James J. Jeffries also attempts to roast the football game and declares he would not play it for $1,000 a minute. It seems to be the fashion of late for prize fighters to knock the Rugby game. We might here remark that it has not been the brutail'y of prize fighting that has lost it popularity, but the crookedness of the followers of the game. Football is on the level even if it may be a trifle strenuous.

Should the team be forced to disband, it will not stop the boys from playing football, for they certainly will go along as independent organizations, relieved even from those measures of discipline that now obtain. Football is a rough, and to the untrained person, a dangerous, sport. But it has obtained a foothold, and is not going to dents. Besides defeating the city teams Kenzle. be wiped out. There may be force to arguments that it is perilous pastime for young boys, but these do not apply so strongly to football in the colleges. It will be noticed, if one pays particular attention to this point, that the victim of a football fatality is usually a member of some independent eleven, which pays no attention to training, or of some school team. Four deaths have been reported this fall. Two were members of the regular elevens of high schools, one was on a school scrub team, and the fourth was a member of a boys' club.-Detroit Free Press.

The athletic situation on the American side is being more carefully scrutinized at present than ever before in its history. The Duffey expose, inating as is does many of the athletes at present students in the universities, causes much uneasiness among the authorities, and will result in ite shape as yet, nor have the colleges the old scrimmage rules, and will conthe department of athletics being thoroughly overhauled. One writer in a suggested been seriously approached in tinue at the game until the end of the large American daily openly charges Eckersall and others on the University of Chicago football team are professionals. Also that the conditions that exist in that university are similar to the conditions existing in all the American colleges. These charges are made openly and the writer says he can substantiate them. The other branches of athletics are in an equally deplorable state. Charges of brutality and professionalism are made in the frankest manner possible. All this agitation will have, however, a most beneficial effect. Athletics are and should be subservient to scholarship in the universities. And to make it wider in its application athletics should ever be Darroch's Candidature Favsecondary to a serious aim in life.
