JOHN KNOX'S COURTSHIP

A curious anecdote of Knox's marriage to Lord Ochiltree's daughter, is contained in a letter written by Mr. Robert Miller, minister of Paisley, to Wodrow, the historian of the sufferings of the Church of Scotland, dated Nov. 15, 1722. It is as

John Knox, before the light of the Re-formation broke up, travelled among sev-eral honest families in the West of Scotland who were converts to the Protestant land who were converts to the Frostand religion. Particularly he visited oft Lord Ochiltree's family, preaching the gospel privately to those who were willing to receive it. The lady and some of the family were converts. Her ladyship had a were converts. Her ladyship had a chamber, table, stool and candlestick for the prophet, and one night about supper-time, said to him "Mr. Knox, I think you are at a loss by want of a wife?" To which he said, "Madam, I think nobody will take such a wanderer as I." To which will take such a wanderer as I. To which she replied, "Sir, if that be your objection, I'll make inquiry, to find an answer against our next meeting." The lady accordingly addressed herself to her eldest daughter, telling her that she might be very happy if she could marry Mr. Knox, who would be a great reformer and a credit to the church, but she denized the it to the church; but she despised the proposal, hoping that her ladyship wished her better than to marry a poor wanderer. The lady addressed the second daughter, who answered as the eldest. Then the lady spoke to her third daughter, about nay spoke to her third daughter, about mineteen years of age, who very faintly said, "Madam, I'll be very willing to marry him, but I fear he'il not take me." To which the lady replied, "If that be all your objection, I'll soon get you an answer." Next evening at supper the lady said, "Sir, I have been considering upon a wife for you, and find one very willing."
To which Knox inquired, "Who is it, madam?" She answered, "My young daughter, sitting by your side at the

Then addressing himself to the young lady, he said, "My bird, are you willing to marry me?" She answered, "Yes sir; only I fear you will not be willing to take me." He said, "My bird, if you are willing to take me, you must take your venture of God's providence as I do. I go through the country sometimes on foot, with a wallet on my arm and a Bible in it. You may put things in it for yourself, and if I bid some things in it for yourself, and if I bid you take the wallet you must do it, and go when I go and lodge where I lodge." "Sir." said she, "I'll do all this." "Will you be as good as your word?" "Yes, I will." Upon which the marriage was concluded. She went with him to Geneva. And as he was ascending a hill she got up to the too of it before him and the said to the too. to the top of it before him, and took th wallet on her arm and sitting down said, "Now, good man, am not I as good as my word?"

"MY FATHER'S WILL."-A good old man was one day walking to the sanctuary with his Bible in his hand, when a friend met him and said:

"Good morning, Mr. Price, what are you reading there?

"Ah, good-morning," replied he; "I am reading my Father's will as I walk along." "Well, and what has he left you?" said the friend.

Why, he has bequeathed to me a hundred-fold more in this life, and in the world to come life everlasting."—Sel.
