CALLED FOR $1,200.

THE COURT ORDERS GAMEY TO PRODUCE

The Money He Borrowed From Frank Sullivan—A Cab Driver's Story—Another Session Likely on Wednesday to Hear Evidence About a Drive.

Toronto, May 18.—The evidence in the Gamey case was practically concluded on Saturday.

At the opening in the morning G. R. Bartlett, paying teller of the Ontario Bank, produced statements prepared at the request of the prosecution relating to transactions in September last which might throw some light on the investigation. After some questions he stated that, though he had worked for days, he could find no trace of the time when the $100 bills which Gamey alleged to have received were paid out of the bank, nor through whose account they passed.

Mr. Smith, manager of the bank, was called, but could throw no light on the subject, although diligent search had been made.

Mr. Gamey was called by the Chancellor to produce his account book referred to the previous day. It covered a period of October, 1900, to March, 1901, and was supposed to include all his financial dealings, but had no reference to $1,500, half of the $3,000 said to have been divided with Frank Sullivan in September, and $1,200, which he said he borrowed from Sullivan, or $900, which he said in Buffalo was gathered during the summer, but which he testified was part of that $1,200, or of $500, which he said was half of the $1,000 divided with Sullivan in January. He further said he had no books which did contain references to these sums except the bank books.

Some more positive information had been furnished the prosecution that a package of bills was missing from the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, and after search was made by Mr. Stratton, the President, said he had taken it, and could replace it. But Messrs. Henry Butler, ledger keeper, and Lee Atkinson, paying-teller, of that company, and W. D. Northgrave, accountant of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, testified that they never heard of any such thing.

Mr. Patrick Maher, liveryman, produced his books to show that Mr. Stratton had engaged a carriage to leave the Parliament buildings on Sept. 11th at 9.30. The carriage returned at 11.30.

William Green, the driver, testified that he drove Mr. Stratton and two ladies on that day from the buildings to various places. He did not remember whether Mr. Stratton returned to the buildings, but he was back to the stable at 11.30.

He was very exact as to the length of time Mr. Stratton was in different places, but in cross-examination by Mr. Riddell his memory proved very defective. He could not remember how long he waited at the buildings before starting, or how long Mr. Stratton and the others were in the different places, and some questions he refused to answer. The books showed that the carriage was at McConkey's, but he said he did not drive Mr. Stratton there, and did not know why that entry was made. He finally swore that this drive really occurred on the 11th, and wound up by swearing that the drive occurred about a week after the Exhibition closed, and was surprised to learn the 11th was in the middle of the Exhibition.

In his direct examination he stated that Mr. Stratton lived at 71 Queen's Park, and Mr. Riddell proceeded to examine him as to how often he drove Mr. Stratton from there.

In reply to Mr. Riddell, he expressed surprise to learn that it was Mr. Strathay, and not Mr. Stratton, who lived there.

Mr. Howarth, receiving teller of the Ontario Bank, recalled, said that the $900 deposit by Gamey on September 11 was not made in the morning of that day, and thought it was about 2.30 in the afternoon.

In cross-examination he admitted that he judged from the appearance of the item in his books.

To the Chancellor he said he could not contradict anyone who might swear the deposit was made in the morning. "That is all the evidence," said Mr. Riddell.

In reply to the Chancellor Mr. Riddell remarked that it was evident that Green was entirely mistaken about Mr. Stratton. Mr. Johnston filed a copy of The Globe of January 30 with the Gamey interview, and Mr. Marston a copy of The Globe of October 1, containing Premier Ross' "fight" speech at Newmarket, and a paper of Feb. 24 and 25, with the Premier's calculation of the majority as the result of the bye-elections.

Thos. Horder, bookkeeper at the Walker House, testified that Dr. Arthur arrived there on January 13.

Charles E. Tweedie of the Observatory, produced the records of the weather for September 9, showing that there was rain without cessation on that morning from 8 a.m. to 1.40 p.m. Over half an inch of rain fell and this was unusually heavy. The records also showed a severe thunderstorm during that time. It would be uncomfortable on the streets.

This was the morning that Mr. R. J. Armstrong of Gore Bay said he walked around the street for a couple of hours and spent the morning after 10 o'clock at the Exhibition with Mr. Gamey.

Mr. Johnston stated that if the prosecution insisted on relying on Green's testimony he was prepared to call the ladies who were driven on that day. The prosecution declining to do anything, the Chancellor said the evidence was on record. Mr. Johnston said he would have a consultation as to its necessity.

The Chancellor—I will just ask Mr. Gamey to come to me in reference to this book. You are speaking still under oath, Mr. Gamey. (Mr. Gamey steps into the witness box.)

The Chancellor—Q.—This memorandum book that you produced, what period of time does it cover? A.—From October, 1900, to the first of March, 1901.

Q.—Are there any entries in that book of these moneys referred to—$1,500, $1,200, $900, $500? A.—No.

Q.—In this book there are none? A.—No.

Q.—How was it that you did not enter those moneys? A.—I don't enter all the moneys I receive. I put them in the bank.

Q.—So that book throws no light on these transactions—the $1,500, the $1,200, the $900 and the $500? A.—The bank book would show.

Q.—That is not your own book. So that we may take it, you have no book of your own in which there is any entry? A.—Except the bank book.

Q.—Except the bank statements you have no private book or any sort of memorandum showing anything in connection with those four sums? A.—No.

Henry M. Butler, ledgerkeeper of the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, sworn and examined by Mr. Riddell, never heard about the institution of the disappearance of a large package of money.

Q.—What I am instructed is, that an inquiry was made as to this parcel; it was found missing, and while inquiry was going on Mr. Stratton came in and said that he had taken it out, and had not yet put in the voucher for it? A.—I know nothing about it.

D. Atkinson, paying teller of the bank company, knew nothing of such a story, and never paid to nor received money from Mr. Buckingham of Guelph.

William Northgrave of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, examined by Mr. Riddell, never heard of such a disappearance. He had heard that Mr. Buckingham had cashed a check.

Cross-examined by Mr. Riddell: Witness said that Mr. Coffee had taken his $400 out of Mr. Buckingham's $2,300 and had given him a check for $1,900 and all those transactions appeared openly in the books.

The Chancellor—My brother and myself have been considering about this information which was received yesterday, and it would appear from the evidence that there was a sum of $1,200, part of this alleged money, that came into the hands of Mr. Gamey, according to his own admission. He says it is a loan from Frank Sullivan, $900 of which appears to have gone into the Crossin factory. However, Frank Sullivan has given evidence that there was no loan, that there was no I.O.U. for that sum, and he has discharged himself from that, and it appears to be incumbent upon Mr. Gamey now to put that money which came to his hands, the $1,200, in the same position as the $1,300 which is in the custody of the court.

There was a pause for some moments following this announcement.

10th MILESTONE

First Presbyterian People Observe the Anniversary of the Opening of Their Edifice.

Yesterday was the tenth anniversary of the opening of the First Presbyterian Church in its present building, and the day was fittingly commemorated by special services. The Rev. Mr. Graham, of Petrolia, occupied the pulpit at both services. There was a good attendance morning and evening.

At the first service, Rev. Mr. Graham took as his subject, "Ye must be born again."

Speaking of the new birth, he pointed out that it was consistent with natural laws, that all things in nature had to undergo a change before it could be put to a higher use. Iron had to be smelted, gold had to be purified and the dross taken out, and man had to be born again before he could enjoy the society of the redeemed.

At the evening service the reverend gentleman preached on the transfiguration. He directed attention to the fact that the transfiguration in itself was a miracle, although it was not generally so considered. It differed from the other miracles in that, entirely a visible interpretation of the glory and power of Christ, while in other manifestations of His divine power our Saviour had in some way benefitted humanity.

The miracle of the transfiguration showed the Divinity of Christ, while the many other miracles showed His for humanity.

The music rendered at both services by the choir, under the leadership of Harry C. Philp, was excellent. Two splendid anthems were contributed and pleasing solos sung by Miss Verne Hayward, Miss Flora McGeorge and Horace Davis.

Bargain hunters are seen in all the buy-ways.

I should say that perfection of mind, like that of the body, consists of two elements—of strength and beauty; that it consists of firmness and mildness, of force and tenderness, of vigor and grace.

BISHOP ASKS TWO QUESTIONS

Forceful and Inspiring words Addressed to Holy Trinity Church

Large and Interested Gathering—Splendid Musical Services—Divine Invitation.

"Is it not a solemn fact that a large majority of our readers to-day prefer the dime novel to the Bible? In the novel they gratify morbid passions, they read of murder and named vices, and feed, in the privacy of their reading, an appetite for the so-called sensational, which is too oft in reality the depraved."

"Is it not again a solemn fact that a large majority of our church people love the things of the world more, and the great things of God less? The dance and the card table are allowed to become snares to tempt from the reverence for things right."

"Why is this so? Is Christ's authority an authority we cannot bear? Is our Saviour's dominion a dominion we will not tolerate?"

"Turn with me to Matthew xi, 28. 'Listen! 'Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you Rest.'"

Although suffering from a severe cold, his lordship Bishop Baldwin delivered an inspiring address to the large congregation gathered in Holy Trinity Church last evening. At the outset the reverend gentleman spoke with difficulty and his words sounded husky, but as his discourse proceeded the indomitable energy of the man and the inspiration from the rapt attention of an impressed and interested gathering had its effect. The Bishop's words rang forth with earnestness and energy as he pleaded with his hearers to accept the invitation of the Saviour and receive the promised rest and blessing.

An eloquent appeal was made to the young men and women of to-day, imbued with the spirit of the rush and turmoil of business in this hard and obdurate world. Worldly achievement was not all; material aggrandizement was not the goal of existence. Life was short—and eternity long.

An appeal to Christ was never disregarded; no one ever came to be turned away. In communion with Him came happiness, joy, blessing and true success.

The choir, under the direction of W. Stanley Ball, contributed excellent music throughout the service. The choral work was spirited and inspiring and the solos of Misses Reva Stegman and Kathleen O'Hara were exceedingly enjoyable. At the conclusion of the service Miss Rose Morrison, the accomplished young organist, contributed a pleasing rendition of the beautiful "Angels' Serenade."

The rector of the church, Rev. T. Beverley Smith, assisted in the services throughout.

The train consisted of eight or ten cars laden with grain. The cars were consumed, and the engine totally destroyed. Engineer O'Brien is missing, and was probably killed. The rest of the crew escaped injury. The bridge was a wooden trestle structure.

COTTAGE HOSPITAL FUND.

Over $50,000 Subscribed in Toronto for Lady Minto's Plans.

Toronto, May 18.—On the invitation of Lady Minto more than a score of Toronto gentlemen met her Excellency at the temporary vice-regal residence in Queen's Park on Saturday afternoon to consider the question of strengthening and extending the Lady Minto Cottage Hospital scheme. Her Excellency presented a statement of the purpose and working of the scheme, and made an appeal for funds for its endowment and extension of the work. Of that sum $35,000 was subscribed in Montreal and the indications are that that amount will be increased to $50,000. Nearly $10,000 was subscribed in Ottawa. In less than an hour on Saturday more than $50,000 was subscribed by the gentlemen present. When the total of their subscriptions was announced Lady Minto expressed her very great gratification.
