feet to the fifty yards of gelid slipperiness that now graces their campus." We advise all the Juniors to take the hint and give a helping hand to their disinterested officers.

The Masters of Games during the past term have had a monopoly on the handballs, footballs, baseballs and other athletic paraphernalia. The Editor was present when the following resolutions were adopted in a meeting held by the Wont-be-fooled Club:
"Whereas, we have appointed the Masters of Games, and whereas, they wish to have first kick at the football, and first game with the handball, and first strike with the bat; and whereas, they wish to be served with candies and nuts before bringing out the games, and whereas, they will frown if you do not flatter them, and whereas, they do not show a gentlemanly spirit in the gymnasium; Be it resolved, that we, the Won't-be-fooled Club, raise our indignant voices in protest against above-stated conduct and do hereby declare that if they do not be more considerate, they shall most certainly lose their positions and fall into the entire dishonor of the small yard."

The small boys have raised their voices to a high pitch of indignant disapproval at one special abuse introduced into the yard by the Seniors. The former observe that these older gentlemen from beyond the picket fence have allowed professional handball to be played by their fellow students. Now we do not object because a few players have left the amateur ranks. We do object, however, to the action of these professional "handball sharks" who take possession of the small boys' alley in order to play their games. We want this abuse of rights to stop at once, gentlemen : otherwise we shall publish your names in our next issue.

It is pleasant to remark the cheerful countenances that are displayed by the Juniors during the hours of recreation. A general athletic spirit prevails. Each boy participates in some healthinvigorating sport. Footballs are abusively kicked about by crowds of enthusiastic Rugbyites, whilst the fence that surrounds
