The Processor Section of the Company of the Company

As the result of the vote just taken, and for which allow me here to return my most sincere thanks, it devolves upon me to preside over the deliberations of this body during its sittings until final adjournment. This honor I feel is paid more to the Toronto trades and labor council, the president of which body I happen to be at this time, than to me, fully conscious as I am of that lack of experience so necessary in directing such an intelligent body of men as I now find before me. But as I always make it a point to do my duty as best I know how in every condition of my life, I will follow that line now, trusting to your kind indulgence and direction where necessary.

While I may find it somewhat difficult to define minutely the many reasons that urged the Toronto trades and labor council to call together representatives of labor in its various phases throughout the dominion, yet I feel justified in saying that the disturbed condition of trade matters, coupled with strikes always detrimental under any phase, occurring from time to time, and the apparent need for a much. under any phase, occurring from time to time, and the apparent need for a much by-law to the south side of Richmond closer cementing of all classes of labor for common defence and protection, has been not a small factor in the determination. That the council was not governed by narrow-mindedness in the premises is best evidenced by the call, embracing not only trade unionists, but also knights of labor. That this was right in principle I know yesterday. On account of it being Christ-That this was right in principle I know you will agree, as between the two bodies antagonism should not, and I am glad to find does not exist, and between the two no section or class of wage-earners need be without organization — and Johnston, larceny, three months in the consequent protection. look in your deliberations such questions as the extension of the franchise to a much greater degree than at present prevails, the Chinese inmigration curse, pauper and assisted passage," immigration from Europe, the necessity for factory and sanitary legislation, such legislation by the dominion parliament as would amply protect the wages of mechanics and laborers involved in insolvent estates; a protest against placing the product of convict labor in an open market in competition with the product of the labor of honest men, and the liability of employers when employes suffer disability through unprotected machinery and so forth. It appears to me too that some action will be necessary with the view of devising ways and means for the view of devising ways and means for the better prosecution of efforts towards securing such legislation as may be required in repealing unjust laws as well as in the passage of such measures as may be deemed recognized in institute to the work. ing classes from time to time. With these hurriedly conceived remarks I heartily welcome you to the Queen city of the west and be productive of the greatest possible amount of good to the wage-earners of the dominion at large.
