London's O.H.A. Seniors Will Hop On Ice Tonight For Season's First Workout

LOWREY ADMITS MOVE TO GOTHAM

His Confirmation of Rumor Comes On Return To City.

The first definite announcement made by Jerry Lowrey locally, that he was going to New York coincided last night with the announcement that the senior with the announcement that the senior squad would hop on the brand new sheet of ice at the artia tonight for the initial practice of the 1925-26 cam-sheet of ice at the 1925-26 campaign.

Lowrey, who proved very popular here as one of the youngest players in the Big Six, leaves the city for New York on Monday. There is no question but that his loss will be felt, though with the inimitable Shrimp MacPherson on the job and the possibility of Sandy Somerville, former Varsity star taking another whirl at hockey, center ice will be adequately looked after.

The railbirds will, it is expected, be given a chance to exercise their optics tonight between 5 and 6 o'clock, and on the biggest squad London has ever mustered for a senior workout. Last year London started the season with six men equal to any six men playing amateur hockey, but lacked reserves. The suspension of Bellefuellie and later Neville's defection to the pros, raised an S.O.S. for reserves, and they weren't in sight.

Plenty of Talent.

Coach Bill Marsden, on the dope, has talent comparable with last year and much more of it, and there is no question about the former Aura Lee mentor's ability to get the very last ounce of determination and the last flash of ability out of any hockey team he is effective.

There will be a fight on for every ossition on the team this year from he moment the men hop over the position on the team this year the boards.

Much interest attaches to "Shrimp" MacPherson. The mighty atom of hockey, who two years ago was seen here in action against the then formidable Soo Greyhounds, became an immediate hit with the crowd. Shrimp since his advent into London has grown in weight, and vertically, but will still be among the pocket giants of hockey. Sandy Somerville is also a capable center ice performer with a terrific shot and if he elects to turn out, will undoubtedly make the team. These two are flanked by plenty of talent on both sides. On the left rail, there should be a tidy but good-natured battle between Leamy and Keeling, the former star of the Owen Sound juniors. Leamy is probably one of the cleverest stick-handlers in the amateur ranks, but last year lacked scoring punch. If he picks this up under Marsden, Keeling with his undoubted speed, the hard shot he packs, and his fairly tricky knowledge of play along the boards, will have a real job on his hands keeping Leamy off the regular line-up.

Bellefeuille should have left a gaping hole on the right hand side of the rink, but none of the experts seem to think that he has.

Young Tom Fillmore is a real pros-that he has.

line men. Fillmore has everything needed to slip into Bellefeuille's shoes except experience.

No Defence Worrles.

On the defence Marsden will have no worrles. Bill Starkings, rated as first choice on many of the all-star selections in the Big Six last season, is the main buttress of the defence system. Yip Foster, last year with Aura Lee junior champions, and Teddy Graham, leaves no defence worrles. Graham can relieve up front as well. In addition to these three there is Mel Walkem, one of the best defence men in the Toronto group last year, who is a freshman at Western. Whether Walkem will play or not is not definitely known, but if he is declared eligible he'll take a lot of elbowing off any man's team.

Alf, Moore in goal played for Marsden as a junior and then as a senior. He's come through the fire of a senior campaign, and the former Aura Lee pilot still thinks he is one of the best netminding prospects in amateur /hockey. Moore had several offers last season to gook up with Montreal, but turned them minding prospects in ameteur mover and several offers last season to mook up with Montreal, but turned them down. That is the known qualities. There are several prospects who have taken up their residence here and have been invited out. Marsden has insisted that the workouts be thrown open to all comers, and wants it strictly understood that open house and an open mind is going to be kept around the arena from now until the schedule opens.
