Scanfes,-No one, perhaps, has had more Ecanics.—No one, perhaps, has had more experience in the treatment of itch than Dr. Hardy of the Hopital St. Louis, who has lately published the treatment adopted at that hospital. The whole of the body, excepting the head, is first of all scrubbed for half an hour with black soap, [a very inferior soft soap, made with fish oil, or refuse grease and potash], to clean the skin and remove foreign particles adherent to it. The patient is next placed in a warm bath, where he remains for an hour, and continues to rub himself with the soap. Under this treat-ment, the epidermis becomes swollen and macerated; the furrows between the acari are opened; and the skin prepared for the final friction with an ointment, consisting of sixty-four parts of lard, twenty of sulphur and eight of carbonate of potash, previously dissolved in eight of water. This ointment, thus employed, is a veritable parasiticide.— It should be rapidly rubbed over the whole of the body, and the clothes put on without removing it, as it is requisite for the oint-ment to be in contact with the skin for several bours.

During eleven years, 37,429 patients have been subjected to this mode of treatment; and of all these, but 535 have required a repetition of the treatment, thus showing that sixty-nine out of every seventy have been eured at once by it.—British Medical

THE REGENERATION OF BONE .- M Ollier has again called the attention of the Societe de Chirurgie to this subject. Accor. ding to his experiments, the regeneration of bone is a settled fact. It occurs most readily and rapidly and certainly, in the long bones. The preservation of the periosteam is an essential condition, In the case of the long bones, the extremities remain a long time in the state of cartilage before they consolidate into bone. The flat bones may be reproduced from their external periosteum. M. Ollier has in this way produced a solid bony covering for the nose out of flaps of periosteum taken from the frontal bone. The internal periosteum of the cranium, the dura mater, will also produce ossification. The mucous periosteum of the nassal fossæ, and of the palatine arch, also produces bony matter; but the production takes place slowly, requiring five, six, seven, and even eight months for its completion. The short bones may likewise be reproduced. M. Ollier has reproduced the calcaneum, the cuboid bone. etc., in animals. The new bone he says, in these cases sometimes attains a size even larger that that of the original bone. Certain conditions are necessary for the success of the regeneration; and of these, especially, he refers to the thickness of the periosteum, and its firmness.—British Medical Journal.
