

THE CRANKS' CRUISE

Graham's Second Trip Through the Whirlpool Rapids.

A Boston Man Swims the Terrible Niagara Rapids.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Over 12,000 people went down to Niagara Falls to see Charles D. Graham, the Philadelphia cooper, go through Niagara Falls with his head protruding from the barrel. The whirlpool seems to be dealing kindly with these cranks, and they are growing bolder. The latest is Prof. A. L. Balderson, a professional swimmer of Baltimore, who started today that some time next week he should make the attempt on a raft made of beer keg staves.

Graham's second trip. Graham appeared on the Maid of the Mist landing dressed in tight at 4 o'clock, and was loudly cheered. He was towed into the middle of the river and ten minutes later was lowered into his novel craft. This time it was arranged so that his head would be out the way it being fixed so that he could not get it back into the barrel if he felt disposed to. It was rigged with a long funnel on top, which was to supply water when the barrel was under water, and to this was attached a flag. When he struck the rough water the boat rocked from side to side and at last the flagstaff snapped off. In three minutes he was and the test of his endurance began. The barrel was tossed on the white breakers until it seemed as if it must be dashed in pieces. It ducked continually and half the time all that could be seen was the funnel by which the man inside was getting his air. At last it began describing the eddy of the whirlpool and after a few moments shot out into the smoother channel and swam down stream. Graham was saved the devil's rocks part of the test, for his helper, C. S. Carlton, ran out to the bank as he was passing, threw a rope, which was fastened to the barrel, and the successful navigator was pulled ashore on an exhausted condition. His arms and legs were badly skinned, and could be seen on all parts of his body. His neck, too, received a hard tug, but was apparently in working order. He said it was a far harder test than before, although not so exhausting, for then he was half dead for an hour. Graham was congratulated by the crowd upon getting out of the barrel. He announces his intention of dropping from the Cantilever bridge, provided he has an cushion under the barrel, and has announced his intention of doing so on an early date.

Scott's Fatal Venture. L. Scott, the fisherman of Lewistown who was drowned in the whirlpool, had been hanging around all day, intending to earn $10 offered for taking Graham out of the whirlpool, and with a cork life-preserver had been giving a cork float in swimming and diving. About noon he jumped into the water off Thompson's Point, at the outlet of the whirlpool. The body was recovered at Lewistown.

Swam the Rapids. NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., 21.—W. J. Kendall, of Boston, today swam successfully the whirlpool rapids of Niagara river. The trial was to settle a wager of $10,000 made by Boston parties, he to receive $1,000 of the stakes. There were but few spectators the affairs having been kept quiet. He relates the following experience: When he reached the spot where Captain Webb is supposed to have lost his life the water seemed to go from under him, and a huge wave struck him on the head and shoulders, knocking him unconscious for a few seconds. He found his swimming abilities of no use whatever and never expected to come out alive. When

ENTERING THE WHIRLPOOL he was so benumbed and partly unconscious he could not use a limb and did not know what he was doing. The current took him right into the main eddy and sucked him down like a flash, keeping him under fully fifteen seconds. Upon reaching the under current he was shot out of the pool fully 50 feet from its center and when he reached to the water he had partly regained consciousness and knowing there was

NO TIME TO SPARE before he would again be dashed down the rapids he swam to shore. When landing he was overcome that he again became unconscious and his assistants were fully half an hour bringing him to with stimulants and rubbing. When asked if he would ever make another trip he said most emphatically: "No; there's not enough money in the world to induce me to repeat my afternoon's experience. A child would have the same chance to go through the rapids and come out all right as an expert swimmer."

It took him three minutes to go from the railway bridge to the whirlpool. Kendall is 24 years of age, 6 feet 2 inches in height, weighs 195 pounds, and is well proportioned. He was born in New York, but spent most of his life in Boston. His cork vest consisted of five pieces of cork 16 inches long, 4 inches wide and 2 inches thick, and was sown in white canvass similar to a life preserver.

WHY KIRWAN CHANGED.

The Calumet Captain gives good Reasons for Quitting the Tories.

From the Quebec Record. The Ottawa Citizen attacks the editor of this paper for going to Chambly during the elections. It says that a man who took part in suppressing the rebellion, and was present at Batouche, could not consistently support the "Rielites." The Citizen is not logical. It does not distinguish between the man who desired to suppress the rebellion and re-establish the authority of the law, in a humane way, and the man who went to the North-West like some raw-head-and-bloody-bones to exterminate the Metis, burn their houses and destroy their homes. He was all right to put down the rebellion. It was all right to restore peace and order along the banks of the Saskatchewan. It was all right to fight for order as against discord. Thus far the editor of this paper was in accord with the authorities. But here he stops. He saw no necessity for putting the torch to the houses of the unhappy people. He could not see the justice of looting the property of a defeated foe. He did not think it right to insult the gallant dead by jumping on their bodies, as some of the militia men did on the banks of the dead in the curl at Batouche. He could not, as a Catholic, agree with the men who called the Metis dead—"Papist sons of a—"

as he heard officers speak of the Half-breed dead around the village at Batouche, and he did not think it necessary to have a mad man for a political officer. For those reasons, among others, he supported the "Rielite" candidate at Chambly, and will continue to support the "Rielite" candidate whenever he gets the opportunity.

The above facts, many never before published before, and there may be worse to follow unless the Citizen, and papers like it are more careful in their personalities. And now we must remind the Citizen of another fact. The editor of this paper did not voluntarily offer his services to the militia authorities. He never applied for employment. On the contrary he was sent for by the Hon. Mr. Costigan, Sir Adolphe Caron and Hon. Mr. Chapleau. He had no idea of "offering his services" when a telegram was put into his hand inviting him to go to the North West. This fact Mr. Costigan admits. He has never denied it, but he says that this paper accepted the offer, threw up all his literary employment and went to the North West, where he was told by General Middleton that "no Home Ruler could be a loyal man." And the Government of the Dominion has never denied that the liquor interest has absolute control of the Dominion Cabinet, but that Cabinet is pursuing a policy quite as antagonistic to the Scott Act as anything that the liquor interest could devise, and as entirely in the interests of the law-defying element of the community as the worst that that element could desire.—[Canada Citizen.]

Seed Water.

As a cheap and easily made reliable fertilizer this is of great value. It may be used with most advantage wherever plants are grown in pots. There is a kind of plant it does not benefit, and it may be given to those which produce fruits, flowers or fine foliage. It has the virtue better than any other fertilizer of clearing worms from the soil in pots, and this is a great gain in itself. No kind of worm will remain in the soil which receives a supply of soot water occasionally, and it causes foliage, fruit and flowers to assume a much darker color than they do when it is not used. It imparts extra vigor, and ought to be used all the year round. Ferns are especially benefited by it, and the fronds assume a deep green color under its influence. Strawberries in pots, Pines, Vines, Pelargoniums, Fuchsias, and indeed all plants improve in texture and appearance from its use. It may be used to expel worms before the pots are full of roots, but as a general fertilizer it should not be much employed until the roots have taken to the soil freely. It is not wanted until then.

Many have much difficulty in getting the soot to mix with the water, but this is easily enough managed. Any ordinary old bag should be taken; half fill it with soot, put a brick or large stone inside, tie up the mouth, and put it into the tank or barrel with the water. In a short time the water will have penetrated through every particle of the soot and converted it into a pulp. The water is then in excellent condition for use. It may, however, be too strong for giving to the plants as it is, but a quantity of it may be diluted and put into the pans in which the plants are growing, and it being a matter which can only be determined by the cultivator.—[Journal of Horticulture. (London).]

"Pshaw! why didn't the fool hold that ball? It was an easy one." That is what a spectator on the grand stand said when the catcher missed a "high foul" coming right into his hands. In a few minutes more an easy one came into the stand in the vicinity of the same spectator, and he jumped over three men and lost his hat trying to get out of its way. That's the way with some folks. They get waddy when other folks fail to do what they themselves couldn't do in fifteen years' practice.—[Hartford Post.]

How a Dude Caught Cold. A slim young man in the height of fashion was violently sneezing in a street car, when a companion remarked, "Aw, Chawles, deah boy, how d'ye catch that deahful cold." "Aw, deah fellah, left my cane in the lower hall tother day, and in sucking the ivory handle, so deahful cold, it chilled me almost to death." If Chawles had used Dr. Harnrey's Red Pine Gum his cold would not trouble him very much. For sale at J. Wilson's prescription drug store.

Cure of Animals in Summer.

The American Humane Association presents the following suggestions relative to the care of animals during the heated term:

Provide water—fresh, pure water. Think, cooler, how you are refreshed by a drink of cool water on a hot day. The lower animals are equally in need of the means of quenching thirst. Give the horse frequent opportunity to quench thirst at times when not too much over-heated, and before eating. To drink freely immediately after eating prevents a favorable digestion of food. The active dog requires drink frequently during the hot day, as does also the cat; and a dish of fresh water should stand where they can have access to it. Undoubtedly many a dog is driven to madness through lack of water; and the testimony is that hydrophobia is almost unknown in those localities where dogs can drink when they wish.

Every city, village and country town should be liberally supplied with drinking fountains for animals, and they should be so constructed that even the smallest dog can drink from them. No salt should be put in the water, but a quart of a fountain, and that person who turns aside a stream from a field and gives a watering trough to the roadside, or provides a fountain at which man and beast can drink pure water, is truly a public benefactor.

Remove the horses from the horses in the hot day whenever you desire to give them a full, free rest, and once during the day, preferably at night, a thorough currying and grooming will not only give rest, but will do about as much towards improving the animal's condition as will the shade. Provide shade. How instinctively we seek the shadow when the sun is pouring its hot rays on the dry and parching earth. If the pasture is not provided with shade trees, in a convenient locality set four, six or eight supports, across which place straw or grass, and thus, in a brief time and with little labor make a shade in which animals can rest from the heat of the sun, to the great comfort of themselves and benefit to their owners.

Examine the harness on your working team, and you will discover that blinds, check-reins and strappers are simply torturing contrivances, serving no useful purpose. Take them from your horses, and you will save the comfort of the horses. Keep the stable well ventilated and free from the strong ammonia, which is injurious to the eyes. Assist the animals to protect themselves against flies, feed regularly, hitch in the shade, and remember that the care which will give comfort to the lower animals will make them doubly profitable to their owners, aside from the humane bearing upon the subject.

As if by Magic.

This is always the way when Poison's NERVINE is applied to any kind of pain; it is sure to disappear as if by magic. Stronger, more penetrating, and quicker in action than any other remedy in the world. Buy a bottle of NERVINE to-day and try its wonderful power for relieving pain of every description. Biggest of Their Kind.

A forty-five-inch sunflower is being exhibited at Travers, Cal. M. Estrado, a French engineer, is building a forty-ton locomotive, which is expected to attain a speed of seventy-eight miles an hour. The driving wheels are to be eight feet in diameter. The largest balloon in the country, according to the San Francisco Chronicle, has recently been built in that city by Mr. A. P. Van Tassel. It has a capacity of 150,000 cubic feet of gas, and has been constructed for the special purpose of enabling the well-known aeronaut to undertake a journey across the continent from coast to coast.

A magnificent diamond, weighing 180 carats, of the finest water and free from all flaws and imperfections, has just been cut in England. It is owned by a syndicate, and is said to surpass in weight and quality all the historical diamonds on record. Some idea of its value may be gotten from the fact that a little piece sliced off the end to improve its shape produced a brilliant of nineteen carats, and was sold for $20,000 to a diamond merchant.

It is said of John L. Sullivan, jr. who is now 27 months old, that when he was six months old he would seize hold of a kitchen chair with one hand and hold it out at arm's length. One day, when he was about 9 months old, he was put upon his feet near a coal hod two thirds full, when he seized and lifted it to the floor.

H. G. Hotchkiss, of Lyons, N. Y., known as the Peppermint King, says that seven-eighths of the peppermint of the world is raised in Wayne county. The average crop is about 100,000 pounds. The average price for crude oil is from $5.75 to $6 a pound. To give an idea of the money that is in peppermint, Mr. Hotchkiss said that a farmer last year brought to the refinery an ordinary sized load, which, when measured, proved to be worth $4,000. Of course this was in the crude oil, which the farmers distill themselves.

Children Earning Money.

Children cannot begin too young to earn money. If it is only a little—one egg for every dozen they find, pay for carrying the milk, a few cents per week for washing dishes, or bringing in the wood or coal or kindling; or so much for every towel you hem; or they may keep hens of their own, or a pig, or care for their own milk along with the other cattle—how much more interest they will take! There are an infinite number of ways in which a child can earn money, and that, too without paying him for his efforts on the home people, either; little kindness to the boy people, either; and, then he has an almost inexpressible feeling of pride and independence when he buys something with his own earnings. There is no better servant in the world than this same money; but to be of most use, it must be rightly managed, and only experience can teach that lesson properly.
