KILLED IN ACTION.

At such a time as this, when to sorrow known is added the fear of sorrow yet to come, we can only speak what words of comfort we may. Yet it is to comfort a country, for it is the country that mourns. All Newfoundland received the blow yesterday: to St. John's it was a cruelly hard one. In larger cities and larger communities, there is on such occasions a general and kind feeling of sympathy for those immediately afflicted, but these alone know the real bitterness, the real grief of their loss. It is far otherwise with us. These brave fellows were, we might say, the sons and brothers of the whole city, for they were its very chosen. Is there one amongst us that did not know one of these lads intimately? It may be, but there are many to whom they were all so known, many to whom more than one of them were loved companions, schoolmates it might be, friends in sport or in work, kind associates of everyday life. The comfort we can give, and the comfort we can feel, must be at the same time our pride. Have not these men given Newfoundland an honoured place, high even on this long roll of great deeds and glorious names? Already, at Gallipoli, they had done this. But Gallipoli was a defeat—a glory and a name to all save the highest command, but still the highest. The action of July 1st was no defeat. It was the first and greatest step towards the final victory that will crush German power and humble German arrogance. In it our men played no small part, of that we may be sure. We read down the list, with a tightening of the heart-strings; but we know these men, we know the stuff they were made of, and we know they did not give their lives for nothing. The very size and nature of the casualty list is eloquent. It speaks of an advance, impetuous and fearless, through a hail of bullets. On our part, fell part of the heavy task of the first infantry rush and we all know by this time what that means. That it was not in vain the very fact of the progress made, the bald reports of the messages, show well. We know the price (it is, alas, only part of the price) that our regiment paid: we do not yet know what they bought for it. When we do know, when the story of their achievement and our glorious details is told, there will be a thrill of pride throughout our island such as it has never felt before.

It is a great comfort and reassurance to know that those who bore the brunt of the fierce fighting of those first days have been replaced by others. Our regiment is almost certainly now enjoying a well earned rest behind the firing line. To our grief for the fallen and our joy at the recovery and ease of suffering to the wounded there must be added one thought. These men have died for their country. Their names are on the roll for vengeance. Let every man who can spring to avenge them. Their prices must be filled: let them be filled tenfold. They have heard the battle cry and responded. To-day it comes ringing again across the waters to our manhood, louder and with a fuller meaning through their death. Let it be heard and answered by all who yet live and have power to strike as they did.

Not only his family but his many friends will rejoice to know that Lieutenant Clifford Rendell, at the number among the missing officers, is safe after all, though wounded and in hospital. It is a grateful case of hope realised, which will renew the like hope for the others, Lieutenants Wilfrid Ayre, Bruce Reid and George Taylor.

We were pleased yesterday to read the official notice of the award of the Military Cross to Captain Adolph Bernard. We understand that this high honour was conferred upon the popular Captain not so much for any particular act of valor as for his even more meritorious reason of his invaluable services and the devotion which he remained at the head of his men. From some who have returned from Gallipoli we have heard that Capt. Bernard was held in very high estimation by those in command, and his services were always in demand for any undertaking of importance. He had finally to be assisted from his post which he refused to leave, though worn out with sickness. We congratulate him upon his deserved distinction and hope to hear of his speedy restoration to health.

The battle of the Somme is not over—only the first stage of it. It is still proceeding, we must remember, in the Trentino, in Austria and now, according to to-day's messages, at Riga. This is the meaning of it all—there is only one front now, and the Germans are being made to realise it.

His Excellency's Reassuring Words.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In forwarding the list of casualties His Excellency the Governor remarks that, in his opinion, our Regiment went forward under Machine Gun fire at short range. The bullets from the Machine Guns are small and go with great velocity and cicatrize the wound. Under these circumstances it is probable, therefore, that fully 90 per cent. of the wounded will recover. This is encouraging and the knowledge of such will no doubt help to allay the anxiety of the friends of those who have been reported as wounded.
Yours faithfully,
J. R. BENNETT, Colonial Secretary.

Rod and Gun.

The July issue of Rod and Gun is replete with material of interest to the sportsman, whether he be fisherman, hunter, dog fancier, gun crank, or what not. Our contemporary Dale contributes the leading article, "The Pursuit of the Maskinonge"; P. V. Williams gives a chapter in the adventurous life of a Seal Pup; Geo. H. Sarver relates an experience in which British Columbia sportsmen are attacked by grizzlies; Edward T. Martin describes a fight put up by a wild goose when attacked by a retriever. Other stories and articles, in addition to the regular departments are: Burns of Benwell, A Good Friday Visit to Jack Miner's Preserve near Kingsville; Yachting in Cape Breton; Memories of Fishing; A Tenderfoot's last in the woods of Cloud's Bay, Port Arthur, etc., etc. The July issue is a good one to tuck into the outer's kit when setting forth on his vacation.

KYLE'S PASSENGERS.—The Kyle reached Port aux Basques at 7:50 a.m. to-day with the following first class passengers: Geo. Neville, M. E. Hawco, J. Craig, Mrs. A. Larkin, W. McCole, J. F. Wynn, R. Cramm, Mrs. J. Patterson, Mrs. C. Bruce, J. P. Chetwynd, Willard, Mrs. W. Rankin, R. Hammond, Mrs. A. D. Frayer, C. B. and Mrs. Blackie, Myr Frayer, Mrs. J. R. McLeod, Dr. P. E. Dickard, Ed. Barthelemy, J. S. Taylor, M. J. Hagarty, Mrs. Jas. Mitchell, Miss A. Foley, Mrs. E. Miles, Miss A. Wagg, Mrs. J. H. McLeod, Dr. P. E. Dickard, J. P. Chetwynd, Master D. Chetwynd, G. Their Imperishable Fame.

Government House, St. John's, Nfld.
The Hon. J. R. Bennett, Acting Prime Minister.
Our Regiment at the front has suffered very grievous losses in action on the 1st of July, in performing the duty laid upon them by the higher command in this terrible war.
Many of the honourable and gallant gentlemen who constitute all ranks in our Regiment have laid down their lives or have been stricken by wounds in the fighting on the 1st of July. It is the noblest end of all to lay down life for the honour of our Name, our Race, and our Empire.

The world will ring for ever with the imperishable fame of the heroes of Newfoundland, who have made sure for all time that the Royal Colony is worthy of its ancient name.
Apart from the early lists of wounded received on the 4th and 5th inst., which have been published this morning, I have received this day other lists of officers and men who have been killed or wounded in action or who are reported missing.

The list of these lists is very lengthy, and contains names of men who have arrived at Wandsworth Hospital, all suffering from gunshot wounds, none of which are serious. In order to save time in the publication of this list, and to relieve, to some extent, the public anxiety, I would suggest that the individual notifications to the next of kin be dispensed with, in this instance, and that the list be given to the press for publication as soon as possible.
Very sorrowfully I forward these lists for publication with my heartfelt sympathy for those whose homes are stricken.
W. E. DAVIDSON, Governor.

Our Fallen Heroes.

KILLED IN ACTION, JULY 1st.
Captain Eric S. Ayre—Elder son of Mrs. Chesley Ayre, widow of the late Chesley Ayre, Esq., of Ayre & Sons, Promoted Captain in January, 1915. Bay de Verde Notes.

The fishery up to date is fair. Last week's operations were successful with the majority of traps, and some good fares were secured. This week fish is scarce, and traps and trawl men are doing very little. Captain are scarce and fish appears to have struck off from the shore, and whether it will return again it is hard to imagine.
The average catch for traps is about 20 qts. and trawls and hook and line men 10 qts.
A few crews have 150 qts. others have only 50 qts. for two traps.
There is yet plenty time to secure a good trap voyage, if fish would strike in.

Wedding Bells

Yesterday afternoon at 4:15 p.m. at the residence of the bride's parents, Southside Road, Miss Florence B. Seivour, daughter of Mr. I. J. Seivour, was united in holy wedlock to the Rev. J. A. Wilkinson, of Durham, England. Rev. Mr. Atkinson officiating. At the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Francis Cummins, the bride, charmingly attired in a gown of ivory satin and old lace, with veil and orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas, entered the room wearing on the arm of her father. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Dora Jones, and Miss Laura King, who were prettily attired in pale blue crepe de chine, with black picture hats. The groom was ably supported by Rev. A. N. Jones, cousin of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Waterford Bridge station where they were entrained for Catalina to spend a short honeymoon. The groom's present to the bride was a purse of gold, and to the bride a diamond ring. The young couple were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents including a piece of gold from the bride's father.

Returned Soldiers and Sailors.

Welcomed by Vast Crowd of Citizens—Bunting Taken Down in Honor of the Dead.

Owing to the heavy casualty list that reached the city yesterday the big demonstration that was to take place at the Railway Station in honour of our returning soldiers and sailors was postponed; all the decorations and bunting being immediately removed. However a large number of men, women and children crowded the station platform and as our heroes stepped from the train they were given a hearty welcome. The returned men of the Army and Navy were lined up and received from the Hon. J. R. Bennett, Acting Premier, on behalf of the Government and people of Newfoundland a whole hearted welcome home. Mr. Bennett spoke in very touching words of the great sorrow that has cast a dark cloud over our land. He felt sure that after a short stay with their loved ones, and when fully restored to health they would again come forward to average their fellow countrymen who now lay cold in death. The boys in blue and khaki and heroes were then placed in automobiles and driven to Government House where His Excellency the Governor extended a welcome to the men who had done their duty for their country.

The returned soldiers are:—Capt. W. A. Parsons, Army Surgeon; Corporal Parsons, Ptes. Wakeley and Harvey who have seen active service in the Gallipoli war, and bear upon their bodies honourable scars, everlasting reminders of that terrible campaign.

The men of the Navy are nine in number; their names are:— Able-bodied seaman W. J. Bruce, Chief Steward Joseph Heater, Azariah Ferguson, Jas. R. Barnes, Azariah McFarlan, W. T. Bugden, Jas. Wheeler and Sam Smith.

The men were attached to H. M. S. Champion and M. M. S. Pembroke. Seaman Heater is invalided, suffering from the effects of an injured leg when fully recovered will be back on deck again. Most of the other men signified their intention of re-entering the Navy while others are casting longing eyes towards the Army.

Included in the vast crowd of people at the station were Mayor Joseph Capt. G. T. Carly, members of the W. P. A. and Recruiting Committee, and other prominent citizens.
