

Your cough, like a dog's bark, is a sign that there is something foreign around which shouldn't be there. You can quiet the noise, but the danger may be there just the same. Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil is not a cough specific; it does not merely allay the symptoms but it does give such strength to the body that it is able to throw off the disease.

You know the old proverb of "the ounce of prevention?" Don't neglect your cough. Your druggist keeps Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil. Put up in 50c. and $1.00 sizes.

Literary Notes.

The January Arena is the most interesting number that has appeared in many months. It is of special interest to legislative bodies, physicians, and lawyers on account of the article on "A Court of Medicine and Surgery," written by A. B. Choate, the prominent lawyer, at the request of leading physicians. Mr. Choate intends to inaugurate a movement which it is believed by some of the ablest lawyers and physicians will be of as vital importance to medicine and surgery as well as to the public as was the movement that resulted in the establishment of trial by jury to the public and to the legal profession. This is the opening shot of a campaign that will be waged from The Arena's pages by leading physicians, surgeons, and jurists in the near future, and that will be carried before the legislature in Minnesota and elsewhere this winter.

Four beautiful maidens, some in old-fashioned costume, some in modern dress, adorn the four panels, or folders, which compose The Youth's Companion Calendar for 1897. The Calendar complete is 10½ by 24 inches in size, and is the most artistic and attractive record of the passing days which has yet appeared. It is lithographed in twelve colors, from four beautiful water-color paintings, and is perfectly charming in tone and design. The Calendar is published exclusively by The Youth's Companion, and could not be sold in art stores for less than one dollar. But it is sent free to all new subscribers who send the subscription price ($1.75), and to all subscribers who promptly renew their subscriptions. It may also be had for 50 cents in cash. The announcement of The Companion for 1897 promises even more than the usual number of good things. It is especially strong, not only in good stories, but in articles which inform as well as interest the whole family. Illustrated prospectus of the volume for 1897 sent free on application. Address The Youth's Companion, 207 Columbus avenue, Boston, Mass.

lished of Canadian agriculture. Able representative writers in every province of Canada, from British Columbia to Nova Scotia, discuss its tendencies, needs, and prospects. Robert Elliott, a true Canadian son of the soil, strikes the keynote in his bright little poem, "Take Heart of Hope, O Farmer." Among the leading contributors are: Mr. Geo. Johnston, Dominion Statistician of the Agricultural Department, Ottawa, who shows the remarkable development of our agricultural exports since Confederation, in 1867; Hon. John Dryden, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, deals with "Canadian Live Stock Husbandry"; Hon. Thomas Greenway, Premier of Manitoba, "Agriculture in the Prairie Province"; Mr. Angus Mackay, Superintendent of the Indian Head Experimental Farm, "Farming in the Northwest Territories"; R. E. Gosnell, Provincial Librarian of British Columbia, a most graphic article on the "Golden West"; Richard Gibson, on the "Madison Square Garden Show." Mr. Julius L. Inches, Secretary for Agriculture, New Brunswick; Mr. B. W. Chipman, Secretary for Agriculture, Nova Scotia; and Mr. Wm. Clark, Prince Edward Island, write on agriculture in the maritime provinces; Prof. E. E. Faville, on "The Fruit Year in Nova Scotia"; W. A. Hale, on "Farming in Quebec"; a valuable Farmers' Institute address by John McMillan, M.P., is given; "How American Farming Strikes a Canadian," by J. Wilson Knight, B.S.A.; the ablest review we have seen of "British Agriculture," by Archibald Macneilage, Secretary of the British Clydesdale Society and editor of the Scottish Farmer; besides complete reports of the Ontario Fat Stock Show and breeders' annual meetings, and many practical articles, such as "Gold Medal Buttermaking," "How She Won the Lord Mayor's Cup," etc. This number of the Advocate is bound in a beautiful colored cover, and, besides nearly a score of choice photo-engravings, contains a full-page colored plate on special paper of Mr. Crossley's "Sandy Bay Stock Farm" in Muskoka, Ont. A fine view is also given of Mr. Simpson Rennie's Gold Medal Farm at Milliken, Ont. The British Columbia, Northwest, and Scottish scenes are among the very best.

It is the best of evidence that Canada has a rapidly growing distinctive literature of her own, that from the presses of one publishing house all of the above books—which with two exceptions (the new stories by Miss Barr and Miss Swan) are by Canadian writers—should be issued within the latter half of the present year.

We have a recently issued catalogue, with portraits of many of the best known Canadian authors, which we should like to place in the hands of every teacher in Canada. We will send it, postpaid, to any address on application. We look to the teachers to interest their pupils in the literature of their own country.

The Ladies' Home Companion. This popular ladies' journal, now in its twenty-fourth year, is readable and attractive. Its many short and serial stories are especially fine. It has few equals in the excellence of its special departments devoted to Fashions, Fancy Work, House-keeping, Floriculture, Talks with Girls, Mothers' Chat, Home Adornment, Children, etc. Articles of general interest by thoughtful and experienced writers are features of every issue. Each number of The Companion is profusely illustrated with exquisite drawings; in short, it claims to have the best writers and most beautiful pictures money can buy. It gives from 24 to 32 pages, size 11 by 16 inches, each issue, printed on fine paper, and put in a handsomely-illustrated cover. It is an excellent high-class magazine of general and home literature. Published by the old and well-known firm of Mast, Crowell & Kirkpatrick, Springfield, Ohio. They will send specimen copies free to any address.
