Dear Mr. Meighen:

I am hoping to be able to get to Toronto on the coming week-end and would very much like to have a long chat with you.

It is probable that you do not ^{go} come to your office on Saturday and in that case it might be more convenient to see you on Monday. I expect to spend the whole of both days in the city and, since no part of the trip will be more pleasant than my visit with you, I can make myself available on either day.

At the present time I am at the Archives preparing my paper on the making of the first Borden cabinet.

The other night I sat in the gallery of the House of Commons with Eugene Forsey, who recalled that he sat as an observer when closure was applied in 1912.

Yours sincerely,

Heath N. Macquarrie
