Civic Affairs at Winkleville

tairs are conducted in another city of similar size I beg space to write a few words about Winkleville where I resided during the greater part of last ear. Like St. John's it lies opposit beautiful mountain on the shores of ce ends, for Winkleville is the dirtiest and most antiquated city in North America. Asked "Why Win kleville?" one of its residents replied "Oh we always let things rip!" Its slogan is, "What was good enough for granddady is good enough for us. nhabitants roar with laughter nd garbage are kept in separate cov ashes and garbage on the drain of sidewalk around the pail, and after a while when the wind and dogs and children have carried off most of it muybe the sanitary man will take it a ride out to one of the country ghfar s and spread it on either roam the streets daily. The women of Winkleville are 1925 sweet, modest creatures releshing to 1924 meet with in this age of suffragettes. They are concerned only with loving, clothing and feeding their families. As long as the coal and groceries arrive it matters nothing to them that horses' shoes hurt. As long as the milk arrives each morning it matters nothing to these good housewives that the bottles have been flicked out with dirty rags, that the milker has Consumption or sore and filthy hands and that the cow and stable are unspeakably dirty: that the bread and candy have been basking all day in a cosy shop window with dust and flies and cats, and at night rats and mice. They scour and scrub their homes but they send their children to sit six hours a Syd Chaplin Does overcrowded school rooms.
