A Yankee in Paris, who was listening to the boasts of English and French artists, about the wonderful genius of their respective countrymen, at last broke out and said, "Oh, pshaw! Yeou git out; why there's Bill Devine, of our village, who kin paint a piece of cork so 'zactly like marble that the minute you throw it into the water it will sink to the bottom jes' like a stone."

A story is told of a shrewish Scotch

A drag, driven by an elegant attired lady, with a trim and neatly dressed colored boy perched on the footman's seat behind, was passing through the street, when it was espied by an old negro woman. "Bress de Lord!" she exclaimed, raising "Bress de Lord!" she exclaimed, raising her hands as she spoke. "Bress de Lord! I never expected to see dat. Wonder what dat young cullud gemman pays dat young white 'oman for driving dat kerridge! I know'd it'd come, but never spected to lib to see it. Dis nigga's ready to go 'way now."

Jones gave a lawyer a bill to be collected Jones gave a lawyer a bill to be collected to the amount of $30. Calling for it after a while he inquired if it had been collected. "Oh, yes," said the lawyer, "I have it all for you." "Oh," said the lawyer, laughing, "I am not going to charge you—why. I have known you since you were a baby, and your father before you; $20 will be about right," handing over $10. "Well," said Jones, as he meditated upon the transaction, "it's darned lucky he didn't know my grandfather, or I shouldn't have know my grandfather, or I shouldn't have busy trying with a towel to break up delegations of flies that were trying to get possession of the sugarbowl to hold a convention in it. Finally the lemonade man punched the exquisite in the ribs and said: "Now, you want to exodus away from here. If you stand around here much longer you will make people believe you are the boss of this ere temperance saloon and I am only the business manager. That's what you are standing there putting on style for." The young man's father is worth a million, and when he heard of the outrage he said: "That's what comes from not nominating Grant. A strong government is what this country is suffering for." is suffering for."

THE WORKINGMAN'S NOBILITY.

AN ELOQUENT AND IMPRESSIVE DISCOURSE BY THE FRENCH DOMINICAN FATHER MONSABRE.

"How should the workman not love his calling, if he understands all the honor he derives from the Divine humiliation, all the aid he may gain from it? More favored than the apostles, whose ministry Jesus only exercised for three years, he receives upon his humble and laborious life the distributions of the Say. rect reflection of thirty years of the Sav-iour's life. Whatever he may do, to what-ever side he may turn, he meets with the remembrance and adored image of the Di-vine laborer. He loves his children, the Teacher—"What is an abbreviation?"
Scholar—"A shortening." Teacher—"Yes; give me an example." Scholar—"Some folks use butter, but mother says hog's lard is good enough for anybody."

A village pedagogue, in despair with a stupid boy, pointed out the letter A, and asked him if he knew it. "Yes, sir."
"Well, what is it?" "I know him by sight, but hang me if I can remember his name."

remembrance and adored image of the Divine laborer. He loves his children, the objects of cares so tender and such keen anxieties, and since he has no dwelling that is his own, often driven away by adverse seasons, he is obliged to carry from one place to another these poor little things, of whom the youngest may be still in its cradle. The necessity is cruel. But he remembers that

HIS GOD. THE SON OF A WORKMAN, like his children, born in a stable and cranelighbor's dairy to see his sweetheart, who had charge of the institution, and asked timidly of the old man, "How is the milkmaid?" The old man angrily slammed the door in his face and muttered—"Our milk isn't made; its got from cows."

"I have little about me, but that little we will share," said a Dublin queen's counsel to an ugly customer who, with a menacing air, asked for alms at night in a lonely suburb. "This revolver," said the Q. C., as he drew it from his pocket, "has six chambers. I will give you three." Just then the Q. C. found himself alone.

A Quincy small boy was looking at some Scriptural engravings, and gazed long and earnestly upon a representation of Adam and Eve in their primitive dress. Turning to his mother he asked: "Ma, didn't Adam and Eve wear any clothes?" "No, my son." The lad reflected a moment and said: "By hokey, though but I'll bet the mesquitoes just made them hump themselves lively."

A Yankee in Paris, who was listening to the boasts of English and French artists, about the wonderful genius of their respective countrymen, at last broke out and said, "Oh, pshaw! Yeou git out; the metast like Him to seek comfort in the strength of the masten like Him to seek comfort in the strength of the metast and circumstances which limit and brings whose superiority is honored by the world, he feels himself in a state of continual dependence; but it was the will of his God, the Sovereign Master of the Universe, to submit himself to His creations who command him, of the rich world him the world him the well as the scholar that they were soon forced to carry Him away into exile, in order to withdraw Him that they were soon forced to carry Him away into exile, in order to withdraw Him that they were soon forced to carry Him away into exile, in order to withdraw Him away into exile, in order to withdraw Him that they were soon forced to ca

A story is told of a shrewish Scotch woman who tried to wean her husband from the public house by employing her brother to act the part of a ghost to frighten John on his way home. "Who are you?" said the guidman, as the apparition rose before him from behind a bush. "I am Auld Nick," was the reply. "Come awa", mon," said John, nothing daunted, "gie's a shake of your hand. I am married to a sister o' yours." "Come awa', mon," said John, nothing daunted, "gie's a shake of your hand. I shake a sister o' yours."

Said Angelina, suddenly breaking the oppressive silence: "Don't you feel afraid of the army worms, Theodore, that are coming so rapidly this way?" The question was so strange that it caused him to look right at Angelina for the first time in his life. Why did she ask that, he wanted to know. "Oh, nothing," she replied, as she toyed with her fan, "only the papers say they eat every green thing wherever they go."

midst of Christian civilization, he recalls the abjection of pagan centuries. You have been moved by his misfortunes, genhave been moved by his mistortunes, gen-tlemen, and have thought that it was time to apply Christian principles to the solu-tion of this formidable question concern-ing labor which has imposed itself upon our anxious and troubled epoch. I con-gratulate you on your resolution, and I pray God to bless your efforts. This is not pray God to bless your efforts. This is not the place to trace a programme for you; permit me only to advise you. If it be your design to ward off a social danger, by occupying yourselves with transforming the ideas, exalting the sentiments, and ameliorating the condition of the workman, it is well. If you yield to that generous compassion which inclines Christian hearts towards those who suffer, it is better. But you will only reach perfection when you mingle with your anxiety for the public good and your charity, the religious respect that the public good and your charity, the religious respect that

asks for those whose life he ennobled and sanctified during the fruitful years of his sojourn in Nazareth. Of all civilizing acts that is the most efficacious. The best intentions, the greatest benefits, can be spoiled by a lofty protection. On the other hand, the workman will return so much the better and more quickly to a sense of his dignity, and he shall see it more since ely respected by those who are recalling it to him. It was thus that, in those times they call barbarous, the Church accomplished the education of the laborer. A clergyman who had appointed a day for the catechising of some of his congregation happened to receive an invitation to dinner for the same day, and having forgotten his previous engagement, he accepted it. Just, however, as he was mounting his gig to depart he perceived the first of his class entering the garden and the remainder coming over the hill, and at once became aware of the mistake he had made. Here was a fix! But the minister's ready wit soon came to his assistance. "What have you come for, John!" he asked, addressing the first comer. "Ou d'ye no mind, sir, ye bade

John!" he asked, addressing the first comer. "Ou d'ye no mind, sit, ye bade us come to be catecheesed?" "Oh, aye; weel, no to keep ye going further, John, was it a horned coo or a hummel coo that Noah took into the ark?" "Deed, sir, I canna tell." "Well, turn back and ask the ither fowk the same question, and if they canna answer it, bid them go home and find it."

An eloquently-dressed young man, with something very aristocratic in his manner, was engaged in posing on the torner of the street for the benefit of the ledies who might pass along. He was standing within a few feet of a lemonade stund, the proprietor of which, in his shirtsleeves, and a straw hat as big as a cart-wieel, was
