Whether a wire is alive or dead is most easily ascer-teined by examining the condition of the person who has just grasped it firmly with his right hand.—Toron-to Globe. Under certain conditions it is quite possible to grasp a live wire with the right hand, or left either, and feel no pleasant results.

But it is rather a ticklish business. False Pretences For a Purpose. It is for an evil purpose and not for one having any relish in it of either truth or ness that The Globe now suggests to us consideration of the question: "Have the Colonies Seceded?" Our scheming, but really needs is some good, hearty, still hard-put-to-it, contemporary thus seizes bursting, side-splitting woe.

In the course of a remarkable article in The Nineteenth Century, Sir Julius Vogel, formerly Premier of New Zealand, and one of the first projectors of Imperial Federation, suggests a use to which the Imperial Federation, suggests a use to which the Imperial Federationists may put the Conference of Colonial representatives proposed lately by Sir Charles Tupper. That conference, says Sir Julius may help the cause-greatly by declaring, with all possible authority, that no colony has, or can have, any right to declare its independence: To us this proposition appears about as reasonable and modest as one that Great Britain can have no right to sever herself casion for "trying it on: can have, any right to declare its independence. To us this proposition appears about as reasonable and modest as one that Great Britain can have no right to sever herself from any colony which may refuse to act according to the wishes of the Imperial Government. But let that pass. The reason why Sir Julius wants the Tupperian Conference to make the suggested declaration is well worth noting. That declaration, he says, might persuade the self-governing colonies that they need entertain no hope of arriving at complete self-government or independence. Deprived of this hope they would, he thinks, consent to Imperial Federation. We do not agree with him. As a large measure of self-governent is better than a smaller measure, the Colonies would continue to reject Imperial Federation even if they could be persuaded to forsake the hope of ultimate independence. But they could not be so persuaded. The suggested declaration against the Colonial right to secede would be generally laughed at if made by a Conference of Colonial Imperial Federationists. If made by a conference in luding representatives of the British Government it would probably break up the a chance of discussing municipal matters and civic representatives to greater advantage than at present, and the influence of so much ace including representatives of the British perial rederationists. If made by a cointerence in luding representatives of the British Government it would probably break up the Empire immediately. Sir Julius himself supplies excellent reasons for the opinion that Australians and Canadians would treat such a declaration as an insolent attempt to limit their freedom, and a sufficient cause for establishing their threatened independence. Gentle reader, The Globe is "laying" for you here. It wants you to believe certain things which, if generally believed by the people of Canada, would greatly help The Globe's party, which it must be allowed seems to stand in rather pressing need of help these times. First, then, you are to understand that the independence of Canada is desired by all right-thinking Canadians; who, however, have not yet got the length of fixing the date. That remains to be fixed on a future occasion, as is the case with that of the "good time coming" of which that of the "good time coming" of which we have heard, so much. You are to understand further that this ambitious. scheme of independence for Canada is opposed tooth and nail by certain wicked persons with Imperial Federation or whatever other promising alternative they can conjure up. You are to believe that the honorable independence of Canada is the policy of Reformers, Liberals, Grits and of The Globe; while, conversely, continued subjection to England. conversely, continued subjection to England is the policy of the Tories. Now this is not merely a shameful suppression of the truth of history, but it is also the assertion of what is false to an alarming degree. Canada's real declaration of independence was her National Policy Act, which Sir Leonard Tilley, then Minister of Finance, had the honor of introducing into Parliament in 1879. It was a bold act indeed—announcing that henceforth Canada would tax British goods for the avowed purpose of protecting home.

But the act went through the regular form all right; and there sppeared "to be "nobody hurt" except the old fogies of Grit and Free Trade obstructionists. Canada declared for Proobstructionists. His Grace's reply was admirable: He thanked them for the kind terms of the beautiful address. "Religion, Patriotism and Science" was a fitting motto for that grand institution and for all good Catholics. The Archbishop felicitously enlarged on the functions of each of these, giving admirable counsel to the pupils. He quoted from a speech of Hon. His Grace highly approved this liberal sentiment, and said he believed this was the opinion of all good and true Protestants.

On patriotism the Archbishop waxed eloquent, and his stirring words were drank in by the earnest and enthusiastic pupils.

With grace and commendation the Archbishop distributed the testimonials of merit which had been won by the pupils during December.
