GERMANS CAPTURE FORT VAUX.

PARIS, June 8. Commander Raynal, with the small contingent left at Fort Vaux constitutes one of the most notable incidents in the Verdun campaign The fort had been gradually pounded to od against its slopes, its ditches and outworks. Early yesterday General Raynel's forces were cut off for the first time from communicating with south. The means of transport of provisions and shells had been prefood in the garrison was exhausted. In the meantime the Germans brought up two fresh divisions and hurled them forward in five successive mass ed attacks, which in spite of fearful that the Hindenburg was destroyed, loss, caused by the French artillery, but this has been denied officially finally resulted in the Germans gaining the inner defence of the fort, and sweeping over its exhausted defenders. No word has been received from General Raynal since communication

Previous to 9 A.M. GERMAN LOSSES IN NAVAL BAT-

LONDON, June 8. A naval officer of high rank, who as just returned from a visit to the battle cruiser fleet, informs the Associated Press to-day that participants in the North Sea battle estimate the total German losses as follows: Two battle cruisers three battleships, five light cruisers, eight or nine destroyers, and one submarbardment, while infantry rus'es were ine. This officer said he was convinced from the evidence he had obtained, that the unidentified battle cruiser said to have been sunk, was the Hindenburg. This estimate of the than that made in the latest official British announcement, issued Sunday. At that time the Admiralty gave viously destroyed, and the stock of the German losses, not all authenticated, as two battleships, two dreadnought battle cruisers, four light cruisers, nine destroyers, and a sub-
