> McKINNON SAYS SHIP COULD HAVE BEEN SAVED

Master of Wrecked Steamer Morena Thinks Government Boat Should Have Acted More Promptly

NORTH SYDNEY, June 3 .- Capt. W. R. McKinnon, of the wrecked steamer Morena, which has been lying on Brandy rocks since May 18, was a passenger on the steamer Bruce on his home to Yarmouth. The captain and officers of the Morena have been attending the court of inquiry held at St. Johns before Judge Conroy in the presence of Captains Moss and English. The decision of the court was unanimous in completely exonorating and officers from blame in connection with the casualty. Wrecking of the steamer was simply a result of the steering gear becoming suddenly deranged and unmanageable and as there was a strong tide running north through Cabot Straits, the stranded on Brandy Rocks. Capt. McKinnon said that there were good chances for the Morena being saved had there been less red tapeism connection with the movements of the ed more promptly. The moment the breakdown was discovered in the Morena's steering gear the steamer's engines were reversed full speed astern, thus causing the Morena to ground easily on the rocks. Signals were then hoisted asking the Marconi operator at Cape Ray to communicate with the steamer Montcalm and urge her captain to their assistance. This was on Saturday, and the Morena lay for twelve hours before she began to break up, during which time the crew was jettisoning the cargo in order to float the ship. Shortly after a wireless message was sent asking for assistance from the government boat. Captain Bellanger of the Montcalm answered that he could do nothing unless instructions came from the department at Ottawa. To the latter over the wires, only to be told that the offices were closed, and would remain closed until Monday.

ROTHESAY, June 3 .- Elsie Prince, a young daughter of the late Robert. Prince of Jubilee station, met with a serious accident a few days ago at the home of her uncle, Lorne Prince, where she is staying. Her uncle had just finished separating the cream when the little tot ran forward to stop the separator. Her hair caught in the cogs of the wheel, and in an instant her head was stripped, every hair seeming to be drawn from the scalp. It was a wonder the scalp was not torn from the little one's head, but a little fringe of hair was left in front In. King of Kingston was summoned at once and attended the little girl, who is a great favorite with her relatives with whom she is stopping in the abselce of her mother, who is in Boston. It is stated a day or two later that the little girl was getting along nicely.
