At the July session of 1895 the coun-cil passed a resolution instructing the commissioners of Rothesay to relieve L. J. Almon of his road work from year to year till he becomes reim-bursed for the cost of 600 feet of plank sidewalk he had laid down in the village. The commissioners recently reported that they could see no legal SCOTT ACT MATTERS. The special committee on Mr. Weyman's claims reported that a settlament had been arrived at, the council to pay him $1,200 in full for all claims the end of 1895.

Ex-Warden Moore, chairman of the committee, explained the report at some length. He said the inspector had suits pending against the county for salary and damages; that at yes terday's meeting Mr. Weyman made a claim for $2,200, but after several concessions on both sides the sum of $1,200 was offered, and accepted by Mr. Weyman. There was no doubt, that W. had been badly treated in the past and that he had a good claim against the county. By this settlement there was a reduction of $1,000 in the claim. cover Mr. This settlement did not McCully's fees or the cost of defending the municipality. The warden said that $1,443.65 would cover all the costs as well as Mr. Weyman's claims. The case of Galla-gher, who was dismissed as valuator of Westmorland, cost that county a man's action. Thus quietly ended the trouble with the inspector, to whom the majority of the special committee recommended that a generous salary be given for the current year. Coun. Moore submitted a resolution affirming the desirability of obtaining such legislation as would enable the county to build an almshouse. He explained that the object was to make it legal for two or three parishes to assess themselves for an almshouse, instead of not less than five parishes, as provided by the present act. That would not affect in any way those parishes that did not desire to adopt the almshouse system.

Coun. Palmer suggested it would be well to make this clear in the resolu-tion, which was very vague.

Coun. Helms feared it was an attempt to trap the whole county into building an almshouse. The resolution was amended by the mover to meet Coun. Palmer's objec-

The warden made a clear and very forcible explanation of the terms the present act, showing that the cost of buying a poor farm and erecting an almshouse would only fall on those parishes that came in under the law. Coun. J. Montgomery Campbell supported the resolution and expressed the fervent hope that the time would oon arrive when the inhuman practice of selling the poor by auction would be abolished.

The warden instanced the experience of Moncton, Chatham, etc., to show that the result of building an alms house was to largely cut down the assessment for the support of the poor.

He was thoroughly satisfied that it would pay the parishes of Kings to take this step. Coun. Palmer opposed the adoption of the scheme so far as his parish was concerned. It might suit Sussex, where the form had improverished the Road surveyors-Saml. Adams, Jas. Walton, John Brundage, John Hamilhere the few had impoverished the ton, LeBaron Lacy, Chas. W.
