GAG IS GAG ANYWHERE, SAYS SIR WILFRID LAURIER, WHO IS SORRY PREMIER GOT DOSE OF HIS OWN PILLS IN KITCHENER

Hopes Sir Robert Borden Will Be Given Every Privilege Due His Rank as Prime Minister of Canada.

RESENTS TORY INNUENDO REGARDING HIS LOYALTY

Refused to Serve on National Service Board Because It Was Bedeviled With Partisan Interference—Recalls Order to Sir Sam to "Go Slow" on Recruiting—Wonderful Reception to Old Chief in Canada's Capital.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—For over an hour tonight Sir Wilfrid Laurier addressed a crowd which crammed the Russell Theatre. Outside there was a long queue of people who vainly sought admittance. E. J. Daly, vice-president of the Ottawa Reform Association, in his introductory remarks as chairman, asserted that five thousand had been turned away.

The old chief was at his best, he fairly scintillated, and with recent disturbances at public meetings. Referring more particularly to the incident at Kitchener, when Sir Robert Borden was unable to speak, Sir Wilfrid expressed sincere regret that it had occurred. "I do not approve," he said, "of any interference with free speech. The gag is the gag, whether it is applied by a turbulent crowd in a public meeting, or whether it is approved in parliament by the obedient majority of a cold-blooded Government."

The Opposition leader dealt at some length with the assertions of the prime minister that Sir Wilfrid had not assisted in recruiting. After reading a list of meetings which he had addressed on behalf of recruiting, Sir Wilfrid said: "With such a record as this, I think it is very small potatoes on the part of the prime minister of Canada."

The Liberal chief warmly repudiated any suggestion that he was dominated by Bourassa. "I want to say," he emphatically declared, "THAT THERE IS NO MAN ALIVE WHO CAN DOMINATE LAURIER. MR. LAURIER IS AN ABLE MAN. I KNOW ALL THE HARM HE HAS DONE ME, AND ALL THE GOOD HE HAS DONE THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT, BUT HE SHALL NEVER DOMINATE LAURIER."

In regard to his declaration that he returned to his position as set forth in previous statements, he declared that if returned to the military service act, but would put it to a referendum. Sir Wilfrid said that conscription was not a racial question, for it had been rejected by Australia, a purely British country.

Welcomed With Ovation. Sir Wilfrid was received with loud cheering. He spoke of his twenty years' residence in Ottawa, and remarked that when he finally left public life, he would suggest that the Government of the day—whether Grit or Tory—should appoint him to the Ottawa Improvement Commission.

"I do not say that to a Union Government," he remarked, "although I see no difference between Unionism and Conservatism."

He spoke of the pleasure he had in seeing so many returned soldiers present—men who have borne the heat and the brunt of the war, who have met every enemy face to face and will continue here the battle for freedom they began on the other side."

He then referred to a question put to him by Mr. Frapp (this opponent) a couple of weeks ago, whether Sir Wilfrid approved of the tactics of the crowd at St. Antoine, in Dorchester County, Quebec, when they prevented the Hon. Mr. Seigney from speaking.

"I am proud and happy that the question was put to me by Mr. Frapp," Sir Wilfrid went on, "all the more so because the question has been aggravated by what took place three days ago when the prime minister refused a hearing in the city of Kitchener. He knows my sentiments upon that question. He knows that I disapprove of any interference with free speech, and I believe that Mr. Frapp himself disapproves of any interference when his opponents are concerned. But I am not so sure of his sentiments when his opponents are concerned, because Mr. Frapp is one of those who, in the last parliament voted to gag the Opposition, to impose the closure and to interfere with free speech."

Gag Is Gag Anywhere. The audience broke into loud laughter and Sir Wilfrid continued: "I disapprove of any interference with free speech, and I am sorry that the prime minister was not allowed to speak at Kitchener the other day. I want to have given to him every privilege that is due to his rank, due to the position he occupies and due also to the efforts he is making in support of a bad cause. I do not approve of any interference with free speech anywhere. The gag is the gag, whether it is applied by a turbulent crowd in public meeting or whether it is approved in parliament by the obedient majority of a cold-blooded government."

Recruiting. When did Sir Robert Borden ask me to help him in recruiting? I ask, when did he? Sir Wilfrid continued that Sir Robert had asked him to assist in connection with the national service scheme, but he had refused, and he said, for good reason.

Bedeviled With Partisanship. Sir Thomas Tait, who was appointed head of the commission, resigned, because he found it so bedeviled with partisan interference. It was not, Sir Wilfrid said, until two days after the resignation of Sir Thomas Tait that he was asked to join the commission. He was asked to step in where Sir Thomas Tait had stepped out.

"I would not play that game," Sir Wilfrid added, "I would not join a commission in which there was so much partisanship that the chairman was forced to resign."

What had the national service commission accomplished? It had been a fizzle, although thousands of dollars had been spent in salaries. Turning to the letter from the Hamilton Canadian Club, Sir Wilfrid said:

That Hamilton Letter. "The gentlemen who signed the commission were unknown to me. It is a long standing habit of mine—I receive letters of introduction on many subjects—it is a long standing habit of mine never to introduce anything until I know the parties who make the application. I did not know the gentlemen. I presume they were respectable men. The object they had in view was perfectly satisfactory to me, but I would not know more before I gave an affirmative answer. I asked to be excused for the moment, and asked for some delay. Upon this the prime minister of Canada, who knows what I have done in the past, throws a doubt on my sincerity in advocating the war. It may not have been a very inspiring answer," I admit.

The Order to "Go Slow." "But I think it was just as inspiring as the answer given to General Sir Sam Hughes when the latter wanted to go recruiting, and was told to go slow on the matter."

Sir Wilfrid detailed the meetings he had addressed in various parts of the country since the declaration of the war.

With such a record as this," he said, "I think this is very small potatoes on the part of the prime minister of Canada."

Referring to his attitude on conscription, Sir Wilfrid said he felt bound to differ with the Government on its policy, and said so with all frankness. Referring to a statement recently made by Hugh Guthrie that there was "Quebec in Australia," he said: "There is no Quebec in Australia. It is purely British country. There is not one of its inhabitants who has not come from the British Isles, yet that country, composed of races of the British Isles, deliberately rejected conscription. If Australia, which has no Quebec, which is all British, has rejected conscription, then it is not a racial question, as is affirmed by so many in this country. There must be in Australia some other reason than the race question, to induce the loyal and patriotic British subjects to reject the system of compulsory enlistment. It is because Australia has rejected conscription that the principles prevalent in all British countries, prevalent in Great Britain, in its dependencies from time to time up till three years ago, that the British people will do their duty without being compelled to do it, and will come forward like men to defend their country."

The Fault With Quebec. Sir Wilfrid then turned to the question of recruiting in the province of Quebec. He admitted that Quebec had not done her part as fully as the English-speaking provinces, but who, he asked, was responsible for this? The responsibility must rest upon the shoulders of the Government. The Conservatives had formed an alliance with the Nationalists of Quebec.

"We know," said Sir Wilfrid, "that there was an alliance between the Nationalists and the Tories. We have proof of this from the statements made by Mr. Bourassa himself."

Giving his reasons for asking that a referendum be taken, Sir Wilfrid stated that the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada had requested that this be done, and for the sake of the working classes who are most directly interested in the law, he felt that it should have been done.

Also, he said, a feeling in the province of Quebec had been raised by the Tories and Nationalists, but he had felt that if the matter was properly put before the people, the province of Quebec would have responded. The Government had refused his request for a referendum, and the bill was passed.

Will Not Repeat Act. "After" he became a minister, he had been asked whether if returned to power he would repeat it. His answer was that he would not, but he would insist on a referendum. It was a matter for the people themselves to decide.

The Conservatives said Sir Wilfrid, "have started the Nationalist cry. They say that I have formed an alliance with Bourassa. I would like to say that there is no man alive who can dominate Laurier. Mr. Laurier is an able man. I know all the harm he has done me, and all the good he has done the present Government, but he shall never dominate Laurier."

BOURASSA AND TORYISM

The Conservatives have started the national cry. They say I have formed an alliance with Bourassa. I would like to say that there is no man alive who can dominate Laurier. Mr. Bourassa is an able man. I know all the harm he has done me, and all the good he has done the present Government, but he shall never dominate Laurier. In fact he has been opposed to our participation in this war, I on the contrary, want to win this war, and I appeal to everyone to rise up and do their duty. The war is the great issue of the present time. But I have already stated my attitude on the war, and I stand or fall for my principles."—Laurier at Ottawa.

appointed a food controller, and he said, he was a good man. He was constantly giving good advice. He established meatless days, but the price of meat continued to soar and the Government did nothing. The United States had succeeded in effecting reductions in food prices. Slaughterhouses were now controlled by the United States Government, and since that country entered the war the price of meat had gone down three cents a pound. In all countries there were price controls, but in England, France and the United States they had been forced to disgorge their ill-gotten gains.

Must Review C.N.R. Deal. Referring to the Canadian Northern Railway purchase, Sir Wilfrid said: "I denounce the whole transaction and insist that it is the duty of Parliament to review it."

Sir Wilfrid characterized the new franchise act as an iniquitous measure. The Government, he said, had manufactured a franchise law to suit itself, although the former one was perfectly satisfactory. In provinces where the women had the right to vote he contended that these women were also entitled to vote in the Dominion elections. He said that he was right, made a strong plea for unity and said that if returned to power he would try to give Canada a strong government, such as when formerly in power.

Dewart on McWorm. Hartley Dewart of Toronto criticized General McWorm for a statement attributed to him that he regretted that the military service act limited the number of men to 100,000, and expressed the opinion that 25,000 men in the first six months of the act was a pretty poor record for the military service act. It was not, he said, a pretty poor record for the military service act. It was not, he said, a pretty poor record for the military service act.
