The strenghtening and Mourishing Vi taes of Paine's Celery

Compound A Case Where the Great Medicine Bestowed Vigor and Health After Months of Weakness and Suffering.

Observing and intelligent women who have used Paine's Celery Comhat as a spring medicine it quickly regulates the bowels, clears the whites of the eyes of that common jaundiced look and gives a bloom of health to the face that it never possessed before. Another important proof of the invigorating power of Paine's Celery Compound, is the effect on the pulse, which becomes full, firm and regular. Weak, exhausted, nervous, irritable and worried women find that Paine's Celery Compound counteracts the exhausting strain of work and worry by its strong inducement to the delicate tissues to take more nourishment; induces the nerves and brain to feed themselves more liberally, and it enriches, the blood and regulater the flow. Mrs A. R. Parsons, Sutton P.

Q., writes thus :-Some time ago I had grippe, which left me so lame and weak that for six months I could not get up without help. I told my husband that nothing else but Paine's Calery Comcound could help me, after other medicines and the doctors had failed. After taking several bottles of Paine's Celery Compound, I feel that I am cured; I can now walk up and down stairs with ease, and do all my housework. Under the blessing of God and your Paine's Celery Compound I am now well.

Hear what "Tom Brown at Oxford" says about wild oats: "In all the wide range of accepted British maxims there is none — take it for all in all - more thoroughly abominable than the one as to the sowing of wild oats. Look at it on either side you will, and you can make but a devil's maxim of it. The only thing to do with wild oats is to put them carefully into the hottest part of the fire and get them burned to dust, every seed of them. If you sow them, no matter in what The Atlantic, by a friend who made ground, up they will come, with long, tough roots like couch-grass, and luxuriant stalks and leaves, as sure as there is a sun in heaven-a crop which it turns one's heart cold to think of. The devil. too, whose special crop they are, will see that they thrive, and you, and nobody else, will have to reap them; and no common reaping will get them out of the soil, which must be dug down again and again. Well for you, if, with all your care, you can make the ground sweet again by your dying day."

POPPING THE QUESTION.

Curious Methods That Prevail In

In this favored land of the free every lovelorn swain has his own way of making love and popping the question, but in some foreign countries the peasantry has peculiar and traditionary ways of performing those pleasing functions. Among Hungarian gypsies cakes are used as love letters. Inside the cake is a coin, which is baked in it. The cake is flung to the favored object of one's affections. The retention of the cake signifies acceptance, but if it is flung back with force it signifies rejection. The Japanese lover wishing to make known the state of his feelings throws a bunch of pale plum flower buds into his loved one's litter as she enters it to go to a friend's wedding. If she tosses the blossoms lightly out, the suitor knows that he is rejected, but if she fastens them to her girdle it is "Oh. happiness!" with him.

In some parts of Spain the young peasant looks unutterable things, but never tries to speak until he has been accepted. The girl neither looks nor speaks, but she sees. Late in the cool of the evening the youth knocks at her father's door and asks for a gourd of water. It is of course given to him Then comes the crisis. If he is invited to take a chair within the porch or a seat in the garden, he is an accepted suitor, but if this civility is not extended to him he goes away knowing that he is rejected. If he is accepted, there is a general celebration by the family of the bride to be in honor of her betrothal.

When the Eskimo goes a-wooing, he walks to the house of his loved one's parents and, seizing the object of his affections by her long, strong hair or her furs, carries her away to his hut of snow or tent of skins. No matter how much the girl may reciprocate her suitor's affections, she always makes a show of resistance and tries to run away from him, this for the sake of preserving the conventionalities of Eskimo society.

AN ANECDOTE OF WHITMAN. How the Poet Was Trying to Cheer

Up a Friendless Boy. One day I was stopped on Washington street, says J. T. Trowbridge in this startling announcement: "Walt Whitman is in town. I have just seen him!" When I asked where, he replied: "At the stereotype foundry, just around the corner. Come along. I'll take you to him." The author of "Leaves of Grass" had loomed so large in my imagination as to seem almost superhuman, and I was filled with some such feeling of wonder and astonishment as if I had been invited to meet Socrates or King Solomon.

We found a large, gray haired and gray bearded, plainly dressed man, reading proof sheets at a desk in a little dingy office, with a lank, unwholesome looking lad at his elbow listlessly watching him. The man was Whitman, and the proofs were those of his new edition. There was a scarcity of chairs, and Whitman, rising to receive time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It us, offered me his, but we all remained ling remedy in our standing except the sickly looking lad, who kept his seat until Whitman turn ed to him and said: "You'd better go now. I'll see you this evening." After he had gone out Whitman explained: "He is a friendless boy I found at my boarding place. I am trying to cheer him up and strengthen him with my magnetism," a practical but curiously prosaic illustration of these powerful lines in the early poems: To any one dying thither I speed and twist the knob of the door.

I selze the descending man; I raise him with resistless will.

Every room of the house do I fill with an armed force, lovers of one, bafflers

Points About a Good Horse, There are some points which are valuable in horses of every description. The head should be proportionately large and well set on. The lower jawbones should be sufficiently far apart to enable the head to form an angle with the neck, which gives it free motion and a graceful carriage and prevents it bearing too heavily on the hand. The eye should be large, a little prominent and the eyelid fine and thin. The ear should be small and erect and quick in motion. The lop ear indicates duliness and stubbornness. A Curious Boat. According to a Chinese legend, there lived in Canton 200 years before Christ an artist named Lim Kao Poung, who won an immortal reputation owing to the fact that he was able to fashion out of a bean pod a boat, complete with rudder, sails, mast and all other necessary appurtenances. Moreover, on the exterior of the boat were engraved various maxims by Confucius. For this masterpiece, it is said, the Emperor Tsi Fou paid him 1,000 taels.

nage go on, and only by living in inaccessible forests and strongly stockaded places is it possible at all for the tribes to save themselves from annihilation. Of the vast island continent of New Guinea the western or Dutch part is the worst looked after, and it often happens that numerous raiding parties in their great war canoes come swooping down the coas before the northwest mensoon and carry death and desolation into the comparatively quiet British portion around the mighty Fly river, opposite Torres strait. By the time the news is carried to Thursday island and the gunboat starts away in pursuit it is generally too late, and the marauders have vanished.

The writer was present once at the capture of a war party, and fortyeight heads were taken from the canoes. Hanging and deportation to penal servitude seem to be but a slight deterrent, for the terror recurs almost as regularly as a plague of locusts. These Papuans are a hardy, warlike people and expert bowmen, and they rely on their skill with this potent weapon solely, using their clubs for the dispatch of wounded foes.

The "sumpitan" has often a spear head attached to the outer end, like a bayonet on a musket. For close fighting they rely on the dreaded "parang," a heavy, hollow ground broadsword about two feet long, with the handle often carved of ivory and ornamented with gold and pearls, the wooden scabbard covered with human skin and hair. They count him a poor warrior who cannot sever a head clean with one blow delivered backhanded. Even in a mountainous part of the Malay peninsula, north of Malacca, in the Dindings and Hegri Sembilan, there is to this day a remnant tribe of head hunters called the Sa-KL

Origin of the Sabbath.

The Sabbath as a religious institution is far older than the Pentateuchal legislation. It, too, can be traced back to a Babylonian prototype, not, however, as a day of rest from labor, but as a kind of atonement day, when by various rites and by observing certain restricted regulations the anger of the gods could be appeased. On this old institution the Hebrews ingrafted their religious ideas and produced the unique institution of a day observed as a respite from the week's toil and which, from being an "inauspicious" occasion, a dies iræ, is viewed as a "delight."
