So much by way of introduction. It is really with the future rather than with the brief past of the Canadian Synod that we are most concerned. There are many matters of vital interest to be considered, debated, and per-haps concluded at Quebec next month. The proval. It is very questionable Bishops shall sit with the lower house, comprising the clergy and laity, with the primate presiding, of course. At present the houses sit separately.

But there are other notices of motion of more practical importance, two especially needing most careful consideration at the hands of both the upper and lower houses. Among the memorials and communications to be considered is a resolution adopted by the all American confer ence of bishops held in Washington in October, 1903, respecting Christian uaion. It is doubtful whether the Anglican communion will see its beth quadrilateral several years ago,

It is interesting to note with respec tainly be found that the committee of the prayer book adapted to Canadian use, or an addition by way of an appendix with services for some special ccasions, that the diocese of Toronto sends a memorial "respecting the pub lication of an addition to the Book of Common Prayer," The diocese of Montreal sends a memorial "respecting the publication of a Canadian edition of the Book of Common Prayer." The diocese of Huron memorializes the synod "respecting the adaptation of the prayer book to the requirements of the church in Canada." The diocese of Toronto deals with a practical aspect of the case as it sends a memorial "re specting the form of printing and the opyright of an addition to the prayer ook." The dioceses by the sea have nothing to say by way of communication or memorial as to the prayer book.

Judge Savary of Nova Scotia proposes a canon "of differences between ministers and the congregations, and the dissolution of the pastoral connec tion." It is claimed by some laymen that a rector is too secure in his rights. If there is trouble with the congrgation, his salary may be cut down to a him from his rectorship, even with the aid of the bishop. Of such this diocese had an experience some few years ago. But it was perhaps the solitary case in the history of the dioese. Judge Savary proposes to provide for the constitution of a board of reference, consisting of presbyter and lay representatives by the bishop and "aggrieved parishioners," who shall act as triers in the matter at issue, and make a recomnendation to the bishop, subject to his approval. If necessary, the clergyman may be required to relinquish his connection with the congregation in
