

A Scripture Exposition. BY REV. G. H. BRIDGES. Matthew vii. 13-19.

Enter ye in at the strait gate. The strait gate. Very unpopular. Great ones will recommend to you great liberalities...

Take the name of Jesus with you. Child of sorrow and of weeping. He did not quote this rabbi or that, or propose this or that theory for their thoughtful consideration...

It was little more than a whisper-song; but as I look back upon the words of the choir, a glad smile spreads over my face, and my heart seems to gather strength from his heart as he looked rather than sang.

Disciple! Behold Thy Mother! It is one of the happy thoughts in Dr. R. A. Stone's lecture on the Gospel of John that he stores the N. Y. S. S. Association, published by Am. Great Society...

Secret Faults. That wonderful 19th Psalm contains, among the petitions of David, one that he had heard from "secret faults."

What was some power the gifts give us. To see ourselves as others see us. It was from some a blunder free us.

She's Corban. "O Lord," murmured Sue impatiently, "I have just seen the young man, as she came in from school; and truly the prospect was not very inviting."

Doing God's Errands. Hester was a little girl who was trying to love and serve Jesus. And she showed her love for Jesus by seeking to please him in all she did.

How beautifully Professor Neville puts the following on giving: The great mistake which seems peculiar to our nature, is that we are ever conversing with happiness with the idea of receiving, and are always thinking of giving as of a loss to ourselves.

Accepted. I had been sitting alone in the little chapel for some time, busy at the organ in preparation for a meeting, and was about to leave the room, when an old man who had been in the reading-room adjoining came toward me, and, lifting his hat, said: "No, sir, I cannot comprehend it."
