"Mister Antonio."

Seats for next week's engagement at the new Princess Theatre of Orie Skinner in his latest success, "Mister Antonio," will go on sale this morning. Mr. Skinner's new play was written for him by Booth Tarkington, and the character, that of Tony Camarillo, played by Mr. Skinner, is a most picturesque one. Mr. Skinner comes here under the Charles Frohman management with a most capable company. Playing the role of Tony Camarillo is Ruth Rose, who is just back to the coast with Emily Stevens in "The Unchastened Woman." Joseph Brennan, an actor of the old school, plays the mayor, while among the others in the cast are Robert Harrison, Walter Scott, Alice Gale, Frances Landy.

"Cheating Cheaters." No comedy in years created the same comment as "Cheating Cheaters," the Max Marlin comedy of the underworld, which Edward H. Robbins and his players will present for the eighth week at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, next week, commencing Monday evening. This comedy of the underworld was produced by Mr. A. R. Woods at the Eltinge Theatre, where it enjoyed a run to capacity business for over one solid year after which it was sent to Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago. In each of these cities it repeated its New York success. Reserve seats will be placed on sale today at the theatre box office, and the usual feature matinee will be Wednesday.

"Within the Law." The first of a series of big photo-plays will be given at the Grand Opera House next week when the summer season of "Within the Law" will be inaugurated. The opening offering will be the massive screen version of Bayard Veiller's famous story success, "Within the Law." One of the many big scenes shows the interior of a department store with hundreds of patrons attending to their fascinating, but tiresome business of shopping. The matinee will be given every day during the photo-drama season and the scale of prices has been changed to meet the public fancy. All seats at the matinee will be twenty-five cents and at the evening performance, the prices will be fifty and twenty-five cents.

Next Week at Shea's. Always a welcome visitor in Toronto, Ben Welch, the inimitable character comedian, will headline the bill at Shea's Theatre next week in his original characterizations. In "Goodbye Divorcement," Comfort and King are very entertaining. Their impersonations of southern negroes will be well done. Bradley and Arline are singing and dancing. Ethel McDonough has a repertoire of exclusive songs, while Berk and Broderick offer a number of new dance features in an original way. Frank Dobson is a versatile comedian with much new material. The Eddy Duo, sensational mid-air performers, and the British Gazette, with new features, are also included in the bill.

Loew's Theatre. The thrills accompanying any story of the early days of the El Dorado Theatre are not wanting in "The Tiger Man," Wm. S. Hart's newest picture, which will be shown next week at Loew's Theatre and Winter Garden. The vaudeville feature will be the Douglas Family, featuring Scotch and Irish singing and dancing. The act comes direct from the London music hall. K. Watson, the "Abe Kabbibel" of vaudeville, in an entirely new offering, will be the added feature. Other acts embrace: The Siletta Girls, in aerials; "Tan Town Green" and "Fugate," offering original novel vaudeville eccentricities, and other entertaining turns. "Jett" animated cartoons, the bill-topics complete the bill.

At the Hippodrome. Not only was Maciste, the giant warrior appearing in "The Superwoman" at Shea's Hippodrome next week, a wonderful motion-picture star, but he also played the game of war in real life, sacrificing himself in the cause of liberty and freedom. He was killed while a member of an Italian unit on the Austrian front. In "The Superwoman" he will be seen in one of his greatest pictures. The Virginia Steppes will be seen in exclusive dances, while "Ankles" is a comedy sketch featuring Sam Grisman, Emyle Barton, George Lewis and Beatrice Pecan. "Sylvia" is a natural comedy offering, and with the assistance of his dog provokes much laughter. Cook and Sylvia are clever singers and dancers, while The Shattucks make the art of juggling unwieldy instruments seem easy. Cross and Fox in the amusing comedy, "The Double Cross," complete the bill.

"Merry Makers." The next attraction at the Star will be "The Merry Makers," a tuncful burlesque in two acts, entitled, "A Havana Honey Moon and the Near Detectives." The cast includes Lou Powers, Bob Nugent, Joe Lyons, John Webber, Miss Frances Tait, Miss Evelyn Sorrell, Buster Thompson. The chorus will be enlarged to twenty-four girls, and the latest musical numbers have been secured, together with new novelties. Frank Keenan at Strand. An extremely fine and finished act on the speaking stage in Toronto. He will be seen at the Strand Theatre today and for the remainder of this week in strong and convincing Pathé photodrama of railroad life called "Ruler of the Road." Every body knows that his power of characterization are of the highest order, and in this photoplay he has a role which gives him abundant opportunity for their display. He is particularly good in a masterful man's part, and that is exactly his role in "Ruler of the Road." He impersonates a big railroad president.

New Policy at Allen. The management of the Allen Theatre will put into effect a new policy, to take effect this Saturday. The entire program will be changed on Saturday of each week instead of Monday, as has been the custom in the past. Billie Burke in "Let's Get a Divorce," from Sardou's famous novel, "Divorcement," will be the attraction at the Allen today and tomorrow, and Mary Pickford in "Mills" will be the feature for this Saturday, continuing up to, and including, the following Friday. In "Mills," Mary Pickford takes the part of a wild, harum-scarum child of the west.

Mae Marsh Next Week. A new and most fascinating production is that in which Mae Marsh will star at the Regent next week. It is entitled "All Woman." She actually puts a village on its feet, elects the right man in the political campaign that is waging, and brings a new and wholesome atmosphere which the town has never enjoyed in the past. An excellent musical treat will be the continued appearance of Alan Turner, the famous Victor Record baritone, who will give a "request" program. The Madge Kennedy is proving most entertaining in "The Fair Pretender."

Theda Bara at Madison. For the latter half of this week, starting today, the feature at the Madison Theatre will be "Heart and Soul," the film version of Rider Haggard's great novel, "Jesse." Theda Bara, queen of emotional stars, is seen in the role of the heroine. Special matinee tomorrow, 2:15.

General Post. The first stock presentation ever made of "General Post," the British comedy of war times, with Thos. Wise in his original part will be made by Edward H. Robine and the Robins Players at the Royal Alexandra Theatre for the week of June 3.

PATRIOTIC LEAGUE'S WORK. The Patriotic League of College Street Methodist Church, composed of 25 members, has made during the past year 25 articles. In addition 96 articles were donated at a shower held at the home of the president, Mrs. Hogg, 44 Geoffrey street. Thirty-two boxes were sent to soldiers, former members of the church, and to Christmas stockings to Canadians in the hospital. The money raised amounted to $625.

I. O. D. E. DELEGATES. Among the delegates who have already arrived for the eighth annual meeting of the Daughters of the Empire are: Mrs. J. A. Kennedy and Mrs. P. D. Cramer, Hamilton; Mrs. McDonough, Stratford; Mrs. Hodgson, Montreal; Mrs. Niven, London; Mrs. Thair, St. Catharines; Mrs. R. M. Graham, London; Mrs. Keir and Mrs. Bray, Chatham; Mrs. Tucker, Parrboro, N.S.; Mrs. J. Amos, Johnston, Brockville; Mrs. Fairish, Yarmouth, N.S.; Mrs. Sexton, Halifax; Mrs. McAllister, High Prairie, Alberta; Mrs. G. A. Wright, Trenton.

NEW HOSTESS HOUSE. Equipment for the new Hostess House at Leaside is about complete, and the formal opening will take place a week from Saturday, when, if weather permits, there will be a banquet and addresses by several prominent people.

THE CELANDINE

Chelidonium majus.

"Others too, of lofty mien,
They have done as worldlings do,
Taken praise that should be thine,
Little, humble Celandine."

—Wordsworth.

Many have wondered much why Wordsworth was so much in love with the little Celandine, a dusty little tramp of the highways and byways, if ever there was one. Two entire little poems have been written about this smiling and real little yellow blossom, while the times without number that he has mentioned its happy face elsewhere, can scarcely be counted.

The little Celandine is an utterly insignificant wee blossom, and one who strives ever to live down the idea of "blushing unsexed" and of all the merry little wanderers who trip up and down the world, surely it seems the happiest. As the poet points out, "beneath our shoon," prized by the bees, "above all buds and cells," it plays hide-and-seek in the sun and shadow. "While the patient primrose sits like a beggar in the cold," it is just beside the hillbank. On a rather weak stem one to two feet high, the thin, deeply notched leaves, each two on each side and a terminal one, the largest. Rather strange are these leaves in color of a grey-green, slightly tinged with yellow, just a hint, as it were.

The blossoms, about half-an-inch across, look unlike those of the buttercup at first sight, but a second glance displays the illusion. Four widely separated petals, square at the ends, two ting green sepals beneath and numerous deep yellow stamens are conspicuous. Even when the blossoms are all out, and they come in little clusters on a long branching flower stem, the sight is not an impressive one. So it is, that few love the Celandine, because it is so commonly thought a weed, and nothing more. Yet it served to stir up such lovely thoughts in the poet, that this same dusty little wayside flower has CUTWORMS. The 24th of May! One of the gala days of the year, but in war time a day that many more Canadians than usual will devote to their gardens. For those who started work early some of the first young shoots may even now be appearing, while there are others who have just reached the stage of putting in their seed.

Early in the season the insect world is already "on the job." Cutworms destroy thousands of dollars worth of vegetable crops every year. Gardeners must aid in the campaign to save the crops by destroying these pests. Watch for their appearance, as they are already at work. They cut thru the stems of the young beans and tomato plants at the ground line during the night and leave the young plant dying on the ground. Investigation in the loose soil will generally discover the miscreant a few inches away, half an inch or so below the surface, when he can be summarily squashed. They can be killed wholesale by scattering along the rows poisoned bait made as follows: Bran, 20 pounds, cheap molasses, 1 quart, Paris Green or white arsenic, half a pound; water from 2 to 2 1/2 gallons. Mix the bran and Paris Green (or white arsenic) thoroughly in a wash tub while dry. Dissolve the molasses in the water and then the bran and poison with the same stirring well so as to dampen the bran thoroughly. A formula for small gardens is: One quart of bran, one teaspoonful of Paris Green and one tablespoonful of molasses, with sufficient water to moisten the bran. Apply after sundown as soon as cutworm injury is noticed. There is no objection to this mixture—it is poisonous to the birds.

You will remember, I hope, our friend the Bloodroot (of whom Celandine is a relation), with its "dripping, dripping blood." Celandine, when bruised, gives out from the crushed and swollen stems a bright orange and very stinging acid juice that effectually stains beyond all hope of cleansing, all things it touches. So thus does Celandine revenge herself for careless handling. This wild plant belongs to the poppy family, and possesses many of the common characteristics of the common garden poppy.

An odd name that is sometimes given to the plant is "swallow-wort," referring to its habit of coming about the time the swallows arrive. This explains the Greek name, "chelidonium," which means "swallow."

REGRETS FAILURE TO GIVE ADDRESS

James Ballantyne Hopes for Unity Between Labor and Veterans.

James Ballantyne, one of the men elected by the two bodies of labor to address the convention of Great War Veterans yesterday at Hamilton, and refused admittance, stated last night in the course of conversation that it would be a mistake to imagine that the representatives of labor were anxious to press their case before the returned soldiers. He pointed out that it was because the representatives of the soldiers had misunderstood the attitude of the labor men during the recent conference between the two bodies at the Levee Temple until it had been fully and properly explained, that it was felt essential in the interests of united action that the labor men be allowed to explain the situation to the G. W. V. A. convention.

"There had been complete harmony at the conferences between them and ourselves," said Mr. Ballantyne, "but there had been important points at issue which had been cleared up only after considerable discussion, and it was now felt that the labor men allowed to do so could explain their stand to the convention better than the soldiers' delegates."

"I quite agree that the convention composed a large number of members of the Great War Veterans' Association from branches unacquainted with the situation in Toronto, and that had the Toronto delegates been able to influence the others we would have had a proper hearing," continued Mr. Ballantyne. "But I do feel that the vote against us was unfortunate for the unity of feeling and of action which both bodies had been rapidly approaching. There can be no doubt that at some time in the not distant future the returned soldiers and the labor men will unite, and it is unfortunate that the consummation of this end should be delayed."

Originator of Empire Day Idea Remembered by Many People

On the other hand, there are millions the world over who took part in the celebration, meant to teach the children of the empire, loyalty and patriotism.
