Among the shipments to London by the Furness liner Halifax City, which sailed of frozen salmon. They were loaded at Chatham, N. B., in cold storage car 9521, and were received at the ship's gangway in splendid condition. The interior of the oar presented quite a frigid appearance, the walls and floor being decorated with hoar frost. The contents of the oar were transferred to the steamer's cold storage apartment in good shape, and with a pros-pect of arriving in London in prime condition. Some of the railway men who inspected the cold storage facilities on board the steamer say that the temperature was like the Klondike in midwipter.
