LOYALIST CELEBRATION

Saturday Night's Gathering in Keith's Service in Trinity

That the Loyalist sentiments of the early citizens of St. John have not been forgotten was again demonstrated Saturday evening, when representatives from the patriotic societies met in Keith's assembly rooms for the celebration of the 129th anniversary of the landing of the United Empire Loyalists at the mouth of the St. John river.

The guests were received near the entrance by a committee consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Frink, Mrs. E. A. Smith, Miss Winifred Raymond, Rev. G. A. Kühring, Ven. Archdeacon Raymond, and Dr. G. U. Hay. Harrison's orchestra rendered a musical programme during the reception. At the close of the evening's programme, light refreshments were served. Arrangements for the refreshments were under the direction of the Women's Canadian Club, with Mrs. G. F. Smith, Mrs. L. P. D. Tilly, Mrs. Frink and Mrs. D. McLellan supervising.

The first number on the programme was the singing of God Save the King, by the audience with the orchestra leading. D. J. Seely, president of the Loyalist Society, was in the chair and he tendered greetings from that society to the members of other organizations present. Greetings from other societies were presented as follows: Rev. G. A. Kühring, from the Canadian Club; Mrs. E. A. Smith, from the Women's Canadian Club; Dr. George U. Hay, from the Historical Society; Miss Winifred Raymond, from the St. John Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire. Rev. Mr. Kühring spoke of the great set back which the big fire had been to St. John, but the effects of this were no longer felt and there was no doubt that this city would greatly increase in size and importance. Dr. G. U. Hay suggested a more permanent celebration of Loyalist day and also

HIGH DEATH RATE IN THE SPRING

At the very time of year when all nature is awakening to new life human beings are overcome by lassitude and disease for physical activity, and the death rate mounts higher than at any other time during the year.

What can be the cause? It seems to be due to the mode of life during the cold winter months. Being cooped up in overcrowded, ill-ventilated rooms the lungs are deprived of the life-giving oxygen, the blood becomes loaded with impurities which are not eliminated from the system as they should be by the liver and kidneys.

These filtering organs are torpid, sluggish and inactive, and need Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to restore them to health and activity. There is no way by which the blood can be purified except by the eliminating process carried on by the liver and kidneys. Hence the effectiveness of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a means of purifying the blood.

PROSECUTING THE COFFEE TRUST

New York, May 19.—Attorney-General Wickesham today moved against the so-called coffee trust, or Brazilian valorization scheme. In a petition in equity filed here in the United States court he declared that the Sherman anti-trust law.

The court is asked to decree the scheme unlawful, to enjoin the valorization committee from removing or disposing of the coffee held in America pending the termination of the issue.

Miners to Work on Wednesday

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 19.—By a vote of 223 to 61 the anthracite mine workers in convention today ratified the agreement entered into by their sub-committee men with the coal operators and ordered the 170,000 men and boys employed in and about the mines to return to work next Wednesday.

What Culture Means

By RUTH CAMERON

THE other night I heard a young woman decline an invitation to a very noteworthy musical event. "I don't really enjoy music," was her explanation. "You know my tastes are rather artistic than musical. If it were a good picture exhibition, I'd go a hundred miles to see it, but I simply don't care very much for music."

The young woman made this explanation with no air of shame or regret; on the contrary, she seemed rather proud of her misfortune. "No, I can't hear anything at all, but I can see splendidly!"

How absurd, you say? Yes, I think so. And I also think it absurd for any man or woman to be content when eyes, or ears, or mind are closed and insensible to vast possibilities of pleasure.

Just because you are naturally fond of reading good literature, but do not happen to have been born with a musical ear, is no reason that you should cultivate and feel that your taste and regard music as an entirely outside of your world.

Just because you are fond of music, but do not appreciate art, is no reason you should consider art a closed world to you. To be sure, you were not born with a key to this kingdom of beauty in your possession, but just as soon, as you grow to years of discretion, you can forge one.

The well-developed, really cultured person has eyes and ears and mind wide open to receive pleasure through that source. He does not neglect the less sensitive of his senses, he gives special attention to the pleasure of his ears, and he does not neglect the less sensitive of his senses, he gives special effort to develop that one. If he does not naturally appreciate good music, he learns to do so. If he does not have a natural appreciation of good art, he makes determined efforts to develop that side of his nature.

I once knew a young girl who had a good literary and artistic sense, but absolutely no ear for music. And what do you think this girl bought with the first money she earned? No, she didn't buy a piano, or learn to play the piano. She said, "I want to have music in my home and see if I can't cultivate that part of me."

If you do not appreciate music, listen to it all the more. If you do not care for beautiful pictures, study them all the more thoroughly. If you do not care to read good books, read them. No kingdom of pleasure is really shut out of us. We will be wise and strong enough to forge the keys, instead of being foolishly content with the kingdoms whose keys are already ours.

cluded instructions from the French government to the following effect: First, to establish a protectorate that will ensure a thorough observance of the engagements of France with foreign powers, and especially in making effective the provisions of the 1763 treaty respecting equality.

Second, to keep intact the conception of a protectorate which should include direct government.

Third, to carry out a rational, political, economic and strategic programme, so that the tribes may be brought to accept their ruling martingale.

Fourth, to ensure that the French are disappointed at the idea that it should be necessary to appoint a soldier as the first governor of Morocco, and to appoint a civil, military and administrative, being centered in him. It is generally admitted that the troubles in the past have been due to divided authority.

General Lyantey has seen a good deal of active service. He did excellent work in French Indo-China, and in Madagascar. He is a thorough soldier, possessed of ideas of his own, some of which he has put into successful practice in Algeria, when he was appointed brigadier general of South Oran in 1904. There was a good deal of dissatisfaction in that portion of the country, which abuts for many miles on the frontiers of Morocco.

General Lyantey succeeded in pacifying the entire turbulent district by dividing the same into sections and concentrating his efforts on each single subdivision. Each of these areas was at last completely freed from all disorders, and not until then did he pass on to the next. A man who can deal with disaffected tribes in Algeria may be expected to be able to handle similar difficulties in the adjoining country. But Morocco is a country of surprises, and events there sometimes take a most unexpected turn.

General Lyantey, however, is not at all a stranger to the agreeable occupation of cleaning Augean stables, nor, as I have stated, is unknown in Morocco. He has been before as a French high commissioner at Udis, where in conjunction with a native Arab he has been appointed by the Sultan, he re-established and arranged the protection of the coast between Agades and Morocco. Having succeeded in what he undertook to do, he went home, and was used to command the Tenth Army Corps at Rennes. It is expected that his name will very soon appear on the roll of the "Bureau des Affaires Marocaines" being especially valuable and valued.

MARQUISE DE FONTENAY. Another so-called "international marriage" is announced as about to take place soon. One of the principals is Mrs. Emery of New York, widow of John J. Emery who died in 1908, leaving a fortune in real estate estimated to be of the value of some $40,000,000, and three children, a boy and two girls. The happy man is the Hon. Alfred Anson, a younger brother of the Earl of Lichfield—a much younger brother, indeed, for he is twenty years his junior.

The name Anson is quite well known on this side of the Atlantic. The late Earl of Lichfield was in New York in the early part of last year to take part in the international marriage of his family, including his brother Francis, who is married to a Texas girl, a daughter of George Cleveland and Anita.

The Ansons are connected by marriage with a large number of the most famous houses of the British aristocracy; for instance, with the Earl of Leicester, of Mansfield, of Wemyss, (pronounced "Wemyss") the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Abercorn, etc. As these years are connected in their turn with other titled families of Great Britain, there can be but little doubt that Mrs. Emery will by this marriage be received within the ranks of the British aristocracy.

The Ansons are an ancient family of the county of Stafford, where the earl's principal seat, Shugborough Hall, is situated. Its most famous member was Admiral Anson, the circumnavigator of the globe and the reformer of the British admiralty. As post-captain he served twice on the North American station, from 1758 to 1763, and from 1733 to 1735, as captain of the "Scarborough" and of the "Squirrel" respectively.

It was in 1743 while in command of the "Centurion" he captured a richly laden Spanish galleon, the "Nuestra Señora de los Reyes," which made him a wealthy man for the rest of his days.

Afterwards he saw some service against the French but his principal services were in the direction of relieving the navy department of the corruption and lack of discipline into which it had fallen for which he was created Baron Soberton.

If one cares to trace the family further back, William Anson, an eminent lawyer in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, left a son named William who in turn has three children, Thomas, George and Janette. Janette, who was an exceedingly handsome girl, married Sambrook, and her son subsequently inherited the estates of his two maternal uncles, on condition that he would assume the name of Anson. It was this George Adams-Anson who became the father of Admiral Anson I have just mentioned.

The admiral's baronetcy became extinct at his death, but his vast fortune devolved upon his nephew, George Adams, who subsequently inherited the estates of his older uncle, Thomas, and assumed, by royal permission, in 1773, the surname and arms of Anson. He married, in 1763, the daughter of George Venables Vernon, first Lord Vernon, and became blessed with a large family, the eldest of whom was Thomas, the first Viscount Anson.

The eldest son of the first viscount, also named Thomas, was first Earl of Lichfield, in 1811. His eldest son, Thomas George, had a large number of children, among them were Thomas Francis Anson, the third and present earl, born in 1856, and Alfred (the fiancé of Mrs. Emery), born in 1876.

In the foregoing outline, I have merely shown the pedigree of Alfred Anson from the time of the Elizabethan jubilee. The family is so numerous that it would be more than tedious to attempt to pursue a complete account of its various ramifications, so I will merely cite, as examples, that the second earl married the eldest daughter of the first Duke of Abercorn, and that one of Alfred Anson's brothers, Claud, wedded Lady Clodagh Boreford, youngest daughter of the fifth Marquis of Waterford.

The Moroccan question, which has lately been such a disturbing factor in old world politics, has, it is believed, been settled on a new and more satisfactory basis, with the appointment of General Lyantey as resident governor-general, and his orders to remain in France's new protectorate until the work of pacification, organization and administration has been definitely accomplished. He enters upon his new duties with peremptory and iron-

Daily Hints For the Cook

RHUBARB SHORTCAKE.

Rub into one heaping cupful of pastry flour that has been sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch each of salt and sugar, one teaspoonful of lard and a small butter ball. Moisten this to the consistency of biscuit dough with sweet milk and arrange in two flat cakes, spreading well with butter and after placing one on top of the other bake for 20 minutes in a quick oven. When the cake is done, break it apart and again butter it, spreading it thickly with a rhubarb sauce and sweetened whipped cream between and on top, dusted with finely chopped nut meats.

CREAM CAKES.

Put one cup of boiling water over half cup of butter in a saucpan. Put on fire and when it boils stir in one cup of pastry flour (sifted). Stir continually over fire until it is smooth and cleaves from the dish. Set aside to cool a little. If you have nothing else to do make your cream filling by this time it will be cool. Then stir in three tablespoon eggs (one at a time), after adding the last one put in a pinch of soda about the size of a pea. Drop on a greased tin about two inches apart. Wet your fingers in cold water and pat cakes into a good shape gently. This makes twelve large cakes or fifteen small-sized ones. Put the pan in a hot oven and don't open the door for ten to twelve minutes, then if you find them browning too fast reduce the heat. A half hour is usually sufficient for baking them.

MARINE NEWS. Machiasport, Me, May 19.—The British schooner Clavola, bound from St. John (N.B.), with a cargo of lumber for Boston, is a wreck on Cross Island and will be a total loss.

The Clavola's crew arrived here today in care of the crew of the Cross Island Life Saving Station. They reported having reached shore, following the wreck of their vessel Friday night, only with the greatest difficulty.

The Clavola sprung a leak during a southeast gale Friday evening and became unmanageable. She drifted about aimlessly in a thick fog until she struck on Cross Island.

The Clavola is owned by J. Willard Smith of this city and is of 124 tons. She sailed from this port some few days ago with a cargo of lumber shipped by Stinson, Cutler & Co. and bound for Boston. The schooner is in command of Captain Lewis; she is an old vessel.

The schooner struck by the steamers A. W. Perry on Thursday night off the Nova Scotia coast, was the Albert S. Latta, Captain Apt. The fog was heavy. No lives were lost, but the schooner lost her main boom and mainmast. She has put into Liverpool, N. S.

The Montreal owned steamer Iona, coal laden, took fire in Lake Ontario on Friday night, and was burned to the water's edge, subsequently sinking. The captain and crew of twelve took to a lifeboat and were driven before a violent gale, finally landing on Saturday morning at Henders harbor, N. Y.

RICHESON'S LAST DAY. Boston, Mass., May 19.—"I have made my peace with God. I am resigned to my fate. I wish now to go to my death as soon as possible; the quicker the better." These words spoken by Clarence V. T. Richeson, former Baptist minister, and the confessed slayer of Avis Libnell, to Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, his spiritual adviser today, expressed the mental condition of the condemned man, whose tenure of life is now only by hours.

There is much reason to believe that he will go to his death in the electric chair shortly after midnight Monday night. Richeson was deeply pleased when told that his father had promised that his body should lie beside that of his mother in the family lot on Richeson Mountain in Amherst Court House, Virginia.

A NEW WESTERN PLAY. The attraction to appear at the Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week is the successful western play Billy the Kid.
