THE TURKISH CAVALRY.

Composed of Thirty-Five Regiments of

The Turkish cavalry, says The Egyp-The Turkish cavary, says the Egyptian Herald, has a great advantage over European cavalries in so much as it can be more easily recruited from the populations, having from birth habits of horsemanship, whereas in Europe, where recruits have to be taken from everywhere, they come as taken from everywhere, they come as frequently from the working classes and rural classes as from those who are habituated to riding. The service being of four instead of three years, as is the case in France and Germany, from this as is the case in France and Germany, Turkish cavalry derives from this longer service advantages which it is not necessary to point out. If the modern strategical code has completely modified the conditions under which must now operate the actions of cavalry, it has in no way diminished the transportance of it. With the repeating importance of it. With the repeating rifle and the far-reaching cannon, the old-fashioned groupings on the battlefield and the great charges in a body can no longer be used.

Cavalry is the eye of an army, as superb nerve of any one 1 conceals well as a veil behind which it conceals well as a veil behind which it conceals "Really?" returned his companion its movements. A numerous cavalry is thus indispensable to a proper military organization. The Turkish cavalry is thus thirty-five regiments of five squadrons. The number might seem little in keeping with the military conditions of Turkey, but the Sultan has found in the patriotism of his faithful last week." found in the patriotism of his faithful subjects a method of doubling—and even more than that—his cavalry forces in time of war. The armament of Ottoman cavalry is composed of stightly curved swords and small-calibre rifles. A certain number of regiments are furnished with a lance, and everything tends to the supposition that these will be distributed to the rest of the cavalry. The uniform consists of a simple tunic, with one row of buttons, a pair of grey trousers and Prussian boots. The horses belong generally to the Turco-Persian, or Arab cross-breed. Of rather small build, of cross-breed. Of rather small build, of delicate form, nervous, with supple legs, and indefatigable, these horses are both very intelligent and very do-

Dr. Aubry, in writing a book on Contagion of Crime," used as an example a notorious family sprung from criminal parents who died early in the century, nearly all of whose members have records in the criminal law reports. A respectable grandchild of the criminal couple recently sued the doctor for damages and obtained them—the British courts holding that scientific research is no excuse for causing pain and discomfort to an in-necent person by defaming his grand-mother.—New York Sun.

Black Man Under a Bed. When Mrs. Justina Listner rolled her eyes and said "There is a big black man beneath the bed who carries away the naughty boys!" Master Andrew, aged 7, was wont to toe the strict mark of propriety. Yesterday Andrew looked beneath the bed and found a negro

'O, mamma! mamma!" he shrieked, "there is a black man there! Don't let him take me! I will be good!" Suddenly the negro dashed out from under the bed and made a break for liberty. The British Tenderfoot Picks Up Points

"I was on a stage that runs up through Napa County a few days ago," saic Attorney Martin Stevens, "when I passed a farmhouse with a half-dozen boys playing about the yard. Outside the gate were a half-dozen fat pigs, with tin cans tied to their stubby tails. The cans were filled with rocks, and rattled like cow bells every time a pig moved. The porkers stood glaring at each other while trying to make up their minds whether to run and squeal or stand still and grunt.

"Why do they put weights on the pigs' tails?" enquired a young Englishman, who was going up into Lake County to learn ranching.

"To keep 'em from running all the fat off themselves,' explained the stage driver.

"'Oh, ya-a-s; novel idea, by Jove," exclaimed the Britisher.

"Just then we passed a couple of Gogs that were trying to gnaw the tin cans off their tails.

"But why do they put weights on the dogs' tails?" asked the Britisher, who suspected the driver of lying.

"Why, to keep 'em from chasing the hogs, o' course."

"He was satisfied that he had much to learn about ranching."—From The Answering His Lordship. It is said that Lord Esher's retire ment, from a journalistic point of view, is regrettable, for there never has been, and never will be, another president of the Court of Appeal so eminently reportable as he. The running fire of "chaff" that he keeps up on learned counsel is humorous to a degree, but most disconcerting to the recipient thereof. His Lordship sometimes got a Roland for his Oliver—as when a young barrister, in the course of argument, stated that no reasonable person could doubt one particular proposition. "But I doubt it very much," said the judge. The youthful advocate, not one whit abashed, replied, "I said no reasonable person, My Lord." The Master of the Rolls could only gasp, "Proceed, sir, proceed."—From The London Weekly Telegrats McIntyre & Wardwell send the following despatch to their branch office in Toronto: The Anthracite stocks were the feature this afternoon. They advanced rapidly oa small transactions. It is generally believed that the advance indicates that some agreement has been tacitly arrived at which, however, may or may not be ratified by the meeting on Thursday. Sugar had a sharp rally on buying by the same people who sold yesterday. The report now is that the German Reichstag will not pass the increased export bounty. It is said Burlington's December earnings will show a fair increase, and that company is doing a good business. The stock was strong to-day, as indeed were all of the Grangers. The Senate Committee on Finance has taken no action on the tariff bill. The Senate itself is discussing the free silver coinage bill to-day. One of the most important items of news relates to the weakness of exchange, the demand rate having dropped to 4.85% on decreased inquiry for bills. Traders who sold for a reaction this morning evidently lost stock and rushed to cover, causing a buoyant close. There is a decided change in speculative sentiment for the better. Wall-street is now discounting, the success of the Government loan. It is generally thought that the amount of subscriptions will reach $300.000,000. The one unfavorable feature of the market is the absence of a short interest.

enst of the Rockies of 472,000 bushels, a decrease in Europe and afloat of 440,000, and an increase in the world's visible of only 32,000 bushels, the market sold off sharply to 63%c, and closed at 63%c. Export clearances about a quarter of a million in wheat and flour, but there is very little new business on this advance, and the exports are the result of old business at lower prices. We think well of wheat, and on any further decline think it a good purchase. Provisions were easy at the opening. On strong, spots there was free selling by the nackers. New York Jan. 29.—The Herald's St. Petersburg correspondent says: Nothing is known here about the supposed treaty between Russia and Turkey. The report of such a treaty caused a great deal of attention in diplomatic circles in St. Petersburg, but in the view of those best informed, there is nothing more behind the report than the good understanding which prevails between the two countries.

THEY'VE NO HING TO DO.

The Question Answered.

"What is it," many people ask, "that makes East Kent ale better than other brands?" In the first place East Kent is brewed by the accepted English formula. In its production only the finest hops (East Kent Golden) and No. 1 bright barley are used, and the brewery is supplied by one of the finest springs in Canada. East Kent ale is the best in Canada, and its quality will be maintained.
