay, whose influence has brought McMaster University to its present high and dignified position to-day, is charged with a breach of faith when he read the report of the senate at the annual convention in Hamilton, last fall, in which certain words were wred to by the chancellor, which been given to the press some time before, but not included in the report.

Dr. Harris, after referring to the declaration of faith, goes on to say: "One would have noped that after this statement, which was signed for the benefit of the senate by the mem-bers of the theological faculty, Prof. Matthews would have desisted from his attacks on Old Testament in the class room." He then quotes a long letter from a student, whom he vouches for as a "spiritually-minded young man amply qualified to make such a statement," in which the student says that he believes Prof. Matthews' teaching during the past year to have been "thoroly dishonoring to Scripture." and that "instead of being
