

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

LIFE'S REWARD.
I have run it over.
I have run it through.
I have trod the clover
Under skies of blue.
I have heard the thunder.
Seen the lightning flash.
Heard my castles crash.
But from every sorrow
And from every pain.
Always some to-morrow
Smiled on me again.

Bitter days and lonely
I have had to face.
Days when anguish only
Seemed to rule the place.
But the storm abated.
And I rose to see
Orchards blossom-freighted.
Birds in every tree.
Sunshine dancing round me.
Joy beside my door.
And the care which bound me
Fretted me no more.

I have run it over.
All that life has meant.
I have played the rover.
Dreaming as I went:
Laughed and loved and neigbored.
Wept and suffered pain.
With the throng I've labored.
With them shared the rain.
But for all the trouble.
And for every tear.
Life has paid me double
In fellowship and cheer.

Russia's Experiment.

"Stead's Review" has never looked with unkindly eye upon Sovietism; yet in a recent issue appears this item:—

"The school teachers of the Don Basin have addressed an impassioned appeal to the All-Russian Executive Committee, begging it to prevent them from dying of starvation. Judging by the fact that two previous appeals have been left without response, it is all too probable that the Soviet Government will treat this one with equal contempt. In this appeal the teachers describe their misery. 'Does in Soviet Russia get better food than we,' they say. Their families have left the district, seeking to save themselves from death by starvation, but they themselves have stuck to their posts, and are suffering the dreadful pangs of hunger. Day by day they are growing weaker. Can it be, they ask, that the Commissariat of Education, to which they have appealed time after time, does not realize that by staying at their posts they are fulfilling public service, and deserve just a little bread in return? They implore the Government to give them bread and their pay for the last six months, and agree that the cost of the bread should be deducted from their salaries. The Bolshevik press seems to be beginning to realize the danger of a complete extermination of the schools. 'To-morrow there will be no schools in Russia,' says the writer of an article in the Investia. 'Education is in the last stages of collapse.'"

Rumanian Engineer to Study Currents.

Demetri Joanowici, the Rumanian engineer who claims to be able to keep the St. Lawrence river open for navigation from Quebec to Montreal all the year round, is setting out shortly on his series of cruises along the river to study currents, ice formation, etc., using the vessels of the Cunard line, for which he has been given free travelling and every possible facility, between Montreal and Father Point.

When he has completed his study he will put his complete proposals before the Federal Government. Meanwhile, Mr. Joanowici has written to the Soviet Government in Moscow, offering to give them the benefit of his invention to keep the Baltic and Black seas open all the year round.
