CANADIAN PLUCK.

A Successful Canadian Business Extended to England.

Although but a short time in that Country the Press Pronounces the Success Phenomenal.

We have much pleasure in reproducing the following article from the Montreal Witness, relative to the success in Great Britain of a well known Canadian firm. We have done business with the firm in question for a number of years and can heartily endorse what the Witness says concerning their honorable business methods, and the care exercised in the publication of the articles appearing in the press relative to their preparation. These cases are always written up by influential newspapers in the localities in which they occur, after a full and thorough investigation that leaves no doubt of their impartiality and truthful character. We are quite certain that the confidence reposed in the firm and their preparation is not misplaced:—
"The phase 'British pluck' has become an adage, and not without good reason, for wherever, enterprise, courage or 'bull-dog tenacity' is required to sweep away or surmount opposing obstacles in order that the pinnacle of success may be reached, you are sure to find a true Briton never flinches, and facing all obstacles works until success has been achieved. This same 'British pluck' is a characteristic of the native born Canadian, and there are very few walks in life in which it does not bring success as the reward. This much by way of prelude to what bears every indication of being a successful venture on the part of a well-known Canadian house. When it was announced a few months ago that Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, intended establishing a branch of their business in the motherland, there were not a few who were inclined to be sceptical as to the success of the venture, while some boldly predicted failure. 'There would be an objection,' they urged, 'to taking up a colonial remedy,' 'their business methods differed from those prevailing in Canada,' 'the field was already crowded with proprietary remedies long established, and well advertised.' These and many other objections were urged as reasons why the venture was a doubtful one. But Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. was not to be deterred by any objections that might be raised. They had unbounded confidence in the merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and the pluck to back up their confidence with their cash. This latter is well known to Canadian newspaper men, who know that less than three years ago the company first put upon the market in the form of Pink Pills a prescription which had previously only been used in private practice, and with a skill and audacity that has not been surpassed in the annals of Canadian advertising, pushed it in the face of all competitors. Of course, the remedy had to have merit, or this could not have been done, and it was the company's sincere belief in the merit of their remedy that endowed them with the pluck to place their capital behind it. It was this same conviction that merit, skilfully advocated, will command success that induced them to venture into competition with the long-established remedies of the motherland. And we are glad to know—indeed we believe that all Canadians will be glad to learn—that short as is the time the Dr. Williams' Company has been in that field, their success has been rapid and ever increasing. As an instance of the success the 'Chemist and Druggist,' the leading drug journal of the world—and probably the most conservative—in a recent issue states that the success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in Great Britain has been unprecedented and phenomenal. While, no doubt, it is the merit of the preparation that keeps it there and makes it popular with the people. There are few newspaper readers in Canada who have not read of the cures, that to say the least, border on the marvellous, brought about by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and already we see by the English papers that the same results are being achieved there. Is it any wonder then that Pink Pills are popular wherever introduced? We have done business with this firm for a number of years. We have found them honorable and reliable, and worthy of credence in all that they claim for their remedy.
We cannot close this article better than by giving in a condensed form the particulars of a striking cure in Nottingham, England, by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The cure is vouched for by the Nottingham Daily Express, the leading journal of the Midland Counties.
"The picturesque suburb of Old Basford some three miles from the market place of Nottingham has just been the scene of an occurrence which has excited considerable attention among the local residents, and of which rumors have reached Nottingham itself. The circumstances affect Mr. Arthur Watson of Old Basford, formerly an employe in the bleach yard at Messrs. H. Ashwell & Co.'s hosiery factory in New Basford, and afterwards employed at the Bestwood Coal and Iron Co.'s factory, near Nottingham. In consequence of the gossip, which has been in circulation with regard to this case, a local reporter called on Mr. Watson, at his bright little house, situated at No. 19 Mountpleasant Whitmoor road, Old Basford and made inquiries as to the curious circumstances alleged. The visitor was met by Mrs. Watson, but Mr. Watson himself immediately afterwards entered the room, looking very little like the victim of sudden paralysis. He told the story of his life's health as follows: In boyhood he was prostrated by a severe attack of rheumatic fever, which after his slow recovery, left behind it a permanent weakness, and uncertainty of action in the heart and he had always been debilitated and more or less feeble. On giving up his work at Messrs. Ashwell's bleach factory, he sought change of employment and undertook the work of attending to furnaces at kilns at the Bestwood

Coal and Iron Co.'s Work, being at the time an out-patient at the General Hospital, Nottingham, where he was treated for weakness of the heart. The circumstances of his work at the furnaces were somewhat peculiar. Exposed on one side to the extreme heat of the furnace he was attacked on the other by the chilling winds which proved so distressing to many people last October, and one day in that month he was suddenly prostrated by a stroke which had all the appearance of permanent paralysis, and was pronounced such by the doctors who attended him. The course of the stroke appears to have been down the entire right side. His leg was entirely powerless, and he was unable to stand. He could not lift his right arm from his side or from any position in which he was placed. His face was horribly distorted, and the organs of speech completely paralyzed so that he was able neither to stand nor speak. His condition is described by those acquainted with him as being most pitiable. He lay in this condition for more than three months suffering intermittently considerable pain, but more afflicted by his utter helplessness than by any other kind. His wishes were indicated by signs and feeble mummings. The distortion of his face was rendered more apparent by the ghastly pallor of his features, and he lay in bed anticipating nothing better than that death should eventually relieve him of his helplessness.
The Rev. Walter Cooper, Wesleyan Methodist minister, whose flock have their spiritual habitation in a substantial building in High street, Old Basford, took a pastor's interest in the case of this unfortunate man and is acquainted with the circumstances from almost first to last. A week or two ago Mr. Watson began to astonish all his neighbors by the sudden improvement in his appearance and capacity. He is able to walk about and his right arm, which was formerly perfectly incapable of motion, is now moved almost as readily as the other, though the fingers have not yet recovered their usual delicate touch. Perhaps the most striking circumstance, however, is the great improvement in the personal aspect of the man. The deformity of feature caused by the paralysis is entirely removed. His speech is restored, and the right leg, the displacement of which kept him in his bed or chair, has now recovered its function so completely that he is about to take some out-door work in Basford and Nottingham.

Questioned as to the cause of this remarkable improvement in a case universally regarded as incurable by the medical profession, Mrs. Watson, wife of the patient, unhesitatingly attributed her husband's miraculous recovery to the use of a medicine called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and brought into considerable prominence by the publication of some remarkable cures affected by their means in Canada and elsewhere. "Since I have taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," said Mr. Watson, "I have unquestionably been better not only than I was before the stroke of paralysis seized me, but than I have been at any time since my boyhood," a statement confirmed by Mrs. Watson, who said the appearance of her husband now was proof of the enormous improvement in his health. "The pills," she said, "seem not only to have cured the paralysis of the face and legs, but to have effected a most remarkable change in his general health."
Mr. Watson was always remarkable pallid and of a sickly appearance, but the ruddy glow of the patient's face confirmed Mrs. Watson's words. I assure you, she said, we can speak in the highest possible terms of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Nothing either at the General Hospital or from the doctors, who have attended my husband at different times, has done anything like the good which the few boxes of Dr. Williams' Pills he has taken have effected, and, under Providence, we feel he owes his life and his restoration to work and usefulness to this wonderful medicine.
Mr. Charles Leaysey, Insurance agent, at Cowley street Old Basford, has among other neighbors been deeply myved by the sufferings of Mr. Watson, and profoundly impressed by his miraculous restoration to health. The case has, in fact, been a topic of conversation in the entire neighborhood.

Attention is drawn to the circumstance that every fact in the above remarkable history is vouched for by independent evidence, which it would be morally impossible to doubt. It is shown by conclusively attested evidence that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the ordinary sense, but a scientific preparation, from a formula long used in regular practice. They are shown to positively and unfailingly cure all diseases arising from impoverished blood, such as pale and sallow complexion, general muscular weakness, loss of appetite, depression of spirits, anemia, green sickness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, pain in the back, nervous headache, dizziness, loss of memory, early decay, all forms of female weakness, hysteria, paralysis, locomotor ataxy, rheumatism, sciatica, all diseases depending on vitiated humors in blood, causing scrofula, rickets, hip joint diseases, chronic erysipelas, catarrh, consumption of the bowels and lungs, and also invigorates the blood and system when broken down by overwork, worry, diseases. These pills are not a purgative medicine. They contain nothing that could injure the most delicate system. They act directly on the blood, supplying to the blood its life-giving qualities, by assisting it to absorb oxygen, that great supporter of all organic life.
These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, of 40 Abchurch Lane, London, England, (and of Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y.) and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrappers at 2s 9d a box, or 6 boxes for 13s 9d. Pamphlet free by post on application. Bear in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form trying to defraud you and should be avoided.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all chemists or direct by post from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company from the above addresses. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medicinal treatment.

A REMEDY FOR CHOLERA.

It is a Simple One and Said to be Certain in Action.

Mr. Lane, an Eastern traveller and Orientalist, recommends the following treatment for cholera.
He says while residing in Cairo, in 1843, while cholera was raging there, he was informed that there was an Englishman in a small neighboring village that effected a speedy cure in all cases which he had an opportunity of treating. The number of cases was sixty-two, and many of them were very malignant.

I subsequently learned that his mode of treatment was practiced with equal success in Spain, Constantinople and India, and was never followed by typhus or typhoid fever, which proved fatal in many cases, when the cholera itself had been subdued by other means. Upon applying to him I received the following directions, which I practiced in a few cases which occurred in my house and elsewhere, with invariable success. If the patients have not vomited the poisonous matter which is characteristic of the disease, and which resembles rice water, give a tablespoonful powdered mustard in a tumbler of cold water as an emetic. After vomiting, whether produced by the disease or the above means, within a few minutes give a wineglassful of brandy, with ten grains of capsicum, powdered (cayenne pepper), stirred up in it. This generally produces almost immediate relief, and within an hour rest, perspiration and sleep. In a few cases it was found necessary to give half a dose of the brandy and capsicum after half an hour or more. A second half dose was never required, but should it be required it may be given. No other fluid should be drunk before recovering. To accelerate convalescence it has been suggested that fifteen drops of mixture of the spirits of ammonia and sulphur ether in equal parts may be advantageously given three or four times during the following day. The above quantity of brandy and capsicum is for an adult patient suffering a severe attack; in other cases two-thirds or half that quantity may suffice, as I have proven by experience.

Two Brave Boys.

Two poor lads were foraging for fuel on a branch line of the Erie Railway, when a train suddenly approached under full headway. The younger boy was on the track filling a sack with half-burned pieces of coal. He did not see the train until it was almost upon him. His companion, undaunted by danger, sprang forward, and seizing him by the waist dragged him from under the engine wheels, but not before one of his legs was crushed and mangled.
The rescuer who had displayed as much self-possession as courage, was a boy of twelve. He waited a moment expecting that the train would stop, but when it passed out of sight and he perceived that there was no help at hand, he quickly determined what he would do.
It was a lonely reach of railway, without a house near by. He would not leave the boy, who was apparently dying. He remembered that there was a police station half a mile distant. No time was to be lost if his companion's life was to be saved.
He took the boy up into his arms and staggering under the weight trudged along the railway track in the direction of the police station. It was the longest half-mile he had ever known, but he made it without a halt. Breathless from excitement he carried his burden up the station steps and laid it gently on a bench. Then he fainted from sheer exhaustion.
The police telephoned for an ambulance and had the wounded boy removed to a hospital, where the surgeons found his leg frightfully mangled. He seemed to have caught the brave, patient spirit of his rescuer. The dressing of the wounds and subsequent operations were tedious and painful, but the nine-year-old patient set his teeth together and without whimper or tear endured what he had to bear. The surgeons amazed by his fortitude, called him the bravest patient whom they had ever known.
Heroism retains its quality in commonplace surroundings. These neglected boys with their grimy faces, ragged clothes and sacks of tinder pickings were very humble figures. No passer-by would have given them a second thought.

Steam.

What is called a cloud of steam, coming out of an escape-pipe, is not steam at all—it is a condensation of steam. Steam cannot be seen. Look at the spout of a teakettle, in which the water is boiling and between the outer end of the spout and the vapour cloud that comes from it you will find a clear space. The steam is there, invisible, but when it comes in contact with the air it condenses and becomes visible as a little cloud.
