What It Cost to Be Square. When the Boston Red Sox wound up the World's Series and precluded the possibility of another game in Boston, it cost the Boston club close to $400,000 and the Philadelphia club the same amount for this reason. There is $85,000 or so in the Red Sox club's treasury received from purchasers of tickets for a three-game series; which must be re- al Commission would have received 10 per cent in the event of a third Boston game and the club would have split the rest 50-50; the same thing would have applied to the sale of the various admission tickets on the day of the game. Consequently, the Red Sox owner is actually $35,000 to $40,000 out of pocket in real money because of his team cleaning up. Yet some benighted persons—only a few to be sure—have to "be shown" each year that the players try to win up this series in short order!

The Braves That Are No More.

Just a year ago the Braves won the World's Championship, and more than half of the twenty-five men then on the roster who were eligible to take part in the series have ceased to be members of the Braves' squad. The first to leave the old champions were Whitted and Dugger, in a trade for Magee, and their departure was followed by that of Leslie Mann and Charley Deal, who slipped to the Federal League. When the team was working its way north after the spring training trip Stallings sold southpaw Emig Cottrell to the New York Yankees, who later relegated him to Richmond. Pitcher Gene Cochrane was sold to Toronto while the season was still young. Later the Maple Leafs turned him aside, and where Gene, a member of the world's champs a year ago, when he collected $2,708 for his world's series share, is today nobody knows. The veteran, Otto Hess, late in the spring was released unconditionally and is now pitching in the Southern League. "Little Dick" Crutcher was the next to go. His stop was Jersey City and that team. When the Braves were going badly early in June, President Coffey let outfielders Larry Gilber and Ted Cather go, sending both to Toronto. Ted later was moved to Jersey City, Bill Martin, a month later, was unconditionally released, and celebrated the event by getting married. Catcher Bert Whaling and outfielder Herbert Moses were sold to Venice of the Pacific Coast League, and others who were prominent a year ago may make a change. The Braves of a year ago still on the job are Evers, Rudolph, James, Gowdy,

Tyler, Smith, Maranville, Davis, Strand, Connolly, Schmidt and Fred Mitchell. Tom Hughes joined the team a year ago last month, but was not eligible to play in the world's series. In the big league you have to keep delivering to stay up. If you doubt it, ask any of those ex-Braves.

News of the Boxers

Willie Ritchie and Promoter Billy Gibson were badly injured in an automobile accident in New York on Wednesday. Joe Berger, amateur featherweight champion of Chicago is going to quit type sticking and box professionally. A benefit that was to be tendered Honey Melody in Boston next week has been postponed indefinitely. Gus Christie has been matched to box Tom Burke in St. Louis Oct. 26. Battling Nelson is after a bout with Freddie Welsh, but even though Welsh is the champion, Nelson does not propose to agree to Welsh's exorbitant demands. The manager of Welsh, replying to Nelson's message offering Welsh $10,000 to box him at Juarez indicated that he and not the Dane would make the terms.

Nelson can have a match with Welsh for half the money Ritchie was paid" is the substance of his wife. "Welsh will fight 20 rounds for $10,000. He will sign for a 30-round fight for $250 for each round over the 20 and a 40-round fight for $1,000 a round all rounds over 30. Also he will beat $100,000 that he can beat the Dane. This makes $24,000 Welsh would want as a guarantee for a 40-round battle.

"That's a crazy idea" says Nelson. "Assuming that Welsh could stop me in a round which isn't possible, would he get me sixty-five rounds just to get all that money?" Nelson has wired Pollock in reply that such a proposition is out of the question.

Medio to Meet MacDonal

Hullfax Echo:—Johnny Medio and Roddie MacDonal have been matched to meet in fifteen rounds in the Arena on next Wednesday night. Medio was still sore this morning from the grueling match of last night. He will remain here until his match of next week. He had been scheduled to meet Joe White in Gloucester on next Monday night, but he has postponed that engagement. Joe White recently got a decision over Mike Glover. Medio has also been matched to meet Ray Wood.

King's Horse Wins

King George's three-year-old Friar Marcus won the Great Eastern Handicap at the Newmarket first October meeting. This was a six furlong race worth 205, and had a good field of eighteen starters. Friar Marcus carried 108 pounds, and came from behind to win a hard race and beat the three-year-old Wornlighton a long head. He was giving ten pounds to the winner and fifteen to the third horse, the four-year-old Dolabella. The time was 1:13 1/5, and Friar Marcus was a 10 to 1 chance. This was not only the first success for Friar Marcus, but the first victory for the King's colors all year, though his horses have run many races, and have frequently been placed.
