WILL CALL JUDGE FORBES TO STAND

He Will Be Asked to Testify in the Whittaker-Goggin Case as to the Validity of a Court Report.

A rather uncommon feature of the proceedings in the case of Whittaker vs. Goggin, which was continued before Judge McLeod in the circuit court today will be the summoning of Judge Forbes as a witness by the plaintiff's counsel, W. S. Wallace, K. C., to testify concerning the correctness of the minutes of the county court during the hearing of a case in which both parties in the present suit were the principals.

This development of the case transpired during the cross-examination of Charles S. Goggin, the defendant, by Mr. Wallace. The latter was questioning him on a statement alleged to have been made at the county court representing him as being aware that James O'Brien, another tenant, was occupying a section of the collar underneath the restaurant which Whittaker had also leased. Goggin denied that he made such a statement.

H. A. Powell, his attorney, interrupted the cross-examination at this juncture, declaring "I protest against the reading of those minutes, they were not taken before Judge Forbes, but are merely some hieroglyphics taken by somebody and expanded to suit the plaintiff's side."

In reply to a query from his honor, Mr. Wallace admitted that no court stenographer was in attendance on the session of the county court in question, but claimed that Judge Forbes, himself, wrote the notes of the case, and his typewriter transcribed them.

His honor decided that Mr. Wallace must not cross-question from the minutes, as there was no certainty that the minutes were absolutely correct. "Judge Forbes, or nobody else, can take the notes down without an error in that manner," he commented.

Mr. Wallace stated that Judge Forbes had furnished him with a genuine copy of the minutes of the judge's court.

Mr. Powell argued that the original must be produced with which his honor concurred.

Mr. Wallace then retorted that he would have Judge Forbes on the stand to give evidence of the reliability of the minutes and corroborate his (Wallace's) statement that he had received the copy from the justice.

At the resumption this morning the opening witness was Frank L. Potts, who officiated as auctioneer at the second sale of goods in the restaurant. He stated that he purchased goods for Goggin at the sale.

At one stage of the proceedings Mr. Powell interrupted Mr. Wallace during the cross-examination of the witness by the latter. Mr. Wallace resented the interruption and remarked warmly, "I'm doing the cross-examination, it isn't you."

Mr. Powell—"But you have limitations, my dear man!"

Mr. Wallace—"Yes I have, but wait until I pass them."

Goggin, the defendant, claimed that he barred the door of the restaurant after the seizure of the stock for safety. His motive in so doing was not to prevent Whittaker from securing entry.

He contended the second sale on Jan. 29, 1907, owing to a flood which threatened to freeze in the restaurant and ruin the contents. His wife, upstairs, had blown up through the water in the pipes freezing and the water soaked through the floor.

Hum Sam, the next witness examined, is a Christian, and therefore the conventional sauce breaking was eliminated. He is in addition to furthering the vestry movement for signatures in Dukes ward it will be decided whether it is advisable to push the movement in the other wards of the city as previously told of. All interested are invited.

W. B. Wallace outlined the plaintiff's case to the jury, claiming that the distress action taken by the defendant was unjustified as no rent was due. He also claimed that Goggin had realized more from the sale than the amount involved entitled him to.

Court adjourned until 2:30, when the case was resumed. It is anticipated that the addresses of counsel and his honor will be concluded at this afternoon's hearing. In this event the Dobson vs. Stevens case will commence tomorrow.

PLAQUE WILL HANG IN MAYOR'S OFFICE Emblem Reminiscent of Nelson's Victory Will be Added to City Hall Decorations.

At the opening of the new Seaman's Institute Rev. E. W. Matthews of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society presented to the mayor, in the name of King Edward VII, a plaque of Victory copper.

The mayor in accepting the gift said: "It is with pleasure on behalf of the community and the citizens of St. John that I accept with thanks this magnificent plaque which His Majesty King Edward has honored us with through your representative."

"When we look upon this plaque and think of the brave deeds of Nelson and his companions and all they did for England, we will be filled with a desire to follow the example placed before us and go forth to victory." This gift from His Majesty has brought him nearer to the hearts of our citizens and I am sure they all will join with me in saying 'God Save the King!'

His Worship said that he intended having the plaque mounted and a suitably inscribed tablet placed on it and would hang it in his office in the city building.

POLICE COURT Before Magistrate Ritchie this morning Gilbert Lauchner pleaded not guilty to vagrancy and wandering aimlessly on Union street between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning.

Night Detective Marshall testified that he stopped Lauchner at the corner of Wellington Row and as he was very non-communative he was locked up. Lauchner told Marshall that the hour was half-past ten. Marshall said the man is a son of rest. Lauchner informed his honor that he was proceeding to Fairville where he intended to hibernates until train hour when he would leave the confines of old St. John in preference for other climes. He was remanded.

Arthur Faulkner, the ninth individual to be taken into custody on the Water street harbor front, was remanded for intoxication and Ronald McDonald who was also arrested by Marshall was fined $4 or 10 days.
