POSSIBLY LOST AGAIN

En Route to Coldfoot Via Dahl River

Fears Entertained as to Safety of Men Who Escaped Death Early in the Winter

Friends of D. V. Lowery and his partner Burns are becoming somewhat alarmed lest they may have met the same fate on their last trip to Coldfoot that befell them early in the season. They were in Dawson last September and secured some pipe fittings and other small pieces of machinery for which they had come out all the way from the Koyukuk, starting back about the 15th. On the 24th they were met at Eagle City by Sam Williamson, formerly jailer at Coldfoot, and E. E. Reynolds, deputy marshal at the latter point. Reynolds gave to Lowery government checks to the amount of $2400 to be delivered at Coldfoot to the commissioner in payment of salaries, cost expenses, etc., and they left Eagle on a snow for the mouth of the Dahl river intending to go in via that route. That was the last heard of them until near the holidays when the U. S. mail carrier who had the contract for taking the mail to Coldfoot on his return trip to Fort Yukon came across the pair roaming about the woods raving maniacs. He succeeded in getting them back to Fort Yukon and after careful nursing and medical attendance they regained their mind and shortly afterward recovered. The story they then told was harrowing in the extreme. It appears that after leaving the mouth of the Dahl river they soon ran into an immense patch of timber land that the previous summer had been burned over. The trees growing merely up on the surface as soon as the moss had been burned away fell over with the first breath of wind thus creating a windfall miles in extent. The trail was totally obliterated and after traveling for days and days through the blackened forest they at last came to the realization that they were lost. Still they continued to push on as their grub was short and they hoped to soon reach some point where they would recognize their surroundings and be able to catch the trail again.

Finally their grub gave out, the snow was falling thickly and their condition was fast becoming desperate. They killed a few ptarmigan and also ate a porcupine that they had succeeded in bagging. That was the last they knew until they had been rescued by the mail carrier and were being nursed back to life at Fort Yukon.

The two trails one leading from Fort Yukon and the other from the mouth of the Dahl river converge far back in the mountains and it was at this point that the famished and half crazed men were found. Their clothes were in tatters and judging from the date of their arrival at Fort Yukon, about Christmas, they must have been wandering through the woods in a demented condition for nearly a month.

They had cached the grip containing the checks and other articles near the base of a large tree when they discovered they were on the verge of collapsing and as soon as they had recovered their health and strength they again set out in company with some Indians to recover the valise and it possible to push on to their destination. Since then not a word has been heard from them though several parties have arrived at Eagle from Coldfoot, leaving the latter place late enough so that they would have had ample time to have reached there had they not met with an accident. In a letter to Mr. Williamson under date of March 5 from Deputy Marshal Envaldson at Eagle he expresses his fear that they may be lost again. He has stopped payment on the checks until it is ascertained what has become of them.

Persons who have been over the Dahl river trail state that owing to the extensive fire that occurred in that region last summer it would be the easiest matter in the world to become lost in the confusion of wind-falls that extend for miles and miles in every direction.

Grave of Smithson The abandonment of the Genoa cemetery, where repose the remains of James Smithson, founder of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, has started a movement to bring them to this country and reinter them in Washington, near the buildings which bear his name. Not permitted to bear the honored titles of his father, the Duke of Northumberland, "Smithson" in his bitterness declared, "My name shall live in the memory of men when the titles of the Northumberlands and the Percys are forgotten." Smithson's half-brother, the lawful son of Northumberland, was the Earl Percy, who led the British relief column at Concord and Lexington—Des Moines Register and Leader.

Cuba has a surplus of $2,000,000 in her treasury. This is a rather robust amount for a country that is supposed to be on the road to ruin because of the absence of a reciprocity treaty.—Washington Post.

MORE CRACK HOCKEY

Surveyors Are Said to Have Fluked on Challenge.

Tomorrow night will see a great struggle for supremacy when the Merchants and Lawyers hockey teams come together for battle on the D. A. A. rink. The Merchants are disappointed in not being able to have their match brought off with the Surveyors and for what reason they do not know. Ever since they accepted the Surveyors' challenge Mr. Barwell, their captain, has been mislaid somewhere and can't be found. However, the Lawyers have consented to accommodate Mayor McLennan and his team of colts by playing them instead.

Albert Forrest, the Yukon champion skater, will at 8:15 sharp try to lower his previous record. This he intended to do on Wednesday night last, but was suffering from a severe cold. After this event the hockey match will commence promptly at 8:30. At the previous matches there has been considerable delay, but tomorrow night's match will commence sharp on time. The teams will line up as follows: Merchants—Goal, R. Chisholm; point, M. H. Jones; coverpoint, J. P. McLennan; forwards, Mayor McLennan, M. Pinsky, F. S. Macfarlane and Albert Reid. Lawyers—Goal, A. G. Smith; point, J. K. Sparling; coverpoint, P. Ledley; forwards, D. Donaghy, H. E. A. Robertson, F. G. Crisp and H. S. Tobin.

"I think," said the old rooster, "you are making a most tremendous racket over one egg."

"Perhaps you don't know," clucked the old hen, "that eggs are worth 24 cents apiece these days."

"That's exactly what I'm kicking about," returned the rooster. "It takes a whole dozen of such eggs as the one you are cackling over, madam, to look like 30 cents. Now stop your noise!"—Chicago Tribune.
