

A WONDERFUL SUBSTANCE.
The Chicago Western Catholic says: "It is endorsed by Bishop Gilmore, of Cleveland, Ohio, and by some of our most honored and respected priests throughout the country who have used it for rheumatism, with success where all other remedies failed. We refer here to St. Jacobs Oil. We know of several persons in our own circle who were suffering with this dreaded disease, rheumatism, who tried everything and spent hundreds of dollars for medicine which proved of no benefit. We advised them to try St. Jacobs Oil. Some of them laughed at us for faith in the 'patent stuff' they chose to call it. However, we induced them to give it a trial, and it accomplished its work with such a magic-like rapidity that the same people are now its strongest advocates, and will not be without it in their homes on any account."
Mr. Joel D. Harvey, U.S. Collector of Internal Revenue of this city, has spent over two thousand dollars on medicine for his wife, who was suffering dreadfully from rheumatism, and without deriving any benefit whatever; yet two bottles of St. Jacobs Oil accomplished what the most skillful medical men failed in doing. We could give the names of hundreds who have been cured by this wonderful remedy, did space permit us. The latest man who has been made happy through the use of this valuable liniment is Mr. James A. Conlan, Librarian of the Union Catholic Library of this city. The following is Mr. Conlan's endorsement:
UNION CATHOLIC LIBRARY ASSOCIATION,
Chicago, Sept. 16, 1880.
I wish to add my testimony as to the merits of St. Jacobs Oil as a cure for rheumatism. One bottle has cured me of this troublesome disease, which gave me a great deal of bother for a long time; but thanks to the remedy, I am cured. This statement is unsolicited by any one in its interest. Very respectfully,
JAMES A. CONLAN, Librarian.

IRELAND AND HER PHYSICIANS.
THE LATEST PANACEA FOR IRISH ILLS.
[N. Y. World Correspondence.]
It is not for want of suggestions that Ireland still remains in an unsettled state. Mr. Goldwin Smith thinks the true solution of the Irish difficulty will be found when the Queen takes up her residence in the now unhappy island for a certain period of the year. A still more startling suggestion, however, appears in a letter addressed to one of the daily papers by Mr. M. S. Mulhall, the author of one or two excellent statistical works, which should have a place upon every commercial man's book-shelf. Mr. Mulhall proposes that we should make the United Kingdom one country by the construction of a breakwater across the St. George's Channel. The cost of such a breakwater is estimated at from sixteen to twenty millions, and when due consideration is given to the immense advantages that would arise from such a connection, this does not certainly seem a very exorbitant price to pay. It is, doubtless, true that the sea barrier between us and Ireland has served to keep up the hostility of race, and that but for the Irish Sea Ireland would now be enjoying the same tranquility and prosperity as Scotland. If this suggestion, however, should not commend itself to the practical mind, Mr. Mulhall is ready with another. Instead of one breakwater let two be built, one from Dublin to Holyhead, and the other from Wexford to Milford Haven, and the intermediate sea be pumped out in the same way that the Dutch have emptied Lake Haarlem. Mr. Mulhall then pictures to himself that this would become a winter resort, and people, instead of going away to the South of France, would spend their winters between seas, and he believes it is a work that will in all probability be carried out before the close of the next century. I only hope Mr. Mulhall's prophecy may come true if it is to have the effect of restoring peace to Ireland; at present the chances seem rather against the realization.

EACH A GREATER VILLAIN THAN THE OTHER.
During the wild old days in the West a Brooklyn man, who died long since, was in business in a Michigan town and formed a close friendship with the cashier of one of the private banks. One evening the cashier admitted that he was laying his plans to rob the bank of all its funds and skip into Canada, and his friend permitted himself to be drawn into the plot. They were to skip together and share alike, and a certain date was mentioned for the affair to come off. The Brooklyn man sold out his store at a big sacrifice and went to Detroit, where the cashier was to join him with the stolen funds. The hour came and the cashier came, but he had no sparkle in his eyes.
"Busted, busted all to blazes!" he groaned in explanation.
"Didn't you get the money?"
"Not a cent!"
"How's that?"
"Why, the president skipped out Sunday night, and the secretary followed Monday morning, and the whole board of directors disappeared that night. On Tuesday morning there wasn't an internal dollar bill left to steal!"

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS IT IS FOOLY TO BE WISE.
Dr. Bliss, it is not a success at probing for bullets, was highly successful in despatching bullets; but the grandest bulletin of success is that which heralds the wonderful cure performed by Burdock Blood Bitters, that matches tonic and blood purifier which acts at once upon the bowels, the skin, the liver and the kidneys, while it invigorates and strengthens the whole system.

MOTHERS! MOTHERS! MOTHERS!
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle.

TAKE CARE OF THE LITTLE ONES.
Children are the mother's idol; the father's pride; they are entrusted to your care to guide and protect, to all positions of honor and trust. If you truly feel the responsibility of your trust, and wish to make the duties of your office as light and pleasant as possible, don't allow a slight cold to prey upon the little ones, for even a single day or night may reveal the dreaded diphtheria, Croup, and a few doses of DOWNS' ELIXIR, if taken in season, will banish it, as well as Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and all throat and lung affections. For sale by all dealers in medicine. Price 25 cents and $1 per bottle.

MR. COSTIGAN'S RESOLUTIONS.
The following set of resolutions will be moved by Mr. Costigan in the Ottawa House on Friday next:
Most GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN.—We, Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled, desire most earnestly in our own name and in behalf of the people whom we represent to renew the expressions of our unwavering loyalty and devotion to Your Majesty's person and Government.

1. We have observed, may it please Your Majesty, with feelings of profound regret and concern the distress and discontent which have prevailed for some time among Your Majesty's subjects in Ireland.
2. We would respectfully represent to Your Majesty that your Irish subjects in the Dominion of Canada are among the most loyal, most prosperous and most contented of Your Majesty's subjects.
3. We would further respectfully represent to Your Majesty that the Dominion of Canada, while offering the greatest advantages and attractions for those of our fellow-subjects who may desire to make their homes amongst us, does not receive that proportion of emigrants from Ireland which might reasonably be expected, and that this is due in a great measure, in the case of our Irish fellow-subjects who have sought foreign homes, to their feeling of estrangement towards the Imperial Government, whom they consider responsible for the existing state of affairs in their native country.

4. We would further respectfully represent to Your Majesty that in the interests of your loyal Dominion and of the entire Empire, it is extremely to be desired that Your Majesty may not be further deprived in the development of Your Majesty's possessions on this continent of the valuable aid of those of Your Majesty's Irish subjects who may feel disposed to leave their native land to seek more prosperous homes.
5. We would most respectfully pray, may it please Your Majesty, that some such form of local self-government may be extended to Ireland as is now enjoyed by the provinces composing this Dominion of Canada, and under which Your Majesty's Canadian subjects have prospered exceedingly, so that Ireland may become a source of strength to Your Majesty's Empire, and that Your Majesty's Irish subjects at home and abroad may feel the same pride in the greatness of Your Majesty's Empire, the same veneration for the justice of Your Majesty's rule and the same devotion to and affection for our common flag which is now felt by all classes of Your Majesty's loyal subjects in this Dominion.

We would, therefore, most respectfully pray that Your Majesty would be graciously pleased to take into Your Majesty's favorable consideration the cases of those persons who are now suffering imprisonment in Ireland, charged with political offences, with a view to extending to them Your Most Gracious Majesty's royal clemency, so that with their release the inestimable blessing of civil liberty may be once more restored to all parts of Your Majesty's Empire.

We pray that the blessings of Your Majesty's reign may, for your people's sake, be long continued.

WORKINGMEN.
Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of Aue, Bilious or Spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and great expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait.—Burlington Hawkeye.

NO ACCOUNTING FOR TASTES.
"You had better get rid of that stove pipe hat; you'll look livelier without it," said a powerfully-built, red-faced young truck driver the other day, as he nearly drove over a delicate-looking gentleman on Park Row. The pedestrian had to skip in a very undignified manner to escape.

"You want your neck wrung very badly," he said, as he gained the sidewalk and looked after the truck.
The driver heard him and pulled up his horse at once.
"Will you wring it?" he asked in gruff tones.

The gentleman took a few seconds to consider the question. Then he said:
"No, I'll leave that job for the hangman; but I'll flatten your nose, if that will suit you."

It appeared that the proposal suited the driver, for in thirty seconds he stood before the grumpy-looking man.
"Now flatten my nose," he said defiantly.
It was done before the words were well out of his mouth, and as he lay on his back in the gutter the expression on his blood-spattered countenance was that of mingled pain and amazement.

"What did you strike that man for?" asked a policeman hurrying up, and seizing the gentleman by the arm.
"Because he asked me to strike him, you know," was the reply; "and as he looked like an honest, good-natured young fellow, I didn't like to disfigure him."

The policeman looked at the truckman, who rose slowly, and without making any complaint mounted the seat of his wagon and drove off.
"Well," said the policeman, impressively, as he walked away, "there's no accounting for tastes."

THE DECLINE OF RELIGION IN ENGLAND.
English society is undergoing a profound change. Things are done, deeds are committed, stories are heard of that would have produced terrible scandals a few years ago, and now hardly rouse a public denunciation to all emotions. Religion is rapidly losing ground before German materialism and skepticism. Law and authority are daily assailed. Loyalty itself is tottering and may have soon to be reckoned as another medieval superstition.

As for religion and devotional observances, no doubt a great many people still go to church on Sunday, but a great many also go elsewhere or stay at home. England's magnificent cathedrals, so full in times of yore when the old faith reigned supreme, are left unattended now, and the service dies off, sadly watched by insignificant groups of the few remaining believers and some passing strangers. Melancholy statistics have lately been given, some by religious, some by indifferent authorities, as to the number of people attending the churches on Sundays. A few dissenting chapels and Catholic churches show a better figure, and now and then a clergyman distinguished by his oratory or by some worldly fame draws a fair congregation; but the fact remains that an increasing portion of the community is growing either indifferent or adverse to all forms of public worship. No doubt Sundays are still kept with external reverence and oppressive dullness, but such observances are becoming more and more a downright act of hypocrisy. They are maintained merely to save appearances, just as a man who has long ceased to believe, may continue to go to church in a pious parade, surrounded by his pious and fashionably attired family, in order to impress his relatives and his neighbors with a due sense of his high respectability. The same people, whose ardent devotional practices when staying at their homes might have given you cause for deep compassion, will, in ninety cases out of a hundred, ask you, if in another house, to join them in an amusing chat in the library while the family is at church.

In itself the English Sunday is an amazing instance of human inconsistency and narrow bigotry. Every place of amusement except the lowest—the public house—is closed on that day. Religion, or, rather, to be quite correct, its guardians here, forbid the contemplation of works of art, and all other beneficial and elevating recreations, but throw open the gin palace with all its degrading and brutal debauchery. It is a sin to row on the London ornamental lakes; cricket or football cannot be played; but nothing is considered more innocent than to go for a row on the river or on the sea, to enjoy a bicycle tour, and to indulge in any impromptu game which has no fixed rules; and in this last manner many good churchmen, friends of mine, disport themselves, while lecturing me for openly playing lawn tennis in my garden. If I retort, and observe that they are playing themselves, they calmly explain that it is not so, since it would be impossible to say what they are playing at. This is casuistry with a vengeance, and without that sincerity which the British are always parading before the world, as if the world knew nothing of it, and had to 'earn it from them. In clubs gambling is not allowed, or, at least, money cannot be put on the table; but imagination supplies the want, and games of cards quietly go on during the many slow Sabbath hours.

The authorities of the University of Oxford lately objected, on the ground of Sunday's rest, to the opening of certain gardens to the public; but how can we reconcile these clerical objections with the extra domestic work which the liberal entertainments offered on Sundays from morning till night in the colleges necessarily entail.

In Scotland thorough business habits have been turned to no inconsiderable profit the religious scruples of the people. Public vehicles, or machines, as they are sometimes called, do not ply for hire in that country on Sunday, and if, being a stranger, you do not ask for one at the livery stable in the proper manner, you expose yourself to unpleasant puritanical remarks; but offer the pious Scotch double the regular fare and his scruples immediately vanish. A friend of mine sends for a barber in some country place, but being a Sunday the barber indignantly declines to come. However, the puritan knew when to yield, and he shaved his friend more than one sense, for he charged him six times the market price of his attendance. In Scotland, too, there is every year a public fast day, nominally consecrated to spiritual exercises and devotions. On such occasions towns assume their stern Sunday look; the streets become as quiet as old deserted cloisters; no doubt the goodly people are hard at work at prayers. But the truth is that railway trains are allowed to run, and before the services begin, most of the inhabitants have quietly left the town to enjoy a pleasant trip in the country. The passenger traffic of the lines on those days is among the best of the year.

What has the great, stanch, beautiful faith of our fathers to do with these miserable and hypocritical devices? At Glasgow the reference of a friend of a mine who is looking for lodging is asked pointedly if the applicant is a professing Christian. This reference implies that he answers for a thorough knowledge of the Bible, but not for a regular attendance at church. With a quick perception of the value of both facts, the pious landlady always the apparently unacquainted perplexities of her conscience by immediately raising her habitual difficulty in getting many articles of dress worked by hand, executed between Saturday and Monday, while it would generally be useless to ask the same on Monday or Tuesday, as many landladies will rather work on Sunday, when they get no amusements, than on Monday when they can have them.—A. Y. Sun.

From H. F. MacCarthy, chemist, Ottawa writes: "I have been dispensing and jobbing Northrop and Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda for the past two years, and consider that there is no better preparation of the same kind in the market. It is very palatable, and for chronic coughs it has no equal."

At a meeting of patriotic artisans in London the other day, to protest against the Channel tunnel, the chairman in his opening said: "Gentlemen, we are here to protest against this tunnel channel—I mean this channel tunnel; I mean we are met to oppose this tunnel channel." Here the disabled orator sat down. His confusion seems fairly to represent British ideas on the subject.

THE TOTTING EMPRESS EUGENIE.
From the Duplo Courier.
To-day I saw that former beauty, the former Empress of France, entering her temporary London residence. The tall erect, and stately figure is bent and drooping; the queenly air is akin to that of the mendicant; the fair locks in their luxuriant wealth of tresses are white as the driven snow and thin and scanty in appearance; the large, expressive and animated eyes, half violet and half blue in recurrent tints, are gray, watery, and leaden looking; the oval face is wrinkled and worn by cruel care, and the blush of beauty is supplanted by a sepulchral whiteness. It has been my lot to see other queens in exile, other magnates dethroned, but no one so strongly aroused sympathetic sorrow as does this widowed, childless, parentless, isolated ex-Empress. But one consoling comfort is hers. It is in feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, and confronting the afflicted. Where the poor wear not their wants on their sleeves, there you will find the prematurely aged and tottering lady, rescuing a social wreck and holding out a hopeful beacon.
